INTRODUCTION.

I.

IN these volumes I seek to present a true text of the Faerie Queene, founded upon a fresh collation of the Quartos of 1590 and 1596 and the Folio of 1609. I shall call these editions by their dates for short.

The fragmentary Seventh Book appeared first in 1609: for the rest the text is based on 1596. Some typographical peculiarities—long s, &, ô, and superscribed m and n (e.g. fr^o, wh^e)—have not been reproduced, but noted only where they first occur. With these exceptions, the readings of 1596 if not adopted in the text are recorded in the notes; so that text and notes together amount, in effect, to a complete reprint of 1596. No such completeness has been attempted in recording variants from 1590 and 1609. But all verbal differences are recorded, and all differences of punctuation that imply a different view of the meaning. Mere changes of spelling that answer to no change of pronunciation are, as a rule, ignored; but I have recorded such differences of spelling as seemed likely to interest students of Elizabethan phonology, grammar, and usage. The evidence of these variants must be used with caution in view of Spenser's deliberate archaism. Yet I believe that they have some value. I give one instance in each kind:—

1. A fluid e-sound is indicated by the variants 'seeldome' 1590, 'seldome' 1596, 'sildom.' 1609, at I. iv. 23, l. 5.

2. Syllabic -es in possessives and plurals, which still lingered in the early fifteen-nineties, has grown quite strange to the editor of 1609. To this point I shall return.

3. The conjunctions 'since' and 'sith' are used indifferently in 1590 and 1596, choice of one or other form being determined by euphony alone. But 1609 makes a deliberate, though not quite consistent, attempt to appropriate 'since' to the temporal, 'sith' to the causal sense. The attempt unfortunately did not avail to save the more primitive form.

I have departed from the punctuation of 1596 only where it seemed likely to puzzle or mislead a modern reader. These departures, which are all recorded, are not very numerous. Spenser's punctuation, though by no means sacrosanct, is less arbitrary than might at first appear; but, as Mr. Gregory Smith says of the punctuation of Addison, it has a rhetorical rather than a logical value. We feel its force best when we read the poem aloud. Two peculiarities are so common that the reader may be warned of them here. One is the absence of punctuation with vocatives: the other is the single comma after qualifying phrases. With this warning I leave these peculiarities, as a rule, unchanged.

In the treatment of capitals and in the distribution of roman and italic type I have followed the same principle of adhering, wherever possible, to the original text.

I have regularized the spelling of proper names wherever the variation seemed to be due to the printer rather than the poet. And this is generally the case with double letters. But for many variations in proper names Spenser was himself responsible. He varied them sometimes for the sake of the metre, as Serena, Serene; or of the rhyme, as Florimell, Florimele. In two instances he seems actually to have wavered or changed his mind. Braggadocchio's name is generally spelt thus in Book II; in Books III and IV it varies, .. V. iii it is regularly Braggadocchio. So we generally find Arthegall in Book III, but Artegall regularly in Book V; 1609, however, returns to Arthegall.

II.

Aiming not at a reprint but a true text, I have not hesitated to depart from 1596 wherever I believed it to be in error and the error the printer's. But it is no part of an editor's duty to correct, though he may indicate, mistakes made by the author himself. There are many such in the Faerie Queene.

(1) There are mistakes of fact, of literary allusion, of quantity in classical names, hardly to be avoided by a poet writing far from libraries.

(2) There are confusions of personages, or of names of personages, within the poem itself. Sir Guyon is confused with the Redcrosse Knight in III. ii. 4, and with Prince Arden in II. viii. 48 (but not in 1609); Æmylia with Pæana in IV. ix. Arg.; Calepine with Calidore in VI. vi. 17; while over Serena Spenser's confusion becomes comical—he calls her Crispina in VI. iii. 23,¹ and Matilda in VI. v. Arg.

(3) Some lines are hypermetrical; some are short by a foot; and there are two or three broken lines. One of these last (III. iv. 39, l. 7) is certainly intentional, and all may be so; the supposed example of Virgil may have influenced Spenser in this.

(4) Imperfect rhymes and concordances are numerous, especially in Books IV, V, and VI.

(5) There is one form of imperfect rhyme so singular as to deserve a fuller discussion. Its nature will be best seen in an example.—

'Like two faire marble pillours they were seene,
Which doe the temple of the Gods support, (2)
Whom all the people decke with girlands greene,
And honour in their festiuall resort; (4)

¹ But this was corrected as the sheet passed through the press. See note ad loc. in the Critical Appendix.

Those same with stately grace, and princely port (5)
 She taught to tread, when she her self would grace,
 But with the wooddie Nymphes when she did play, (7)
 Or when the flying Libbard she did chace,
 She could them nimbly moue, and after fly apace.'

(II. iii. 28.)

Here 'play' in l. 7 is rhymed to 'support', 'resort', 'port': 'sport' is the obvious correction. There are, in all, nine instances of this singularity in the Faerie Queene. I subjoin them all, citing the rhyme-words only: the number following each word shows the line that it ends:—

1. day (2), dismay (4), way (5), chace (7) (II. ii. 7)
2. make (6), bold (8), told (9) (II. ii. 42)
3. support (2), resort (4), port (5), play (7) (II. iii. 28)
4. leaue (2), cleaue (4), bereaue (5), vpreare (7)
 (II. viii. 29)
5. spyde (6), law (8), draw (9) (III. vi. 40)
6. enclose (2), plaine (4), Maine (5), complaine (7)
 (III. vii. 34)
7. times (6), equipage (8), parentage (9) (IV. xi. 17)
8. place (2), aread (4), dread (5), read (7) (V. Proem 11)
9. desyre (2), entyre (4), yre (5), meed (7) (V. xi. 61)

In every case the correction is obvious: 'chace' should be 'pray' (i.e. prey); 'make', 'hold'; 'play', 'sport'; 'vpreare', 'vpheau'; 'spyde', 'saw'; 'enclose', 'containe'; 'times', 'age'; 'place', 'stead' (as in 1609); 'meed', 'hyre'. The phenomenon may now be described in general terms: in these nine places Spenser substitutes for a rhyming word a metrically equivalent synonym which does not rhyme. Our analysis shows further that, the rhyme-scheme of the Spenserian stanza being ababbcbcc, this substitution occurs only in the first or last of the b-group, or in the first of the c-group. It seems as if, borne along on the swell of his metre and the easy flow of his imagination, two words identical in sense and metre but different in sound rose to the poet's mind almost simultaneously; and the one which he meant to reject slipped nevertheless from his pen, having been (we infer) the first to occur. This explains why this phenomenon always occurs either in the first word of a rhyme-group, where the rhyme is still undetermined; or, if in the last, then only in the last of the b-group, where the ear has already been satisfied with as many as three rhymes; and why it never occurs in the a-group, where two rhymeless endings would at once have alarmed the ear. I have dwelt on this phenomenon at some length because it is, so far as I know, peculiar to Spenser.¹

(6) I must glance at another, though a rare, source of error. Our sage and serious Spenser was a thoughtful, even a philosophic writer; but his thought is large, simple, contemplative, not acute and analytic. When he has to deal with a subtle or complex situation he sometimes involves himself inextricably. If any lover of Spenser resent this judgement, let him apply his devotion to explain or emend II. v. 12, ll. 8 and 9; V. vi. 5, ll. 6 and 7; V. vi. 26, ll. 5 and 6: to me these passages appear incorrigible.

III.

The first mention of the Faerie Queene occurs in a letter of Spenser's to Gabriel Harvey, dated Quarto Nonas Aprilis 1580. 'I wil in hande forthwith,' he writes, 'with my Faery Queene, whyche I praye you hartily send me with al expedition: and your frendly Letters, and long expected

¹ The peculiarity consists not in the occasional occurrence of a rhymeless line—a thing that can easily be paralleled from Shelley or any poet of equal fluency—but in the fact that the right word is in every case so obvious that we cannot but believe it to have been in Spenser's mind.

Judgement wythal.' 'I haue nowe sent hir home at the laste,' writes Harvey in reply. These phrases show that the parcel of the Faerie Queene had been in Harvey's hands for some considerable time. The poem must therefore have been begun not later than 1579. Now in 1579 Spenser was an inmate of Leicester House, and the constant associate of Sir Philip Sidney. There is therefore no reason to doubt the assertion of W. L. in his commendatory verses that by Sidney the poem was originally inspired.

Harvey's long-expected judgement, when it came, was far from favourable. But the poet was not discouraged, and doubtless took the manuscript with him when he went to Ireland with Lord Grey in August, 1580. Though he afterwards spoke of the poem as 'wilde fruit which salvage soyl hath bred', there is some reason to think that he had actually written as much as a book and a half before he left England. For though allusions to Ireland are not rare in the Faerie Queene, the first of them occurs in II. ix. 16.¹ Moreover, the industry of commentators has discovered in Book I only one imitation of Tasso's Gierusalemme Liberata,

Upton believed that the Ruddymane episode in II. ii referred to the O'Neills, whose badge was a bloody hand (in the View of the Present State of Ireland). If there be anything in this, it makes against the view that a book and a half had been written by August, 1580; for Spenser is not likely to have known the O'Neill 'badge' till he settled in Ireland. and that doubtful¹ (I. vii. 31); undoubted imitations begin to appear in II. v, vi, vii, viii, and II. xii blazes with spoils from the Garden of Armida. Now the Gierusalemme Liberata was published in 1581; an imperfect edition had been issued surreptitiously in 1580.

Our next glimpse of the Faerie Queene we owe to Lodovick Bryskett, whose Discourse of Civill Life, though not published till 1606, purports to record a conversation held in his cottage near Dublin as early, it would seem, as the spring of 1583. Spenser is one of the interlocutors. He is made to say that he has already undertaken a work 'which is in heroical verse under the title of a Faerie Queene'; which work he has 'already well entered into'. The company express an 'extreme longing' after this Faerie Queene, 'whereof some parcels had been by some of them scene'.

Parcels of the Faerie Queene had been seen, it appears, not only by Spenser's friends in Dublin, but by his literary contemporaries in London. I. v. 2 is imitated in Peele's David and Bethsabe (date unknown, but probably before 1590). I. vii. 32 and I. viii. 11 are imitated in Act IV, Sc. 4 and Act IV, Sc. 3 respectively of the second part of Marlowe's Tamburlaine (published 1590, but acted some years earlier). Finally, Abraham Fraunce in his Arcadian Rhetorike (1588) quotes Spenser 'in his Faerie Queene, 2 booke, cant. 4'. Fraunce's quotation is the more interesting inasmuch as it shows that by 1588² the F. Q. had not only been composed, but disposed into its present arrangement of books and cantos so far at least as II. iv. It is worth remarking that all these imitations of and quotations from F. Q. before it was published are from that part of the poem which we have seen some reason to think was written before Spenser left England. Allusions in the poem shed no certain light on the progress of its composition.

Both these arguments, then, are indecisive; and in the absence of decisive proof I find it hard to believe that Harvey, who though a pedant was no fool, can have seen anything like the whole of Book I without recognizing its superlative merits.

² Fraunce's book was licensed on June 11.

There is no reason to suppose that Spenser composed the whole of the F. Q. in the order in which he gave it to the world. It is more likely that he worked up many incidents and episodes as they occurred to him, and afterwards placed them in the poem. We know that the Wedding of Thames and Medway, which now forms IV. xi, is a redaction of an Epithalamium Thamesis which he originally undertook as an experiment in quantitative metre before April, 1580. And it seems probable that the Legendes and Court of Cupid mentioned by E. K. in his preface to the Shepheards Calender, as well as the *Pageaunts*¹ mentioned in the Glosse on June, were similarly worked over and incorporated in the F. Q.

Combining these pieces of evidence, we receive the impression that for some time after he came to Ireland Spenser worked but intermittently on the F. Q., resuming the regular composition and arrangement of the poem about the time when he ceased to reside in Dublin.² By 1588—the date of Fraunce's quotation—he may have already been settled at Kilcolman. There, at least, Raleigh found him in 1589, and was shown the poem; with the result that in the autumn of that year Spenser accompanied Raleigh to London, and set about the publication of Books I–III.

'An hundred Graces on her eyelidde sate,' which appears, slightly altered, in F. Q. II. iii. 25.

² The 'fennes of Allan' (II. ix. 16) would be near New Abbey in Co. Kildare, where Spenser seems to have occasionally resided in the years 1582–4.

The volume was licensed to William Ponsonby on Dec. 1, 1589. Spenser's explanatory letter to Raleigh bears date Jan. 23, 1589 (i. e. 1590 N. S.). In the course of 1590, but not before March 25, the volume was published. The printing shows some signs of haste; there is a long list of errata or 'Faults Escaped in the Print'. This list, though not itself faultless, is of paramount authority in determining the text of Books I-III; it is cited in the notes as F. E.

In 1591 Spenser returned to Ireland, a disappointed man. I fear that Burleigh had taken occasion of the Milesian tone of certain episodes in Book III to stir the ashes of an old resentment: the second part of F. Q. begins and ends with complaints of 'misconstruction by that 'mighty Pere'. But once back at Kilcolman he resumed his task. At first the stream of poetry flows la gaidily. The fable rambles, dispersing its force in many channels, like a river choked with sand; the verse flags; the play of alliteration is fitful; and Spenser essays a new, but to my ear an unhappy, variation in the form of a feminine ending.¹ But presently he gathers strength again under some new influence, which one would fain associate with his courtship of Elizabeth Boyle. The treatment of Britomart in Book V has strong, dramatic touches beyond anything in the earlier books; and in the lovely pastoral episodes of Book VI the poet lives once more in Arcadia. But positive indications of date are very rare. Book V Canto xi must be later than July 25, 1593, when Henri IV heard that mass which was the price of Paris: the singular dislocation of the Argument to Canto xii—half of which refers to the incidents of Canto xi—suggests that this Burbon episode was an afterthought; that it was inserted after Book V had been disposed into Cantos; and that Spenser meant to form part of Canto xii. On the ordinary interpretation

¹ In the whole of Books I-III there is only one feminine ending, viz. in II. ix. 47. In Books IV-VI such endings abound.

Of the Amoretti,¹ all these books were finished before, but not long before, his wedding on June 11, 1594 (v. Sonnet 80); and on any interpretation they must have been finished by 1595, when Sir Robert Needham brought the manuscript of the Amoretti to London. Yet Spenser may have added and retouched up to the date of publication. For, in spite of Sonnet 80, I have fancied that when he wrote certain descriptions in Books V and VI Spenser was not only a husband but a father. See especially V. v. 53 (simile of the nurse and infant); V. vi. 14 (the child crying in the night); VI. iv. 18, 23, 24 (Calepine's treatment of the foundling which should be compared with Guyon's behaviour in a similar situation, II. ii. 1); also VI. iv. 37, particularly line 8. Now Spenser's eldest child was born in 1595. This may be fanciful. What is certain is that towards the close of 1595 Spenser followed Needham to London with the manuscript of the second part of F. Q. It was licensed to Ponsonby on Jan. 20, 1596, and published by autumn of that year. James VI took offence at the treatment of Duessa, and had to be appeased by the English Ambassador, whose letter detailing the incident is dated Nov. 12, 1596. The new edition was in two volumes, the first being a reprint, with alterations, of 1590.

Late in 1596, or early in 1597, Spenser returned to Ireland. In 1598 Tyrone's rebellion broke out. In October the rebels attacked and burned Kilcolman Castle. Spenser fled to Cork, whence in December he made his way to London; and there, on Jan. 16, 1599, he died. Ten years after his death a folio edition of F. Q. was published by Mathew Lownes, which added to the six books already published two Cantos of Mutabilitie, 'which, both for Forme and Matter, appeare to be parcell of some following Booke of the Faerie Queene, vnder the Legend of Constancie.' These two cantos, with two stanzas of a third, are all that remain of the third part of F. Q. Whether Spenser wrote more is unknown. But the fact that the two cantos are numbered vi and vii makes it fairly certain that he had at least sketched the whole Seventh Book. I cannot accept the view that these two cantos are an independent poem, in the sense that they were not designed to form part of F. Q. The lines (VII. vi. 37)—

'And, were it not ill fitting for this file,

To sing of hilles and woods, mongst warres and Knights'—show clearly that they were so designed. That they may have been written independently, in the sense in which the Wedding of Thames and Medway was written independently, I am not concerned to deny. The view that these cantos are spurious is unworthy of serious discussion. If they are spurious, there must have been living in 1609 an unknown poet who could write the Spenserian style and stanza as well as Spenser at his best. For there is nothing of its kind in F. Q. superior to the pageant 'of the months and seasons; and no one who really knows Spenser can doubt that the two stanzas which alone remain of the 'vnperfite' eighth canto came from his heart.

IV.

The chief critical problem that confronts an editor of F. Q. concerns the text of Books I–III. Should the text of these books be based on 1590 or on 1596? I have chosen the latter. And I have done so, in the main, for a quite general reason. 1596 was produced under Spenser's eye and by his authority. That authority must be held to cover both volumes, not the second only. Behind this we cannot go. The case is quite different with the later quartos of the Shepheards Calender, which were produced in Spenser's absence.

This general position is confirmed by a minute comparison of 1590 and 1596. To take the more massive changes first: in 1596 Spenser completely remodelled the conclusion of Book III. Instead of bringing Scudamour and Amoretti together, as in 1590, he left them still parted, hoping thus to prolong the interest of their story into Book IV, and so to form a link between the two volumes, which he desired to be read as one continuous poem. For this he sacrificed five glorious stanzas, one of them the most rapturous that he ever wrote. The three stanzas which he substituted are far inferior, as he must have known; but they served his purpose. He also added a new stanza at I. xi. 3. He rewrote single lines, in the interests of sound or sense; he altered single words or phrases; and he made—what is even more significant—several minute changes of order designed to improve the rhythm. Let me add that most of these changes are more happily inspired than the second-thoughts of poets have sometimes been.

I hasten to make two admissions. The first volume of 1596 was not reset afresh from Spenser's manuscript. It was printed from a copy of 1590. In the nature of the case, while it escapes some of the blunders of its original, it reproduces others, and perpetrates some new. Nor did Spenser do more than glance at the proof. The 1596 volumes, as we have seen, were printed rapidly; the poet was busy,¹ and such time as he had for proof-reading was given to the new books. I infer that the alterations which he made in 1590 were made not on the proof, but on the copy. In no other way can we account for that combination of author's corrections with printer's errors which marks the first volume of 1596. And this conclusion is strengthened by another consideration. It is one of the worst faults of 1596 that it so often ignores F. E. But the significance of the fault has been overlooked. Making corrections on the copy, Spenser did not trouble himself about errors that he had already noted in F. E.; had he made his corrections on the proof, they could not have escaped him.

I believe this to be a true account of the relations of these two texts. But when all is said there remain many places where we cannot pronounce on mere inspection whether an alteration is the author's or the printer's, but must be guided by a calculation of probabilities, inclining (e.g.) to the author where there is clear evidence of his hand in the neighbourhood of the vexed passage, to the printer where the ductus litterarum in both readings is suspiciously alike. The most important of these places are discussed in the Critical Appendix to Vol. III.

Has 1609 any independent authority? In the main a reprint of 1596, it is certainly a respectable piece of work, in punctuation especially far more logical and consistent than either of the quartos: the editor seldom fails to show exactly how he understands his text. Our respect for 1609 would be enhanced if we could believe that the editor was Gabriel Harvey, as Todd at one time fancied. But that notion is untenable, and Todd himself abandoned it. We may go further: the editor of 1609 did not belong to the generation of Harvey and Spenser. For this conclusion I will adduce only one piece of evidence, but it is decisive. In the last decade of the sixteenth century syllabic -es in possessives and plurals still lingered even in verse not deliberately archaic. But it was strange to the editor of 1609. Some times he remarks it, and signalizes his discovery by printing it -ez, as 'woundez', 'beastez', 'clothez'. Sometimes he fails to remark it, and fills up the syllable by conjecture: thus 'Nights children' becomes 'Nights drad children' (I. v. 23) 'th'Earthes gloomy shade' becomes 'the Earthes gloomy shade' (III. x. 46). He seems, moreover, to have made little or no use of 1590. When, as sometimes happens, a word has been dropped in 1596, he emends by conjecture: thus at I. ii. 29:—

'For the coole shade him thither hastily got' 1590;

'For the coole shade thither hastily got' 1596;

'For the coole shadow thither hast'ly got' 1609.

Cf. also III. ix. 13, l. 9, III. xi. 26, l. 7, &c. The few instances in which 1590 and 1609 agree as against 1596 may fairly be set down to coincidence.

Yet I am disposed to assign some independent authority to 1609.¹ The grounds for this view are slight, and may be stated in full:—

(1) At I. x. 20, l. 5, 1609 adds the missing line, 'Dry-shod to passe, she parts the flouds in tway.'

(2) At II. viii. 48, l. 8, it corrects 'Sir Guyon' to 'Prince Arthur'.

(3) At III. iii. 50, l. 9, it completes the imperfect Alexandrine by adding 'as earst'.

(4) At III. vi. 45, l. 4, it adds a broken line, 'And dearest loue,' to an eight-line stanza.

(5) At IV. xii. 13, ll. 1, 2, 1596 reads:—

'Thus whilst his stony heart with tender ruth
Was toucht, and mighty courage mollifide';

¹ No such authority, I think, belongs to the 'Second Folio', though it sometimes corrects printer's errors. In the Critical Appendix I have cited some of its characteristic variants in support of this view.

1609 reads:—

'Thus whilst his stony heart was toucht with tender ruth,
And mighty courage something mollifide.'

(6) At V. Proem 11, l. 2, it reads 'stead' for the non-rhyming 'place'.

Of these changes, (2) and (3) are not beyond the capacity of an ordinary editor; yet it is worth noting that 1609 does not correct other confusions of names almost as obvious as (2). Even the missing line (1), Spenserian as it sounds, might conceivably be editorial. But to add a broken line, like (4), seems to me a touch beyond an editor. And (5) is most easily explained by supposing that Spenser altered the text, meaning to omit 'tender', but left that word standing. (6) is an instance of a phenomenon that has already been discussed. The significant point is that this is the only instance of that phenomenon which is corrected in 1609. An editor who corrected one of these mistakes might be expected to correct others; but the author who perpetrated these non-rhymes would more easily overlook them.

The addition of the Mutabilitie cantos in 1609 must be allowed to create a prejudice in favour of the view for which I argue. The editor who recovered so much of Spenser's manuscript may have recovered more: parcels of F. Q., as we have seen, were handed about in London in Spenser's absence. Or—and the form of the variants at IV. xii. 13 makes this the more probable hypothesis—the editor of 1609 may have had a copy of 1596 with some corrections by the author. Finally, it is not impossible that these corrections were actually embodied in exemplars of 1596 which no longer survive. Elizabethan writers were in the habit of correcting sheets as they passed through the press: in F. Q. itself I have noted more than a score of places in which the readings of the copies used for this edition differ from those of other copies in the Bodleian and the British Museum, or of copies used by previous editors and the notes of Church, Upton, and Todd show that they had seen copies which differ in minute points from any now available. As the sheets were probably bound indiscriminately, it is possible that no two exemplars exactly correspond. The charges of careless collation freely bandied among Spenser's editors are sometimes due to this cause.

It remains for me to acknowledge with gratitude the unwearied help that I have received in preparing this edition, first, from my wife, who read 1609 with me twice; next, from my friend Dr. Soutar, of University College, Dundee, who revised the difficult proofs of Books I-III; last, from an unknown coadjutor, Mr. Ostler of the Clarendon Press, to whose skill and vigilance above all I owe whatever measure of accuracy has been secured. An edition like this has little claim to any higher virtue; yet perfect accuracy, even, is too much to hope for in the reproduction, by ordinary typography, of the original spelling and punctuation of a poem which runs to more than 35,000 lines. In the Critical Appendix I have called attention to one or two places in which I have noted what now seem to me to be errors, or on which I have changed my mind since the sheets were printed.

I have also to thank Sir James Murray, Dr. Bradley, and Dr. Craigie for information on points of lexicography; and Mr. Charles Cannan for the protracted loan of his copy of the first folio.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTE.

Of the copies collated for this edition, three are in the Bodleian, viz. :—

- (1) Malone 615, Books I-III, 1590.
 - (2) Malone 616, Books IV-VI, 1596.
 - (3) 4° Art. Seld. S. 22, Books I-VI, 1596 (collated for Books I-III).
- For 1609 I have used (4) a copy belonging to Mr. Charles Cannan.

The following copies, though not collated verbatim, have been examined for variants :—

The bibliographical note on Spenser in the Dictionary of National Biography appears to ignore 4° Art. Seld. S. 22.

The 1590, 1596, 1609 editions of F. Q. have been described already. In 1611 Lownes (the publisher of the 1609 F. Q.) set about a complete edition of Spenser's poems. But having on hand unsold copies of 1609, he incorporated parts of these under the new title-page.¹ This has happened to (6), the first part of which is identical with 1609, except for the title-page and dedication. The genuine 1611 edition of F. Q. I-III is represented by the first part of (14). The second part of (6), bearing date 1612, has been reset: it is identical with the second parts of (7), (13), (14), which bear date 1613. No 1611 edition of F. Q. IV-VII is known to me. But in the footnotes I have followed the custom of citing this 'Second Folio' as 1611, except where readings not found by me in editions prior to 1612-13 have been attributed to 1609 by previous editors, misled perhaps by the omission from the British Museum catalogue of the second title to (13). In the Critical Appendix on Books IV-VII I cite this Second Folio (for these Books) as 16(11)-12-13.

Subsequent editions of Spenser's works:—The folios of 1617, 1679 (the latter said to have been overseen by Dryden); ed. J. Hughes, 1715; H. J. Todd, 1805; F. J. Child, 1855; J. P. Collier, 1862; R. Morris, 1869; A. B. Grosart, 1882-4.

Separate editions of Faerie Queene:—ed. J. Upton, 1758; R. Church, 1758-9; Kate M. Warren, 1897-1900.

Commentaries:—Remarks on Spenser's Poems, by J. Jortin, 1734.

Observations on the Faerie Queene, by T. Warton, 1754.

KNIGHT OF THE RED CROSSE,

OF HOLINESSE.

LO I the man, whose Muse whilome did maske,
As time her taught, in lowly Shepherds weeds,
Am now enforst a far vnfitter taske,
For trumpets sterne to chaunge mine Oaten reeds,
And sing of Knights and Ladies gentle deeds;
Whose prayes hauing slept in silence long,
Me, all too meane, the sacred Muse areeds
To blazon broad emongst her learned throng:
Fierce warres and faithfull loues shall moralize my song.
Helpe then, O holy Virgin chiefe of nine,
Thy weaker Nouice to performe thy will,
Lay forth out of thine everlasting scryne
The antique rolles, where there lye hidden still,
Of Faerie knights and their rest Tanaquill,
Whom that most noble Briton Prince so long Sought through the world, and suffered so much ill,
That I must rue his vnderued wrong:
O helpe thou my weake wit, and sharpen my dull tong.

And thou most dreaded impe of highest Ioue,
 Faire Venus sonne, that with thy cruell dart
 At that good knight so cunningly didst roue,
 That glorious fire it kindled in his hart,
 Lay now thy deadly Heben bow apart,
 And with thy mother milde come to mine ayde :
 Come both, and with you bring triumphant Mart,
 In loues and gentle iollities arrayd,
 After his murdrous spoiles and bloudy rage allayd.
 And with them eke, O Goddesses heauenly bright,
 Mirrour of grace and Maiestie diuine,
 Great Lady of the greatest Isle, whose light
 Like Phæbus lampe throughout the world doth shine,
 Shed thy faire beames into my feeble eyne,
 And raise my thoughts too humble and too vile,
 To thinke of that true glorious type of thine,
 The argument of mine afflicted stile :
 The which to heare, vouchsafe, O dearest dred a-while.

Canto I.

A Gentle Knight was pricking on the plaine,
 AY cladd in mightie armes and siluer shielde,
 Wherein old dints of de : wounds did remaine,
 The cruell markes of many' a bloudy fielede ;
 Yet armes till that time did he neuer wield :
 His angry steede did chide his foming bitt,
 As much disdayning to the curbe to yield :
 Full iolly knight he seemd, and faire did sitt,
 As one for knightly giusts and fierce encounters fitt.

But on his brest a bloudie Crosse he bore,
 The deare remembrance of his dying Lord,
 For whose sweete sake that glorious badge he wore,
 And dead as liuing euer him ador'd :
 Vpon his shield the like was also scor'd,
 For soueraine hope, which in his helpe he had :
 Right faithfull true he was in deede and word,
 But of his cheere did seeme too solemne sad ;
 Yet nothing did he dread, but euer was ydrad.

Vpon a great aduenture he was bond,
 That greatest Gloriana to him gaue,
 That greatest Glorious Queene of Faerie lond,
 To winne him worship, and her grace to haue,
 Which of all earthly things he most did craue ;
 And euer as he rode, his hart did earne
 To proue his puissance in battell braue
 Vpon his foe, and his new force to learne ;
 Vpon his foe, a Dragon horrible and stearne.

ii 1 But] And 1590

A louely Ladie rode him faire beside,
 Vpon a lowly Asse more white then snow,
 Yet she much whiter, but the same did hide
 Vnder a vele, that wimpled was full low,
 And ouer all a blacke stole she did throw,
 As one that inly mournd: so was she sad,
 And heauie sat vpon her palfrey slow:
 Seemed in heart some hidden care she had,
 And by her in a line a milke white lambe she lad.
 So pure an innocent, as that same lambe,
 She was in life and euery vertuous lore,
 And by descent from Royall lynage came
 Of ancient Kings and Queenes, that had of yore
 Their scepters stretcht from East to Western shore,
 And all the world in their subiection held;
 Till that infernall feend with foule vprore
 Forwasted all their land, and them expeld:
 Whom to auenge, she had this Knight from far compeld.
 Behind her farre away a Dwarfe did lag,
 That lasie seemd in being euer last,
 Or wearied with bearing of her bag
 Of needments at his backe. Thus as they past,
 The day with cloudes was suddeine ouercast,
 And angry Ioue an hideous storme of raine
 Did poure into his Lemans lap so fast,
 That euery wight to shrowd it did constrain,
 And this faire couple eke to shroud themselues were fain.
 Enforst to seeke some couert nigh at hand,
 A shadie groue not far away they spide,
 That promist ayde the tempest to withstand:
 Whose loftie trees yclad with sommers pride,
 Did spred so broad, that heauens light did hide,
 Not perceable with power of any starre:
 And all within were pathes and alleies wide,
 With footing worne, and leading inward farre:
 Faire harbour that them seemes; so in they entred arre.

And fourth they passe, with pleasure forward led,
 Ioying to heare the birdes sweete harmony,
 Which therein shrouded from the tempest dred,
 Seemd in their song to scorne the cruell sky.
 Much can they prayse the trees so straight and hy,
 The sayling Pine, the Cedar proud and tall,
 The vine-prop Elme, the Poplar neuer dry,
 The builder Oake, sole king of forrests all,
 The Aspine good for staues, the Cypresse funerall.

 The Mirrhe sweete bleeding in the bitter wound,
 The warlike Beech, the Ash for nothing ill,
 The fruitfull Oliue, and the Platane round,

Led with delight, they thus beguile the way,
 Vntill the blustering storme is ouerblowne ;
 When weening to returne, whence they did stray,
 They cannot finde that path, which first was showne,
 But wander too and fro in wayes vnknowne,
 Furthest from end then, when they neerest weene,
 That makes them doubt, their wits be not their owne :
 So many pathes, so many turnings seene,
 That which of them to take, in diuerse doubt they been.

At last resolving forward still to fare,
 Till that some end they finde or in or out,
 That path they take, that beaten seemd most bare,
 And like to lead the labyrinth about ;
 Which when by tract they hunted had throughout,
 At length it brought them to a hollow caue,
 Amid the thickest woods. The Champion stout
 Eftsoones dismounted from his courser braue,
 And to the Dwarfe a while his needlesse spere he gaue.

x 4 They] The 1596

Be well aware, quoth then that Ladie milde,
 Least suddaine mischiefe ye too rash prouoke:
 The danger hid, the place vnknowne and wilde,
 Breedes dreadfull doubts: Oft fire is without smoke,
 And perill without show: therefore your stroke
 Sir knight with-hold, till further triall made.
 Ah Ladie (said he) shame were to reuoke
 The forward footing for an hidden shade:
 Vertue giues her selfe light, through darknesse for to wade.
 Yea but (quoth she) the perill of this place
 I better wot then you, though now too late
 To wish you backe returne with foule disgrace,
 Yet wisdomes warnes, whilst foot is in the gate,
 To stay the steppe, ere forced to retrate.
 This is the wandring wood, this Errours den,
 A monster vile, whom God and man does hate:
 Therefore I read beware. Fly fly (quoth then The fearefull Dwarfe :) this is no place for liuing men.
 But full of fire and greedy hardiment,
 The youthfull knight could not for ought be staide,
 But forth vnto the darksome hole he went,
 And looked in: his glistring armor made
 A litle glooming light, much like a shade,
 By which he saw the vgly monster plaine,
 Halfe like a serpent horribly displaide,
 But th'other halfe did womans shape retaine,
 Most lothsom, filthie, foule, and full of vile disdaine.
 And as she lay vpon the durtie ground,
 Her huge long taile her den all ouerspred,
 Yet was in knots and many boughtes vpwound,
 Pointed with mortall sting. Of her there bred
 A thousand yong ones, which she dayly fed,
 Sucking vpon her poisonous dugs, eachone
 Of sundry shapes, yet all ill fauored:
 Soone as that vncouth light vpon them shone,
 Into her mouth they crept, and suddain all were gone.

Their dam vpstart, out of her den effraide,
 And rushed forth, hurling her hideous taile
 About her cursed head, whose folds displaid
 Were stretcht now forth at length without entraile.
 She lookt about, and seeing one in mayle
 Armed to point, sought backe to turne againe;
 For light she hated as the deadly bale,
 Ay wont in desert darknesse to remaine,
 Where plaine none might her see, nor she see any plaine.

Which when the valiant Elfe perceiu'd, he leapt
 As Lyon fierce vpon the flying pray,
 And with his trenchand blade her boldly kept
 From turning backe, and forced her to stay:
 Therewith enrag'd she loudly gan to bray,
 And turning fierce, her speckled taile aduaunst,
 Threatning her angry sting, him to dismay:
 Who nought aghast, his mightie hand enhaunst:
 The stroke down from her head vnto her shoulder glaunst.

xvii

xiv

Much daunted with that dint, her sence was dazd,
 Yet kindling rage, her selfe she gathered round,
 And all attonce her beastly body raizd
 With doubled forces high aboue the ground:
 Tho wrapping vp her wrethed sterne arownd,
 Lept fierce vpon his shield, and her huge traine
 All suddenly about his body wound,
 That hand or foot to stirre he stroue in vaine:
 God helpe the man so wrapt in Errours endlesse traine.

xviii

xv

His Lady sad to see his sore constraint,
 Cride out, Now now Sir knight, shew what ye bee,
 Add faith vnto your force, and be not faint:
 Strangle her, else she sure will strangle thee.
 That when he heard, in great perplexitie,
 His gall did grate for grieve and high disdain,
 And knitting all his force got one hand free,
 Wherewith he grypt her gorge with so great paine,
 That soone to loose her wicked bands did her constraîne.

Therewith she spewd out of her filthy maw
 A floud of poyson horrible and blacke,
 Full of great lumps of flesh and gobbets raw,
 Which stunk so vildly, that it forst him slacke
 His grasping hold, and from her turne him backe :
 Her vomit full of bookes and papers was,
 With loathly frogs and toades, which eyes did lacke,
 And creeping sought way in the weedy gras :
 Her filthy parbreake all the place defiled has.

As when old father Nilus gins to swell
 With timely pride about the Aegyptian vale,
 His fattie waues do fertile slime outwell,
 And ouerflow each plaine and lowly dale :
 But when his later spring gins to auale,
 Huge heapes of mudd he leaues, wherein there breed
 Ten thousand kindes of creatures, partly male
 And partly female of his fruitfull seed ;
 Such vgly monstrous shapes elsewhere may no man reed.

The same so sore annoyed has the knight,
 That welnigh choked with the deadly stinke,
 His forces faile, ne can no longer fight.
 Whose corage when the feend perceiu'd to shrinke,
 She poured forth out of her hellish sinke
 Her fruitfull cursed spawne of serpents small,
 Deformed monsters, fowle, and blacke as inke,
 Which swarming all about his legs did crall,
 And him encombred sore, but could not hurt at all.

As gentle Shepheard in sweete euen-tide,
 When ruddy Phæbus gins to welke in west,
 High on an hill, his flocke to vewen wide,
 Markes which do byte their hasty supper best ;
 A cloud of combrous gnattes do him molest,
 All struiing to infixe their feeble stings,
 That from their noyance he no where can rest,
 But with his clownish hands their tender wings
 He brusheth oft, and oft doth mar their murmurings.

Thus ill bestedd, and fearefull more of shame,
 Then of the certaine perill he stood in,
 Halfe furious vnto his foe he came,
 Resolv'd in minde all suddenly to win,
 Or soone to lose, before he once would lin;
 And strooke at her with more then manly force,
 That from her body full of filthie sin
 He raft her hatefull head without remorse;
 A streame of cole black bloud forth gushed from her corse.

Her scattred brood, soone as their Parent deare
 They saw so rudely falling to the ground,
 Groning full deadly, all with troublous feare,
 Gathred themselues about her body round,
 Weening their wonted entrance to haue found
 At her wide neth: but being there withstood
 They flocked all about her bleeding wound,
 And sucked vp their dying mothers blood,
 Making her death their life, and eke her hurt their good.

That detestable sight him much amaze,
 To see th'vnkindly Impes of heauen accurst,
 Deuoure their dam; on whom while so he gazd,
 Hauing all satisfide their bloody thirst,
 Their bellies swolne he saw with fulnesse burst,
 And bowels gushing forth: well worthy end
 Of such as drunke her life, the which them nurst;
 Now needeth him no lenger labour spend,
 His foes haue slaine themselues, with whom he should contend.

His Ladie seeing all, that chaunst, from farre
 Approcht in hast to greet his victorie,
 And said, Faire knight, borne vnder happy starre,
 Who see your vanquisht foes before you lye:
 Well worthy be you of that Armorie,
 Wherein ye haue great glory wonne this day,
 And proou'd your strength on a strong enimie,
 Your first aduenture: many such I pray,
 And henceforth euer wish, that like succeed it may.

Then mounted he vpon his Steede againe,
 And with the Lady backward sought to wend ;
 That path he kept, which beaten was most plaine,
 Ne euer would to any by-way bend,
 But still did follow one vnto the end,
 The which at last out of the wood them brought.
 So forward on his way (with God to frend)
 He passed forth, and new aduenture sought ;
 Long way he trauelled, before he heard of ought.
 At length they chaunst to meet vpon the way
 An aged Sire, in long blacke weedes yclad,
 His feete all bare, his beard all hoarie gray,
 And by his belt his booke he hanging had ;
 Sober he seemde, and very sagely sad,
 And to the ground his eyes were lowly bent,
 Simple in shew, and voyde of malice bad,
 And all the way he prayed, as he went,
 And often knockt his brest, as one that did repent.
 He faire the knight saluted, louting low,
 Who faire him quited, as that courteous was :
 And after asked him, if he did know
 Of straunge aduentures, which abroad did pas.
 Ah my deare Sonne (quoth he) how should, alas,
 Silly old man, that liues in hidden cell,
 Bidding his beades all day for his trespas,
 Tydings of warre and worldly trouble tell ?
 With holy father sits not with such things to mell.
 But if of daunger which hereby doth dwell,
 And homebred euill ye desire to heare,
 Of a straunge man I can you tidings tell,
 That wasteth all this countrey farre and neare.
 Of such (said he) I chiefly do inquere,
 And shall you well reward to shew the place,
 In which that wicked wight his dayes doth weare :
 For to all knighthood it is foule disgrace,
 That such a cursed creature liues so long a space.

Far hence (quoth he) in wastfull wilderness
 His dwelling is, by which no liuing wight
 May euer passe, but thorough great distresse.
 Now (sayd the Lady) draweth toward night,
 And well I wote, that of your later fight
 Ye all forwearied be : for what so strong,
 But wanting rest will also want of might ?
 The Sunne that measures heauen all day long,
 At night doth bate his steedes the Ocean waues emong.

 So with that godly father to his home they went.

A little lowly Hermitage it was,
 Downe in a dale, hard by a forests side,
 Far from resort of people, that did pas
 In trauell to and froe : a little wyde
 There was an holy Chappell edifyde,
 Wherein the Hermite dewly wont to say

 Thereby a Christall streame did gently play,
 Which from a sacred fountaine welled forth alway.

The drouping Night thus creepeth on them fast,
 And the sad humour loading their eye liddes,
 As messenger of Morpheus on them cast
 Sweet slombring deaw, the which to sleepe them biddes.
 Vnto their lodgings then his gwestes he riddes:
 Where when all drownd in deadly sleepe he findes,
 He to his study goes, and there amiddes
 His Magick bookes and artes of sundry kindes,
 He seekes out mighty charmes, to trouble sleepy mindes.
 Then choosing out few wordes most horrible,
 (Let none them read) thereof did verses frame,
 With which and other spelles like terrible,
 He bad awake blacke Plutoes griesly Dame,
 And cursed heauen, and spake reprochfull shame
 Of highest God, the Lord of life and light;
 A bold bad man, that dar'd to call by name
 Great Gorgon, Prince of darknesse and dead night,
 At which Cocytus quakes, and Styx is put to flight.
 And forth he cald out of deepe darknesse dred
 Legions of Sprights, the which like little flyes Fluttring about his euer damned hed,
 A-waite whereto their seruice he applyes,
 To aide his friends, or fray his enimies:
 Of those he chose out two, the falsest twoo,
 And fittest for to forge true-seeming lyes;
 The one of them he gaue a message too,
 The other by him selfe staide other worke to doo.
 He making speedy way through spersed ayre,
 And through the world of waters wide and deepe,
 To Morpheus house doth hastily repaire.
 Amid the bowels of the earth full steepe,
 And low, where dawning day doth neuer peepe,
 His dwelling is; there Tethys his wet bed

And more, to lulle him in his slumber soft,
 A trickling streame from high rocke tumbling downe
 And euer-drizling raine vpon the loft,
 Mixt with a murmuring winde, much like the sowne
 Of swarming Bees, did cast him in a swowne:
 No other noyse, nor peoples troublous cries,
 As still are wont t'annoy the walled towne,
 Might there be heard: but carelesse Quiet lyes,

 But his wast wordes returnd to him in vaine:
 So sound he slept, that nought mought him awake.

 Whereat he gan to stretch: but he againe
 Shooke him so hard, that forced him to speake.

The Sprite then gan more boldly him to wake,
 And threatned vnto him the dreaded name

 And lifting vp his lumpish head, with blame

 He bids thee to him send for his intent

 A diuerse dreame out of his prison darke, Deliuered it to him, and downe did lay
 His heauie head, deuoide of carefull carke,
 Whose sences all were straight benumbd and starke.
 He backe returning by the Yuorie dore,
 Remounted vp as light as chearefull Larke,
 And on his litle winges the dreame he bore
 In hast vnto his Lord, where he him left afore.
 Who all this while with charmes and hidden artes,
 Had made a Lady of that other Spright,
 And fram'd of liquid ayre her tender partes
 So liuely, and so like in all mens sight,
 That weaker sence it could haue rauisht quight :
 The maker selfe for all his wondrous witt,
 Was nigh beguiled with so goodly sight :
 Her all in white he clad, and ouer it
 Cast a blacke stole, most like to seeme for Vna fit.
 Now when that ydle dreame was to him brought,
 Vnto that Elfin knight he bad him fly,
 Where he slept soundly void of euill thought,
 And with false shewes abuse his fantasy,
 In sort as he him schooled priuily :
 And that new creature borne without her dew,
 Full of the makers guile, with vsage sly
 He taught to imitate that Lady trew,
 Whose semblance she did carrie vnder feigned hew.
 Thus well instructed, to their worke they hast,
 And comming where the knight in slomber lay,
 The one vpon his hardy head him plast,
 And made him dreame of loues and lustfull play,
 That nigh his manly hart did melt away,
 Bathed in wanton blis and wicked ioy :
 Then seemed him his Lady by him lay,
 And to him playnd, how that false winged boy
 Her chast hart had subdewd, to learne Dame pleasures toy.

Your owne deare sake forst me at first to leaue
 My Fathers kingdome, There she stopt with teares;
 Her swollen hart her speach seemd to bereaue,
 And then againe begun, My weaker yeares
 Captiu'd to fortune and frayle worldly feares,
 Fly to your faith for succour and sure ayde:
 Let me not dye in languor and long teares.
 Why Dame (quoth he) what hath ye thus dismayd?
 What frayes ye, that were wont to comfort me affrayd?
 Loue of your selfe, she said, and deare constraint
 Lets me not sleepe, but wast the wearie night
 In secret anguish and vn pittied plaint,
 Whiles you in carelesse sleepe are drowned quight.
 Her doubtfull words made that redoubted knight
 Suspect her truth: yet since no vntruth he knew,
 Her fawning loue with foule disdainfull spight
 He would not shend, but said, Deare dame I rew,
 That for my sake vnknowne such grieve vnto you grew.
 Assure your selfe, it fell not all to ground;
 For all so deare as life is to my hart,
 I deeme your loue, and hold me to you bound;
 Ne let vaine feares procure your needlesse smart,
 Where cause is none, but to your rest depart.
 Not all content, yet seemd she to appease
 Her mournfull plaintes, beguiled of her art,
 And fed with words, that could not chuse but please,
 So slyding softly forth, she turnd as to her ease.
 Long after lay he musing at her mood,
 Much grieu'd to thinke that gentle Dame so light,
 For whose defence he was to shed his blood.
 At last dull wearinesse of former fight
 Hauing yrockt a sleepe his irkesome spright,
 That troublous dreame gan freshly tosse his braine,
 With bowres, and beds, and Ladies deare delight:
 But when he saw his labour all was vaine,
 With that misformed spright he backe returnd againe.

Cant. II.

The guilefull great Enchaunter parts
 The Redcrosse Knight from Truith:
 Into whose stead faire falsbood steps,
 And workes him wofull ruth.

BY this tie Northerne wagoner had set
 His seuenfold teme behind the stedfast starre,
 That was in Ocean waues yet neuer wet,
 But firme is fixt, and sendeth light from farre
 To all, that in the wide deepe wandring arre:
 And chearefull Chaunticlere with his note shrill
 Had warned once, that Phæbus fiery carre
 In hast was climbing vp the Easterne hill,
 Full enuious that night so long his roome did fill.
 When those accursed messengers of hell,
 That feigning dreame, and that faire-forged Spright
 Came to their wicked maister, and gan tell
 Their bootelesse paines, and ill succeeding night:
 Who all in rage to see his skilfull might Deluded so, gan threaten hellish paine
 And sad Proserpines wrath, them to affright.
 But when he saw his threatning was but vaine,
 He cast about, and searcht his balefull bookes againe.
 Eftsoones he tooke that miscreated faire,
 And that false other Spright, on whom he spred
 A seeming body of the subtile aire,
 Like a young Squire, in loues and lusty-hed
 His wanton dayes that euer loosely led,
 Without regard of armes and dreaded fight:
 Those two he tooke, and in a secret bed,
 Couered with darknesse and misdeeming night,
 Them both together laid, to ioy in vaine delight.

Forthwith he runnes with feigned faithfull hast
 Vnto his guest, who after troublous sights
 And dreames, gan now to take more sound repast,
 Whom suddenly he wakes with fearefull frights,
 As one aghast with feends or damned sprights,
 And to him cals, Rise rise vnhappy Swaine,
 That here wex old in sleepe, whiles wicked wights
 Haue knit themselues in Venus shamefull chaine;
 Come see, where your false Lady doth her honour staine.

All in amaze he suddenly vp start
 With sword in hand, and with the old man went;
 Who soone him brought into a secret part,
 Where that false couple were full closely ment
 In wanton lust and lewd embracement:
 Which when he saw, he burnt with gealous fire,
 The eye of reason was with rage yblent,
 And would haue slaine them in his furious ire,
 But hardly was restrained of that aged sire.

Returning to his bed in torment great,
 And bitter anguish of his guiltie sight,
 He could not rest, but did his stout heart eat,
 And wast his inward gall with deepe despight,
 Yrkesome of life, and too long lingring night.
 At last faire Hesperus in highest skie
 Had spent his lampe, and brought forth dawning light,
 Then vp he rose, and clad him hastily;
 The Dwarfe him brought his steed: so both away do fly.

Now when the rose-fingred Morning faire,
 Weary of aged Tithones saffron bed,
 Had spred her purple robe through deawy aire,
 And the high hills Titan discovered,
 The royall virgin shooke off drowsy-hed,
 And rising forth out of her baser bowre,
 Lookt for her knight, who far away was fled,
 And for her Dwarfe, that wont to wait each houre;
 Then gan she waile and weepe, to see that woefull stowre.

And after him she rode with so much speede
 As her slow beast could make ; but all in vaine :
 For him so far had borne his light-foot steede,
 Pricked with wrath and fiery fierce disdainē,
 That him to follow was but fruitlesse painē ;
 Yet she her weary limbes would neuer rest,
 But euery hill and dale, each wood and plaine
 Did search, sore griued in her gentle brest,
 He so vnghently left her, whom she loued best.

But subtill Archimago, when his guests
 He saw diuided into double parts,
 And Vna wandring in woods and forrests,
 Th'end of his drift, he praised his diuelish arts,
 That had such might ouer true meaning harts ;
 Yet rests not so, but other meanes doth make,
 How he may worke vnto her further smarts :
 For her he hated as the hissing snake,
 And in her many troubles did most pleasure take.

He then deuise himselfe how to disguise ;
 For by his mightie science he could take
 As many formes and shapes in seeming wise,
 As euer Proteus to himselfe could make :
 Sometime a fowle, sometime a fish in lake,
 Now like a foxe, now like a dragon fell,
 That of himselfe he oft for feare would quake,
 And oft would flie away. O who can tell
 The hidden power of herbes, and might of Magicke spell ?

But now seemde best, the person to put on
 Of that good knight, his late beguiled guest :
 In mighty armes he was yclad anon,
 And siluer shield : vpon his coward brest
 A bloody crosse, and on his crowen crest
 A bounch of haire discoloured diuersly :
 Full iolly knight he seemde, and well address,
 And when he sate vpon his courser free,
Saint George himself ye would haue deemed him to be.

But he the knight, whose semblaunt he did beare,
 The true Saint George was wandred far away,
 Still flying from his thoughts and gealous feare;
 Will was his guide, and grieve led him astray.
 At last him chaunst to meete vpon the way
 A faithlesse Sarazin all arm'd to point,
 In whose great shield was writ with letters gay
Sans foy: full large of limbe and euery ioint
 He was, and cared not for God or man a point.
 He had a faire companion of his way,
 A goodly Lady clad in scarlot red,
 Purfled with gold and pearle of rich assay,
 And like a Persian mitre on her hed
 She wore, with crownes and owches garnished,
 The which her lauish louers to her gaue;
 Her wanton palfrey all was ouerspred
 With tinsell trappings, wouen like a waue,
 Whose bridle rung with golden bells and bosses braue.
 With faire disport and courting dalliaunce
 She intertaine her louer all the way:
 But when she saw the knight his speare aduaunce,
 She soone left off her mirth and wanton play,
 And bad her knight addresse him to the fray:
 His foe was nigh at hand. He prickt with pride
 And hope to winne his Ladies heart that day,
 Forth spurred fast: adowne his coursers side
 The red bloud trickling staine the way, as he did ride.
 The knight of the Redcrosse when him he spide,
 Spurring so hote with rage dispiteous,
 Gan fairely couch his speare, and towards ride:
 Soone meete they both, both fell and furious,
 That daunted with their forces hideous,
 Their steeds do stagger, and amazed stand,
 And eke themselues too rudely rigorous,
 Astonied with the stroke of their owne hand,
 Do backe rebut, and each to other yeeldeth land.

 And fro me hid: of whose most innocent death
 When tidings came to me vnhappy maid,

 Then forth I went his woefull corse to find,
 And many yeares throughout the world I straid,
 A virgin widow, whose deepe wounded mind
 With loue, long time did languish as the stricken hind.

At last it chaunced this proud Sarazin

 And twixt them both was borne the bloody bold Sans loy.

In this sad plight, friendlesse, vnfortunate,
 Now miserable I Fidessa dwell,
 Crauing of you in pittie of my state,
 To do none ill, if please ye not do well.
 He in great passion all this while did dwell,
 More busying his quicke eyes, her face to view,
 Then his dull cares, to heare what she did tell;
 And said, Faire Lady hart of flint would rew
 The vndererued woes and sorrowes, which ye shew.

Henceforth in safe assuraunce may ye rest,
 Hauing both found a new friend you to aid,
 And lost an old foe, that did you molest:
 Better new friend then an old foe is said.

 Till weary of their way, they came at last,
 Where grew two goodly trees, that faire did spread
 Their armes abroad, with gray mosse ouercast,
 And their greene leaues trembling with euery blast,
 Made a calme shadow far in compasse round:
 The fearefull Shepheard often there aghast

 And his new Lady it endured not.
 There they alight, in hope themselues to hide
 From the fierce heat, and rest their weary limbs a tide.

At last whenas the dreadfull passion
 Was ouerpast, and manhood well awake,
 Yet musing at the straunge occasion,
 And doubting much his sence, he thus bespake;
 What voyce of damned Ghost from Limbo lake,
 Or guilefull spright wandring in empty aire,
 Both which fraile men do oftentimes mistake,
 Sends to my doubtfull eares these speaches rare,
 And ruefull plaints, me bidding guiltlesse bloud to spare ?

Then groning deepe, Nor damned Ghost, (quoth he,) Nor guilefull sprite to thee these wordes doth speake,
 But once a man Fradubio, now a tree,
 Wretched man, wretched tree; whose nature weake,
 A cruell witch her cursed will to wreake,
 Hath thus transformd, and plast in open plaines,
 Where Boreas doth blow full bitter bleake,
 And scorching Sunne does dry my secret vaines:
 For though a tree I seeme, yet cold and heat me paines.

Say on Fradubio then, or man, or tree,
 Quoth then the knight, by whose mischieuous arts
 Art thou misshaped thus, as now I see?
 He oft finds med'cine, who his grieve imparts;
 But double griefs afflict concealing harts,
 As raging flames who striueth to suppress.
 The author then (said he) of all my smarts,
 Is one Duessa a false sorceresse,
 That many errant knights hath brought to wretchednesse.

In prime of youthly yeares, when corage hot
 The fire of loue and ioy of cheualree
 First kindled in my brest, it was my lot
 To loue this gentle Lady, whom ye see,
 Now not a Lady, but a seeming tree;
 With whom as once I rode accompanyde,
 Me chaunced of a knight encountred hee,
 That had a like faire Lady by his syde,
 Like a faire Lady, but did fowle Duessa hyde.

 I in defence of mine did likewise stand,
 Mine, that did then shine as the Morning starre:
 So both to battell fierce arraunged arre,
 In which his harder fortune was to fall
 Vnder my speare: such is the dye of warre:
 His Lady left as a prise martiall,
 Did yield her comely person, to be at my call.

xxxvi

So doubly lou'd of Ladies vnlike faire,
 Th'one seeming such, the other such indeede,
 One day in doubt I cast for to compare,
 Whether in beauties glorie did exceede;
 A Rosy girlond was the victors meede:
 Both seemde to win, and both seemde won to bee,
 So hard the discord was to be agreede.
Frelissa was as faire, as faire mote bee,
 And euer false Duessa seemde as faire as shee.

The wicked witch now seeing all this while
 The doubtfull ballaunce equally to sway,
 What not by right, she cast to win by guile,
 And by her hellish science raisd streight way

 And a dull blast, that breathing on her face,
 Dimmed her former beauties shining ray,
 And with foule vgly forme did her disgrace:
 Then was she faire alone, when none was faire in place.

 Eftsoones I thought her such, as she me told,
 And would haue kild her; but with faigred paine,
 The false witch did my wrathfull hand with-hold;
 So left her, where she now is turnd to treen mould.

xxxix

Thens forth I tooke Duessa for my Dame,
 And in the witch vnweeting ioyd long time,
 Ne euer wist, but that she was the same,
 Till on a day (that day is euery Prime,
 When Witches wont do penance for their crime)
 I chaunst to see her in her proper hew,
 Bathing her selfe in origane and thyme:
 A filthy foule old woman I did vew,
 That euer to haue toucht her, I did deadly rew.

xi

Her neather partes misshapen, monstrous,
 Were hidd in water, that I could not see,
 But they did seeme more foule and hideous,
 Then womans shape man would belecue to bee.
 Thens forth from her most beastly companie
 I gan refraine, in minde to slip away,
 Soone as appeard safe opportunitie:
 For danger great, if not assur'd decay
 I saw before mine eyes, if I wer knowne to stray.

The diuelish hag by chaunges of my cheare
 Perceiu'd my thought, and drownd in sleepe night,
 With wicked herbes and ointments did besmeare

 Then brought she me into this desert waste,
 And by my wretched louers side me pight,
 Where now enclosd in wooden wals full faste,

But how long time, said then the Elfin knight,
 Are you in this misformed house to dwell?
 We may not chaunge (quoth he) this euil plight,
 Till we be bathed in a liuing well;

Though faire as euer liuing wight was faire,
Though nor in word nor deede ill meriting,

And her due loues deriu'd to that vile witches share.
Yet she most faithfull Ladie all this while Forsaken, wofull, solitarie mayd
Farre from all peoples prease, as in exile,
In wilderness and wastfull deserts strayd,

Through that late vision, which th'Enchaunter wrought,

Through woods and wastnesse wide him daily sought;
Yet wished tydings none of him vnto her brought.

iii 6 wrought 1590

One day nigh wearie of the yrkesome way,
 From her vnhastie beast she did alight,
 And on the grasse her daintie limbes did lay
 In secret shadow, farre from all mens sight:
 From her faire head her fillet she vndight,
 And laid her stole aside. Her angels face
 As the great eye of heauen shyned bright,
 And made a sunshine in the shadie place;
 Did neuer mortall eye behold such heauenly grace.

It fortun'd out of the thickest wood
 A ramping Lyon rushed suddainly,
 Hunting full greedie after saluage blood;
 Soone as the royall virgin he did spy,
 With gaping mouth at her ran greedily,
 To haue attonce deuour'd her tender corse:
 But to the pray when as he drew more ny,
 His bloudie rage asswaged with remorse,
 And with the sight amazd, forgot his furious forse.

In stead thereof he kist her wearie feet,
 And lickt her lilly hands with fawning tong,
 As he her wronged innocence did weet.
 O how can beautie maister the most strong,
 And simple truth subdue auenging wrong?
 Whose yeelded pride and proud submission,
 Still dreading death, when she had marked long,
 Her hart gan melt in great compassion,
 And drizling teares did shed for pure affection.

The Lyon Lord of euerie beast in field,
 Quoth she, his princely puissance doth abate,
 And mightie proud to humble weake does yield,
 Forgetfull of the hungry rage, which late
 Him prickt, in pittie of my sad estate:
 But he my Lyon, and my noble Lord,
 How does he find in cruell hart to hate
 Her that him lou'd, and euer most adord,
 As the God of my life? why hath he me abhord?

vii 1 field 1590, 1596 6 Lord 1590, 1596

Redounding teares did choke th'end of her plaint,
 Which softly ecchoed from the neighbour wood;
 And sad to see her sorrowfull constraint
 The kingly beast vpon her gazing stood;
 With pittie calmd, downe fell his angry mood.
 At last in close hart shutting vp her paine,
 Arose the virgin borne of heauenly brood,
 And to her snowy Palfrey got againe,
 To seeke her strayed Champion, if she might attaine.
 The Lyon would not leaue her desolate,
 But with her went along, as a strong gard
 Of her chast person, and a faithfull mate
 Of her sad troubles and misfortunes hard:
 Still when she slept, he kept both watch and ward,
 And when she wakt, he waited diligent,
 With humble seruice to her will prepad:
 From her faire eyes he tooke commaundement,
 And euer by her lookes conceiued her intent.
 Long she thus traueiled through deserts wyde,
 By which she thought her wandring knight shold pas,
 Yet neuer shew of liuing wight espyde;
 Till that at length she found the troden gras,
 In which the tract of peoples footing was,
 Vnder the steepe foot of a mountaine hore;
 The same she followes, till at last she has A damzell spyde slow footing her before,
 That on her shoulders sad a pot of water bore.
 To whom approching she to her gan call,
 To weet, if dwelling place were nigh at hand;
 But the rude wench her answer'd nought at all,
 She could not heare, nor speake, nor vnderstand;
 Till seeing by her side the Lyon stand,
 With suddaine feare her pitcher downe she threw,
 And fled away: for neuer in that land
 Face of faire Ladie she before did vew,
 And that dread Lyons looke her cast in deadly hew.

xi 1 Whom 1596 9 dredd 1590

Full fast she fled, ne euer lookt behynd,
 As if her life vpon the wager lay,
 And home she came, whereas her mother blynd
 Sate in eternall night : nought could she say,
 But suddaine catching hold, did her dismay
 With quaking hands, and other signes of feare :
 Who full of ghastly fright and cold affray,
 Gan shut the dore. By this arriued there
 Dame Vna, wearie Dame, and entrance did requere.

xii

Which when none yeilded, her vnruly Page
 With his rude clawes the wicket open rent,
 And let her in ; where of his cruell rage
 Nigh dead with feare, and faint astonishment,
 She found them both in darkesome corner pent ;
 Where that old woman day and night did pray
 Vpon her beades deuoutly penitent ;
 Nine hundred Pater nosters euery day,
 And thrise nine hundred Aues she was wont to say.

xiii

And to augment her painefull pennance more,
 Thrise euery weeke in ashes she did sit,
 And next her wrinkled skin rough sackcloth wore,
 And thrise three times did fast from any bit :
 But now for feare her beads she did forget.
 Whose needlesse head for to remoue away,
 Faire Vna framed words and count'nance fit :
 Which hardly doen, at length she gan them pray,
 That in their cotage small, that night she rest her may.

xiv

The day is spent, and commeth drowsie night,
 When euery creature shrowded is in sleepe ;
 Sad Vna downe her laies in wearie plight,
 And at her feet the Lyon watch doth keepe :
 In stead of rest, she does lament, and weepe
 For the late losse of her deare loued knight,
 And sighes, and grones, and euermore does steepe
 Her tender brest in bitter teares all night,
 All night she thinks too long, and often looks for light.

xv

Now when Aldeboran was mounted hie
 Aboue the shynie Cassiopeias chaire,
 And all in deadly sleepe did drowned lie,
 One knocked at the dore, and in would fure;
 He knocked fast, and often curst, and sware,
 That readie entrance was not at his call:
 For on l's backe a heauy load he bare
 Of nightly stelths and pillage seuerall,
 Which he had got abroad by purchase criminall.

He was to weete a stout and sturdie thiefe,
 Wont to robbe Churches of their ornaments,
 And poore mens boxes of their due reliefe,
 Which giuen was to them for good intents;
 The holy Saints of their rich vestiments
 He did disrobe, when all men carelesse slept,
 And spoild the Priests of their habiliments, Whiles none the holy things in safety kept;
 Then he by cunning sleights in at the window crept.

And all that he by right or wrong could find,
 Vnto this house he brought, and did bestow
 Vpon the daughter of this woman blind,
Abessa daughter of Corceca slow,
 With whom he whoredome vsd, that few did know,
 And fed her fat with feast of offerings,
 And plentie, which in all the land did grow;
 Ne spared he to giue her gold and rings:
 And now he to her brought part of his stolen things.

Thus long the dore with rage and threats he bet,
 Yet of those fearefull women none durst rize,
 The Lyon frayed them, him in to let:
 He would no longer stay him to aduize,
 But open breakes the dore in furious wize,
 And entring is; when that disdainfull beast
 Encountring fierce, him suddaine doth surprize,
 And seizing cruell clawes on trembling brest, Vnder his Lordly foot him proudly hath suppress.

xvi 9 purchas 1590

xvii 9 conning 1590

Him booteth not resist, nor succour call,
 His bleeding hart is in the vengers hand,
 Who streight him rent in thousand peeces small,
 And quite dismembred hath: the thirstie land
 His fearefull friends weare out the wofull night,
 Ne dare to weepe, nor seeme to vnderstand
 The heauie hap, which on them is alight, Affraid, least to themselues the like mishappen might.

xx

Now when broad day the world discouered has,
 Vp Vna rose, vp rose the Lyon eke,
 And on their former iourney forward pas,
 In wayes vnknowne, her wandring knight to seeke,
 With paines farre passing that long wandring Greeke,
 That for his loue refused deitie;
 Such were the labours of this Lady meeke,
 Still seeking him, that from her still did flie,
 Then furthest from her hope, when most she weened nie.

xxi

Soone as she parted thence, the fearefull twaine,
 That blind old woman and her daughter deare
 Came forth, and finding Kirtraine there slaine,
 For anguish great they gan to rend their heare,
 And beat their breasts, and naked flesh to teare.
 And when they both had wept and wayld their fill,
 Then forth they ranne like two amazed deare, Halfe mad through malice, and reuenging will,
 To follow her, that was the cause of their ill.

xxii

Whom ouertaking, they gan loudly bray,
 With hollow howling, and lamenting cry,
 Shamefully at her rayling all the way,
 And her accusing of dishonesty,
 That was the flowre of faith and chastity;
 And still amidst her rayling, she did pray,
 That plagues, and mischiefs, and long misery
 Might fall on her, and follow all the way,
 And that in endlesse error she might euer stray.

xxiii

But when she saw her prayers nought preuaile,
 She backe returned with some labour lost;
 And in the way as she did weepe and waile,
 A knight her met in mighty armes embost,
 Yet knight was not for all his bragging bost,
 But subtill Archimag, that Vna sought
 By traynes into new troubles to haue tost:
 Of that old woman tydings he besought,
 If that of such a Ladie she could tellen ought.

xxiv

Therewith she gan her passion to renew,
 And cry, and curse, and raile, and rend her heare,
 Saying, that harlot she too lately knew,
 That causd her shed so many a bitter teare,
 And so forth told the story of her feare:
 Much seemed he to mone her haplesse chaunce,
 And after for that Ladie did inquire;
 Which being taught, he forward gan aduaunce
 His fair enchanted steed, and eke his charmed launce.

xxv

Ere long he came, where Vna traueild slow,
 And that wilde Champion wayting her besyde:
 Whom seeing such, for dread he durst not show
 Himselfe too nigh at hand, but turnea vye
 Vnto an hill; from whence when she him spyde,
 By his like seeming shield, her knight by name
 She weend it was, and towards him gan ryde:
 Approching nigh, she wist it was the same,
 And with faire fearefull humblesse towards him shee came.

xxvi

And weeping said, Ah my long lacked Lord,
 Where haue ye bene thus long out of my sight?
 Much feared I to haue bene quite abhord,
 Or ought haue done, that ye displeasen might,
 That should as death vnto my deare hart light:
 For since mine eye your ioyous sight did mis,
 My chearefull day is turnd to chearelesse night,
 And eke my night of death the shadow is;
 But welcome now my light, and shining lampe of blis.

xxvii

He thereto meeting said, My dearest Dame, Farre be it from your thought, and fro my will,
 To thinke that knighthood I so much should shame,
 As you to leaue, that haue me loued still,
 And chose in Faery court of meere goodwill,
 Where noblest knights were to be found on earth :
 The earth shall sooner leaue her kindly skill
 To bring forth fruit, and make eternall derth,
 Then I leaue you, my lief, yborne of heauenly berth.

xxviii

And sooth to say, why I left you so long,
 Was for to seeke aduerture in strange place,
 Where Archimago said a felon strong
 That many knights did daily worke disgrace;
 That knight he now shall neuer more deface :
 Good cause of mine excuse; that mote ye please
 Well to accept, and euermore embrace
 My faithfull seruice, that by land and seas
 Haue vovd you to defend, now then your plaint appease.

xxix

His louely words her seemd due recompence
 Of all her passed paines: one louing howre
 For many yeares of sorrow can dispence:
 A dram of sweet is worth a pound of sowre:
 She has forgot, how many a wofull stowre
 For him she late endur'd; she speakes no more
 Of past: true is, that true loue hath no powre
 To looken backe; his eyes be fixt before.
 Before her stands her knight, for whom she toyl'd so sore.

xxx

Much like, as when the beaten marinere,
 That long hath wandred in the Ocean wite,
 Oft soust in swelling Tethys saltish teare,
 And long time hauing tand his tawney hide
 With blustering breath of heauen, that none can bide,
 And scorching flames of fierce Orions hound,
 Soone as the port from farre he has espide,
 His chearefull whistle merrily doth sound
 And Nereus crownes with cups; his mates him pledg around.

xxxi

Such ioy made Vna, when her knight she found ;
 And eke th'enchauter ioyous seemd no lesse,
 Then the glad marchant, that does vew from ground
 His ship farre come from watrie wildernessse,
 He hurles out vowes, and Neptune oft doth blesse :
 So forth they past, and all the way they spent Discoursing of her dreadfull late distresse,
 In which he askt her, what the Lyon ment :
 † Who told her all that fell in iourney as she went.

They had not ridden farre, when they might see
 One pricking towards them with hastie heat,
 Full strongly armd, and on a courser free,
 That through his fiercenesse fomed all with sweat,
 And the sharpe yron did for anger eat,
 When his hot ryder spurd his chauffed side ;
 His looke was sterne, and seemed still to threat
 Cruell reuenge, which he in hart did hyde,
 And on his shield Sans loy in bloudie lines was dyde.

When nigh he drew vnto this gentle payre
 And saw the Red-crosse, which the knight did beare,
 He burnt in fire, and gan eftsoones prepare Himselfe to battell with his couched speare.
 Loth was that other, and did faint through feare,
 To taste th'vntryed dint of dead y steele ;
 But yet his Lady did so well him cheare,
 That hope of new good hap he gan to feele ;
 So bent his speare, and spurd his hors with yron heele.

But that proud Paynim forward came so fierce,
 And full of wrath, that with his sharpe-head speare
 Through vainely crossed shield he quite did pierce,
 And had his staggering steede not shrunke for feare,
 Through shield and bodie eke he should him beare :
 Yet so great was the puissance of his push,
 That from his saddle quite he did him beare :
 He tombling rudely downe to ground did rush,
 And from his gonel wound a well of bloud did gush.

Dismounting lightly from his loftie steed,
 He to him lept, in mind to reauē his life,
 And proudly said, Lo there the worthie meed
 Of him, that slew Sansfoy with bloudie knife;
 Henceforth his ghost freed from repining strife,
 In peace may passen ouer Lethe lake,
 When morning altars purgd with enemies life,
 The blacke infernall Furies doen aslake:
 Life from Sansfoy thou tookst, Sansloy shall from thee take.

xxxvi

Therewith in haste his helmet gan vnlace,
 Till Vna cride, O hold that heauie hand,
 Deare Sir, what euer that thou be in place:
 Enough is, that thy foe doth vanquisht stand
 Now at thy mercy: Mercie not withstand:
 For he is one the truest knight aliue,
 Though conquered now he lie on lowly land,
 And whilst him fortune fauour'd, faire did thriue
 In bloudie field: therefore of life him not deprive.

xxxvii

Her piteous words might not abate his rage,
 But rudely rending vp his helmet, would Haue slaine him straight: but when he sees his age,
 And hoarie head of Archimago old,
 His hastie hand he doth amazed hold,
 And halfe ashamed, wondred at the sight:
 For the old man well knew he, though vntold,
 In charmes and magicke to haue wondrous might,
 Ne euer wont in field, ne in round lists to fight.

xxxviii

And said, Why Archimago, lucklesse syre,
 What doe I see? what hard mishap is this,
 That hath thee hither brought to taste mine yre?
 Or thine the fault, or mine the error is,
 In stead of foe to wound my friend amis?
 He answered nought, but in a traunce still lay,
 And on those guilefull dazed eyes of his
 The cloud of death did sit. Which doen away,
 He left him lying so, ne would no lenger stay.

But to the virgin comes, who all this while Amased stands, her selfe so mockt to see
 By him, who has the guerdon of his guile,
 For so misfeigning her true knight to bee :
 Yet is she now in more perplexitie,
 Left in the hand of that same Paynim bold,
 From whom her booteth not at all to flie ;
 Who by her cleanly garment catching hold,
 Her from her Palfrey pluckt, her visage to behold.

But her fierce seruant full of kingly awe
 And high disdaine, whenas his soueraine Dame
 So rudely handled by her foe he sawe,
 With gaping iawes full greedy at him came,
 And ramping on his shield, did weene the same
 Haue reft away with his sharpe rending clawes :
 But he was stout, and lust did now inflame
 His corage more, that from his griping pawes
 He hath his shield redeem'd, and forth his swerd he drawes.

O then too weake and feeble was the forse
 Of saluage beast, his puissance to withstand :
 For he was strong, and of so mightie corse,
 As euer wielded speare in warlike hand,
 And feates of armes did wisely vnderstand.
 Eftsoones he perced through his chaufed chest
 With thrilling point of deadly yron brand,
 And launcht his Lordly hart : with death opprest
 He roar'd aloud, whiles life forsooke his stubborne brest.

Who now is left to keepe the forlorne maid
 From raging spoile of lawlesse victors will ?
 Her faithfull gard remou'd, her hope dismaid,
 Her selfe a yeelded pray to saue or spill.
 He now Lord of the field, his pride to fill,
 With foule reproches, and disdainfull spight
 Her vildly entertaines, and will or nill,
 Beares her away vpon his courser light :
 Her prayers nought preuaile, his rage is more of might.

And all the way, with great lamenting paine,
 And piteous plaints she filleth his dull eares,
 That stony hart could riuen haue in twaine,
 And all the way she wets with flowing teares:
 But he enrag'd with rancor, nothing heares.
 Her seruile beast yet would not leaue her so,
 But followes her farre off, ne ought he feares,
 To be partaker of her wandring woe,
 More mild in beastly kind, then that her beastly foe.

Cant. IIII.

Young knight, what euer that dost armes professe,
 And through long labours hunttest after fame,
 Beware of fraud, beware of ficklenesse,
 In choice, and change of thy deare loued Dame,
 Least thou of her beleue too lightly blame,
 And rash misweening doe thy hart remoue:
 For vnto knight there is no greater shame,
 Then lightnesse and inconstancie in loue;
 That doth this Redcrosse knights ensample plainly proue.

i

Who after that he had faire Vna lorne,
 Through light misdeeming of her loialtie,
 And false Duessa in her sted had borne,
 Called Fidess', and so supposd to bee;
 Long with her traueild, till at last they see
 A goodly building, brauely garnished,
 The house of mightie Prince it seemd to bee:
 And towards it a broad high way that led,
 All bare through peoples feet, which thither traueiled.

ii

Great troupes of people traueild thitherward
 Both day and night, of each degree and place,
 But few returned, hauing scaped hard,
 With balefull beggerie, or foule disgrace,
 Which euer after in most wretched case,
 Like loathsome lazars, by the hedges lay.
 Thither Duessa bad him bend his pace :
 For she is wearie of the toilesome way,
 And also nigh consumed is the lingring day.

A stately Pallace built of squared bricke,
 Which cunningly was without mortar laid,
 Whose wals were high, but nothing strong, nor thick,
 And golden foile all ouer them displaid,
 That purest skye with brightnesse they dismaid :
 High lifted vp were many loftie towres,
 And goodly galleries farre ouer laid,
 Full of faire windowes, and delightfull bowres ;
 And on the top a Diall told the timely howres.

It was a goodly heape for to behould,
 And spake the praises of the workmans wit ;
 But full great pittie, that so faire a mould
 Did on so weake foundation euer sit :
 For on a sandie hill, that still did flit,
 And fall away, it mounted was full hie,
 That euery breath of heauen shaken it :
 And all the hinder parts, that few could spie,
 Were ruinous and old, but painted cunningly.

Arriued there they passed in forth right ;
 For still to all the gates stood open wide,
 Yet charge of them was to a Porter hight
 Cald Maluent, who entrance none denide :
 Thence to the hall, which was on euery side
 With rich array and costly arras dight :
 Infinite sorts of people did abide
 There waiting long, to win the wished sight
 Of her, that was the Lady of that Pallace bright.

By them they passe, all gazing on them round,
 And to the Presence mount; whose glorious vew
 Their frayle amazed senses did confound:
 In liuing Princes court none euer knew
 Such endlesse riches, and so sumptuous shew;
 Ne Persia selfe, the nourse of pompous pride
 Like euer saw. And there a noble crew
 Of Lordes and Ladies stood on euery side,
 Which with their presence faire, the place much beautifide.

High about all a cloth of State was spred,
 And a rich throne, as bright as sunny day,
 On which there sate most braue embellished
 With royall robes and gorgeous array,
 A mayden Queene, that shone as Titans ray,
 In glistring gold, and peerelesse pretious stone:
 Yet her bright blazing beautie did assay
 To dim the brightnesse of her glorious throne,
 As enuying her selfe, that too exceeding shone.

Exceeding shone, like Phabus fairest childe,
 That did presume his fathers fire wayne,
 And flaming mouthes of steedes vnwonted wilde
 Through highest heauen with weaker hand to rayne;
 Proud of such glory and aduancement vaine,
 While flashing beames do daze his feeble eyen,
 He leaues the welkin way most beaten plaine,
 And rapt with whirling wheelles, inflames the skyen,
 With fire not made to burne, but fairely for to shyne.

So proud she shynd in her Princely state,
 Looking to heauen; for earth she did disdayne,
 And sitting high; for lowly she did hate:
 Lo vnderneath her scornefull feete, was layne
 A dreadfull Dragon with an hideous trayne,
 And in her hand she held a mirrhour bright,
 Wherein her face she often vewed fayne,
 And in her selfe-lou'd semblance tooke delight;
 For she was wondrous faire, as any liuing wight.

vii

Of griesly Pluto she the daughter was,
And sad Proserpina the Queene of hell ;
Yet did she thinke her pearelesse worth to pas
That parentage, with pride so did she swell,
And thundring Ioue, that high in heauen doth dwell,
And wield the world, she claymed for her syre,
Or if that any else did Ioue excell :
For to the highest she did still aspyre,
Or if ought higher were then that, did it desyre.

xi

ide.

viii

And proud Lucifera men did her call,
That made her selfe a Queene, and crownd to be,
Yet rightfull kingdome she had none at all,
Ne heritage of natiue soueraintie,
But did vsurpe with wrong and tyrannie
Vpon the scepter, which she now did hold :
Ne ruld her Realmes with lawes, but pollicie,
And strong aduizement of six wisards old,
That with their counsels bad her kingdome did vphold.

ix

Soone as the Elfin knight in presence came,
And false Duessa seeming Lady faire,
A gentle Husher, Vanitie by name
Made rowme, and passage for them did prepaire :
So goodly brought them to the lowest staire
Of her high throne, where they on humble knee
Making obeysance, did the cause declare,
Why they were come, her royall state to see,
To proue the wide report of her great Maiestee.

x

With loftie eyes, halfe loth to looke so low,
She thanked them in her disdainfull wise,
Ne other grace vouchsafed them to show
Of Princesse worthy, scarce them bad arise.
Her Lordes and Ladies all this while deuise
Themselues to setten forth to straungers sight :
Some frounce their curled haire in courtly guise,
Some prancke their ruffes, and others trimly dight
Their gay attire : each others greater pride does spight.

Goodly they all that knight do entertaine,
 Right glad with him to haue increast their crew:
 But to Duess' each one himselfe did paine
 All kindnesse and faire courtesie to shew;
 For in that court whylome her well they knew:
 Yet the stout Faerie mongst the middest crowd
 Thought all their glorie vaine in knightly vew,

Suddein vpriseth from her stately place

 So forth she comes: her brightnesse brode doth blaze;
 The heapes of people thronging in the hall,
 Do ride each other, vpon her to gaze:
 Her glorious glitterand light doth all mens eyes amaze.

xvi

So forth she comes, and to her coche does clyme,
 Adorned all with gold, and girlonds gay,
 That seemd as fresh as Flora in her prime,
 And stroue to match, in royall rich array,
 Great *Iuno*s golden chaire, the which they say
 The Gods stand gazing on, when she does ride
 To Ioues high house through heauens bras-paued way
 Drawne of faire Pecoocks, that excell in pride,
 And full of Argus eyes their tailes dispredden wide.

xvii

But this was drawne of six vnequall beasts,
 On which her six sage Counsellours did ryde,
 Taught to obay their bestiall beheasts,
 With like conditions to their kinds applyde:
 Of which the first, that all the rest did guyde,
 Was sluggish Idlenesse the nourse of sin;
 Vpon a slouthfull Asse he chose to ryde,
 Arayd in habit blacke, and amis thin,
 Like to an holy Monck, the seruice to begin.

And in his hand his Portesse still he bare,
That much was worne, but therein little red,
For of deuotion he had little care,
Still drownd in sleepe, and most of his dayes ded ;
Scarse could he once vphold his heauie hed,
To looken, whether it were night or day :
May seeme the wayne was very euill led,
When such an one had guiding of the way,
That knew not, whether right he went, or else astray.

From worldly cares himselfe he did esloyne,
And greatly shunned manly exercise,
From euery worke he chalenged essoyned,
For contemplation sake : yet otherwise,
His life he led in lawlesse riotise ;
By which he grew to grieuous malady ;
For in his lustlesse limbs through euill guise
A shaking feuer raignd continually :
Such one was Idlenesse, first of this company.

And by his side rode loathsome Gluttony,
Deformed creature, on a filthie swyne,
His belly was vp-blowne with luxury,
And eke with fatnesse swollen were his eyne,
And like a Crane his necke was long and fyne,
With which he swallowd vp excessiue feast,
For want whereof poore people oft did pyne ;
And all the way, most like a brutish beast,
He spued vp his gorge, that all did him deteast.

In greene vine leaues he was right fitly clad ;
For other clothes he could not weare for heat,
And on his head an yuie girland had,
From vnder which fast trickled downe the sweat :
Still as he rode, he somewhat still did eat,
And in his hand did beare a bouzing can,
Of which he supt so oft, that on his seat
His dronken corse he scarce vpholden can,
In shape and life more like a monster, then a man.

 That from his friend he seldome knew his fo:
 Full of diseases was his carcas blew,
 And a dry dropsie through his flesh did flow:
 Which by misdiet daily greater grew:
 Such one was Gluttony, the second of that crew.
 And next to him rode lustfull Lechery,
 Vpon a bearded Goat, whose rugged haire,
 And whally eyes (the signe of gelosy),
 Was like the person selfe, whom he did beare:
 Who rough, and blacke, and filthy did appeare,
 Vnseemely man to please faire Ladies eye;
 Yet he of Ladies oft was loued deare,
 When fairer faces were bid standen by:
 O who does know the bent of womens fantasy?
 In a greene gowne he clothed was full faire,
 Which vnderneath did hide his filthinesse,
 And in his hand a burning hart he bare,
 Full of vaine follies, and new fanglenesse:
 For he was false, and fraught with ficklenesse,
 And learned had to loue with secret lookes,
 And well could daunce, and sing with ruefulnesse,
 And fortunes tell, and read in louing bookes,
 And thousand other wayes, to bait his fleshly hookes.
 Inconstant man, that loued all he saw,
 And lusted after all, that he did loue,
 Ne would his looser life be tide to law,
 But ioyd weake wemens hearts to tempt and proue
 If from their loyall loues he might then moue;
 Which lewdnesse fild him with reprochfull paine
 Of that fowle euill, which all men reprove,
 That rots the marrow, and consumes the braine:
 Such one was Lecherie, the third of all this traine.

And greedy Auarice by him did ride,
 Vpon a Camell loaden all with gold;
 Two iron coffers hong on either side,
 With precious mettall full, as they might hold,
 And in his lap an heape of coine he told;
 For of his wicked pelfe his God he made,
 And vnto hell him selfe for money sold;
 Accursed vsurie was all his trade,
 And right and wrong ylike in equall ballaunce waide.

His life was nigh vnto deaths doore yplast,
 And thred-bare cote, and cobled shoes he ware,
 Ne scarce good morsell all his life did tast,
 But both from backe and belly still did spare,
 To fill his bags, and richesse to compare;
 Yet chylde ne kinsman liuing had he none
 To leaue them to; but thorough daily care
 To get, and nightly feare to lose his owne,
 He led a wretched life vnto him selfe vnknowne.

Most wretched wight, whom nothing might suffice,
 Whose greedy lust did lacke in greatest store,
 Whose need had end, but no end couetise,
 Whose wealth was want, whose plenty made him pore,
 Who had enough, yet wished euer more;
 A vile disease, and eke in foote and hand
 A griuous gout tormented him full sore,
 That well he could not touch, nor go, nor stand:
 Such one was Auarice, the fourth of this faire band.

And next to him malicious Ennie rode,
 Vpon a rauinous wolfe, and still did chaw
 Betweene his cankred teeth a venemous tode,
 That all the poison ran about his chaw;
 But inwardly he chawed his owne maw
 At neighbours wealth, that made him euer sad;
 For death it was, when any good he saw,
 And wept, that cause of weeping none he had,
 But when he heard of harme, he waxed wondrous glad.

All in a kirtle of discolour'd say
 He clothed was, y painted full of eyes;
 And in his bosome secretly there lay
 An hatefull Snake, the which his taile vptyes
 In many folds, and mortall sting implyes.
 Still as he rode, he gnasht his teeth, to see Those heapes of gold with griple Couetyse,
 And grudged at the great felicitie
 Of proud Lucifera, and his owne companie.
 He hated all good workes and vertuous deeds,
 And him no lesse, that any like did vse,
 And who with gracious bread the hungry feeds,
 His almes for want of faith he doth accuse;
 So euery good to bad he doth abuse:
 And eke the verse of famous Poets witt
 He does backebite, and spightfull poison pues
 From leproous mouth on all, that euer writt:
 Such one vile Ennie was, that fife in row did sitt.
 And him beside rides fierce reuenging Wrath,
 Vpon a Lion, loth for to be led;
 And in his hand a burning brond he hath,
 The which he brandisheth about his hed;
 His eyes did hurle forth sparkles fiery red,
 And stared sterne on all, that him beheld,
 As ashes pale of hew and seeming ded;
 And on his dagger still his hand he held,
 Trembling through hasty rage, when choler in him sweld.
 His ruffin raiment all was staind with blood,
 Which he had spilt, and all to rags yrent,
 Through vnaduized rashnesse woxen wood;
 For of his hands he had no gouernement,
 Ne car'd for bloud in his auengement:
 But when the furious fit was ouerpast,
 His cruell facts he often would repent;
 Yet wilfull man he neuer would forecast,
 How many mischieues should ensue his heedlesse hast.

Full many mischiefes follow cruell Wrath;
 Abhorred bloudshed, and tumultuous strife,
 Vnmanly murder, and vnthrifty scath,
 Bitter despight, with rancours rusty knife,
 And fretting grieve the enemy of life;
 All these, and many euils moe haunt ire,
 The swelling Splene, and Frenzy raging rife,
 The shaking Palsey, and Saint Fraunces fire:
 Such one was Wrath, the last of this vngodly tirc.

And after all, vpon the wagon beame
 Rode Sathan, with a smarting whip in hand,
 With which he forward lasht the laesie teme,
 So oft as Slowth still in the mire did stand.
 Huge routs of people did about them band,
 Showing for ioy, and still before their way
 A foggy mist had couered all the land;
 And vnderneath their feet, all scattered lay
 Dead sculs and bones of men, whose life had gone astray.

So forth they marchen in this goodly sort,
 To take the solace of the open aire,
 And in fresh flowring fields themselues to sport;
 Emongst the rest rode that false Lady faire,
 The fowle Duessa, next vnto the chaire
 Of proud Lucifera, as one of the traine:
 But that good knight would not so nigh repaire,
 Him selfe estraunging from their ioyauce vaine,
 Whose fellowship seemd far vnfit for warlike swaine.

So hauing solaced themselues a space
 With pleasaunce of the breathing fields yfed,
 They backe returned to the Princely Place;
 Whereas an errant knight in armes yclod,
 And heathnish shield, wherein with letters red
 Was writ Sans ioy, they new arriued find:
 Enflam'd with fury and fiers hardy-hed,
 He seemd in hart to harbour thoughts vnkind,
 And nourish bloody vengeance in his bitter mind.

Who when the shamed shield of slaine Sans foy
 He spide with that same Faery champions page,
 Bewraying him, that did of late destroy
 His eldest brother, burning all with rage
 He to him leapt, and that same enuious gage
 Of victors glory from him snatcht away:
 But th'Elfin knight, which ought that warlike wage,
 Disdained to loose the meed he wonne in fray,
 And him rencountring fierce, reskewd the noble pray.
 Therewith they gan to hurtlen greedily,
 Redoubted battaile ready to darrayne,
 And clash their shields, and shake their swords on hy,
 That with their sterre they troubled all the traine;
 Till that great Queene vpon eternall paine
 Of high displeasure, that ensewen might,
 Commaunded them their fury to refraine,
 And if that either to that shield had right,
 In equall lists they should the morrow next it fight.
 Ah dearest Dame, (quoth then the Paynim bold,) Pardon the errour of enraged wight,
 Whom great grieve made forget the raines to hold
 Of reasons rule, to see this recreant knight,
 No knight, but treachour full of false despight
 And shamefull treason, who through guile hath slayn
 The prowest knight, that euer field did fight,
 Euen stout Sans foy (O who can then refrayn?)
 Whose shield he beares renuerst, the more to heape disdayn.
 And to augment the glorie of his guile,
 His dearest loue the faire Fidessa loe
 Is there possessed of the traytour vile,
 Who reapes the haruest sown by his foe,
 Sown in bloody field, and bought with woe:
 That brothers hand shall dearely well requight
 So be, O Queene, you equall fauour showe.
 Him litle answerd th'angry Elfin knight;
 He neuer meant with words, but swords to plead his right.

But threw his gauntlet a a sacred pledge,
 His cause in combat th next day to try:
 So been they parted both, with harts on edge,
 To be aueng'd each on his enemy.
 That night they pas in ioy and iollity,
 Feasting and courting both in bowre and hall;
 For Steward was excessiue Gluttonie,
 That of his plenty poured forth to all;
 Which doen, the Chamberlain Slowth did to rest them call.

Now whenas darkesome night had all displayd
 Her coleblacke curtein ouer brightest skye,
 The warlike youthes on dayntie couches layd,
 Did chace away sweet sleepe from sluggish eye,
 To muse on meanes of hoped victory.
 But whenas Morpheus had with leaden mace
 Arrested all that courtly company,
 Vp-rose Duessu from her resting place,
 And to the Paynims adging comes with silent pace.

Whom broad awake she finds, in troublous fit,
 Forecasting, how his foe he might annoy,
 And him amoues with speaches seeming fit:
 Ah deare Sans ioy, next dearest to Sans foy,
 Cause of my new grieve, cause of my new ioy,
 Ioyous, to see his ymage in mine eye,
 And greeu'd, to thinke how foe did him destroy,
 That was the flowre of grace and cheualrye;
 Lo his Fidessu to thy secret faith I flye.

With gentle wordes he can her fairely greet,
 And bad say on the secret of her hart.
 Then sighing soft, I learne that litle sweet
 Oft tempred is (quoth she) with muchell smart:
 For since my brest was launcht with louely dart
 Of deare Sansfoy, I neuer ioyed howre,
 But in eternall woes my weaker hart
 Haue wasted, louing him with all my powre,
 And for his sake haue felt full many an heauie stowre.

At last when perils all I weened past,
 And hop'd to reape the crop of all my care,
 Into new woes vnweeting I was cast,
 By this false faytor, who vnworthy ware
 His worthy shield, whom he with guilefull snare
 Entrapped slew, and brought to shamefull graue.
 Me silly maid away with him he bare,
 And euer since hath kept in darksome caue,
 For that I would not yeeld, that to Sans-foy I gaue.

But since faire Sunne hath sperst that lowring clowd,
 And to my loathed life now shewes some light,
 Vnder your beames I will me safely shrowd,
 From dreaded storme of his disdainfull spight:
 To you th'inheritance belongs by right
 Of brothers prayse, to you eke longs his loue.
 Let not his loue, let not his restlesse spright
 Be vnreueng'd, that calles to you aboue
 From wandring Stygian shores, where it doth endlesse moue.

Thereto said he, Faire Dame be nought dismaid
 For sorrowes past; their griefe is with them gone:
 Ne yet of present perill be affraid;
 For needlesse feare did neuer vantage none,
 And helplesse hap it booteth not to mone.
 Dead is Sans-foy, his vitall paines are past,
 Though greeued ghost for vengeance deepe do grone:
 He liues, that shall him pay his dewties last,
 And guiltie Elfin bloud shall sacrifice in hast.

xliv

O but I feare the fickle freakes (quoth shee)
 Of fortune false, and oddes of armes in field.
 Why dame (quoth he) what oddes can euer bee,
 Where both do fight alike, to win or yield?
 Yea but (quoth she) he beares a charmed shield,
 And eke enchaunted armes, that none can perce,
 Ne none can wound the man, that does them wield.
 Charmd or enchaunted (answerd he then ferce)
 I no whit reck, ne you the like need to reherce.

i

But faire Fidessa, sithens fortunes guile,
 Or enimies powre hath now captiued you,
 Returne from whence ye came, and rest a while Till morrow next, that I the Elfe subdew,
 And with Sans-foyes dead dowry you endew.
 Ay me, that is a double death (she said)
 With proud foes sight my sorrow to renew:
 Where euer yet I be, my secrete aid
 Shall follow you. So passing forth she him obaid.

Cant. V.

THE noble hart, that harbours vertuous thought,
 And is with child of glorious great intent,
 Can neuer rest, vntill it forth haue brought Th'eternall brood of glorie excellent:
 Such restlesse passion did all night torment
 The flaming corage of that Faery knight,
 Deuizing, how that doughtie turnament
 With greatest honour he atchieuen might;
 Still did he wake, and still did watch for dawning light.

At last the golden Orientall gate
 Of greatest heauen gan to open faire,
 And Phæbus fresh, as bridegrome to his mate,
 Came dauncing forth, shaking his deawie haire:
 And hurld his glistring beames through gloomy aire.
 Which when the wakeful Elfe perceiu'd, streight way
 He started vp, and did him selfe prepaire,
 In sun-bright armes, and battailous array:
 For with that Pagan proud he combat will that day.

And forth he comes into the commune hall,
 Where earely waite him many a gazing eye,
 To weet what end to straunger knights may fall.
 There many Minstrales maken melody,
 To driue away the dull melancholy,
 And many Bardes, that to the trembling chord
 Can tune their timely voyces cunningly,
 And many Chroniclers, that can record
 Old loues, and warres for Ladies doen by many a Lord.
 Soone after comes the cruell Sarazin,
 In wouen maile all armed warily,
 And sternly lookes at him, who not a pin
 Does care for looke of liuing creatures eye.
 They bring them wines of Greece and Araby,
 And daintie spices fetcht from furthest Ynd,
 To kindle heat of corage priuily:
 And in the wine a solemne oth they bynd
 T'obserue the sacred lawes of armes, that are assynd.
 At last forth comes that far renowmed Queene,
 With royall pomp and Princely maiestie;
 She is ybrought vnto a paled greene,
 And placed vnder stately canapee,
 The warlike feates of both those knights to see.
 On th'other side in all mens open vew
Duessa placed is, and on a tree
Sans-foy his shield is hangd with bloody hew:
 Both those the lawrell girlonds to the victor dew.
 A shrilling trompet sownded from on hye,
 And vnto battaill bad them selues addresse:
 Their shining shieldes about their wrestes they tye,
 And burning blades about their heads do blesse,
 The instruments of wrath and heauinesse:
 With greedy force each other doth assayle,
 And strike so fiercely, that they do impresse
 Deepe dinted furrowes in the battred mayle;
 The yron walles to ward their blowes are weake and fraile.

The Sarazin was stout, and wondrous strong,
 And heaped blowes like yron hammers great:
 For after bloud and vengeance he did long.
 The knight was fiers, and full of youthly heat:
 And doubled strokes, like dreaded thunders threat:
 For all for prayse and honour he did fight.
 Both stricken strike, and beaten both do beat,
 That from their shields forth flyeth fire light,
 And helmets hewen deepe, shew marks of eithers might.

So th'one for wrong, the other striues for right:

As when a Gryfon seized of his pray,
 A Dragon fiers encountreth in his flight,
 Through widest ayre making his ydle way,
 That would his rightfull rauine rend away:
 With hideous horror both together smight,
 And souce so sore, that they the heauens affray:
 The wise Southsayer seeing so sad sight,
 Th'amazed vulgar tels of warres and mortall fight.

So th'one for wrong, the other striues for right,

And each to deadly shame would driue his foe:
 The cruell steele so greedily doth bight
 In tender flesh, that streames of bloud down flow,
 With which the armes, that earst so bright did show,
 Into a pure vermillion now are dyde:
 Great ruth in all the gazers harts did grow,
 Seeing the gored woundes to gape so wyde,
 That victory they dare not wish to either side.

At last the Paynim chaunst to cast his eye,

His suddein eye, flaming with wrathfull fyre,
 Vpon his brothers shield, which hong thereby:
 Therewith redoubled was his raging yre,
 And said, Ah wretched sonne of wofull syre, Doest thou sit wayling by black Stygian lake,
 'Whilest here thy shield is hangd for victors hyre,
 And sluggish german doest thy forces slake,
 To after-send his foe, that him may ouertake?

Whom when she found, as she him left in plight,

To wayle his woefull case she would not stay,

But to the easterne coast of heauen makes speedy way.

Where griesly Night, with visage deadly sad,

xx

That Phæbus chearefull face durst neuer view,

And in a foule blacke pitchie mantle clad,

She findes forth comming from her darkesome mew,

Where she all day did hide her hated hew.

Before the dore her yron charet stood,

Alreadie harnesssed for iourney new;

O thou most auncient Grandmother of all,

More old then Ioue, whom thou at first didst breede,

Or that great house of Gods cælestiall,

Which wast begot in Dæmogorgons hall,

And sawst the secrets of the world vnmade,

Why suffredst thou thy Nephewes deare to fall

With Elfin sword, most shamefully betrade?

Lo where the stout Sansioy doth sleepe in deadly shade.

xx

And him before, I saw with bitter eyes
The bold Sansfoy shrink vnderneath his speare;
And now the pray of fowles in field he lyes,
Nor wayld of friends, nor laid on groning beare,
That whylome was to me too dearely deare.
O what of Gods then boots it to be borne,
If old Aueugles sonnes so euill heare?
Or who shall not great Nights children scorne,
When two of three her Nephews are so fowle forlorne.

xx

Vp then, vp dreary Dame, of darknesse Queene,
Go gather vp the reliques of thy race,
Or else goe them auenge, and let be seene,
That dreaded Night in brightest day hath place,
And can the children of faire light deface.
Her feeling speeches some compassion moued
In hart, and chaunge in that great mothers face:
Yet pittie in her hart was neuer proued

xxvii

Then to her yron wagon she betakes,
 And with her beares the fowle welfauourd witch:
 Through mirkesome aire her readie way she makes.
 Her twyfold Teme, of which two blacke as pitch,
 And two were browne, yet each to each vnlich,
 Did softly swim away, ne euer stampe,
 Vnlesse she chaunst their stubborne mouths to twitch;
 Then foming tarre, their bridles they would champe,
 And trampling the fine element, would fiercely rampe.

xxviii

So well they sped, that they be come at length
 Vnto the place, whereas the Paynim lay,
 Deuoid of outward sense, and natiue strength,
 Couerd with charmed cloud from vew of day,
 And sight of men, since his late luckelesse fray.
 His cruell wounds with cruddy bloud congealed,
 They binden vp so wisely, as they may,
 And handle softly, till they can be healed:
 So lay him in her charet, close in night concealed.

xxix

And all the while she stood vpon the ground,
 The wakefull dogs did neuer cease to bay,
 As giuing warning of th'vnwonted sound,
 With which her yron wheelles did them affray,
 And her darke griesly looke them much dismay;
 The messenger of death, the ghastly Owle
 With drearie shriekes did also her bewray;
 And hungry Wolues continually did howle,
 At her abhorred face, so filthy and so fowle.

xxx

xxvii Thence turning backe in silence soft they stole,
 And brought the heauie corse with easie pace
 To yawning gulfe of deepe Auernus hole.
 By that same hole an entrance darke and bace
 With smoake and sulphure hiding all the place,
 Descends to hell: there creature neuer past,
 That backe returned without heauenly grace;
 But dreadfull Furies, which their chaines haue brast,
 And damned sprights sent forth to make ill men aghast.

xxviii By that same way the direfull dames doe driue
 Their mournfull charet, fild with rusty blood,
 And downe to Plutoes house are come biliue:
 Which passing through, on euery side them stood
 The trembling ghosts with sad amazed mood,
 Chattring their yron teeth, and staring wide
 With stonie eyes; and all the hellish brood
 Of feends infernall flockt on euery side,
 To gaze on earthly wight, that with the Night durst ride.

xxlix They pas the bitter waues of Acheron,
 Where many soules sit wailing woefully,
 And come to fiery flood of Phlegeton,
 Whereas the damned ghosts in torments fry,
 And with sharpe shrilling shriekes doe bootlesse cry,
 Cursing high Ioue, the which them thither sent.
 The house of endlesse paine is built thereby,
 In which ten thousand sorts of punishment
 The cursed creatures doe eternally torment.

xxx Before the threshold dreadfull Cerberus
 His three deformed heads did lay along,
 Curled with thousand adders venemous,
 And lilled forth his bloudie flaming tong:
 At them he gan to reare his bristles strong,
 And felly gnarre, vntill dayes enemy
 Did him appease; then downe his taile he hong
 And suffered them to passen quietly:
 For she in hell and heauen had power equally.

 And Sisyphus an huge round stone did reele
 Against an hill, ne might from labour lin;
 There thirstie Tantalus hong by the chin;
 And Tityus fed a vulture on his maw;
Typhæus ioynts were stretched on a gin,
Theseus condemned to endlesse slouth by law,
 And fifty sisters water in leake vessels draw.

They all beholding worldly wights in place,
 Leaued off their worke, vnmindfull of their smart,

 Till they be come vnto the furthest part:
 Where was a Caue ywrought by wondrous art,
 Deepe, darke, vneacie, dolefull, comfortlesse,
 In which sad Æsculapius farre a part
 Emprisoned was in chaines remedillesse,
 For that Hippolytus rent corse he did redresse.

Hippolytus a iolly huntsman was,
 That wont in charet chace the foming Bore;
 He all his Peeres in beautie did surpas,
 But Ladies loue as losse of time forbore:
 His wanton stepdame loued him the more,
 But when she saw her offred sweets refused
 Her loue she turnd to hate, and him before
 His father fierce of treason false accused,
 And with her gealous termes his open eares abused.

Who all in rage his Sea-god syre besought,
 Some cursed vengeance on his sonne to cast:
 From surging gulf two monsters straight were brought,
 With dread whereof his chasing steedes aghast,
 Both charet swift and huntsman ouercast.
 His goodly corps on ragged cliffs yrent,
 Was quite dismembred, and his members chast
 Scattered on euery mountaine, as he went,
 That of Hippolytus was left no monument.

His cruell stepdame seeing what was donne,
 Her wicked dayes with wretched knife did end,
 In death auowing th'innocence of her sonne.
 Which hearing his rash Syre, began to rend
 His haire, and hastie tongue, that did offend:
 Tho gathering vp the relicks of his smart
 By Dianes meanes, who was Hippolyts frend,
 Them brought to Æsculape, that by his art
 Did heale them all againe, and ioyned euery part.

Such wondrous science in mans wit to raine
 When Ioue auizd, that could the dead reuiue,
 And fates expired could renew againe,
 Of endlesse life he might him not depriue,
 But vnto hell did thrust him downe aliue,
 With flashing thunderbolt ywounded sore:
 Where long remaining, he did alwaies striue
 Himselfe with salues to health for to restore,
 And slake the heauenly fire, that raged euermore.

There auncient Night arriuing, did alight
 From her nigh wearie waine, and in her armes
 To Æsculapius brought the wounded knight:
 Whom hauing softly disarayd of armes,
 Tho gan to him discouer all his harmes,
 Beseeching him with prayer, and with praise,
 If either salues, or oyles, or herbes, or charmes
 A fordonne wight from dore of death mote raise,
 He would at her request prolong her nephews daies.

Ah Dame (quoth he) thou temptest me in vaine,
 To dare the thing, which daily yet I rew,
 And the old cause of my continued paine
 With like attempt to like end to renew.
 Is not enough, that thrust from heauen dew
 Here endlesse penance for one fault I pay,
 But that redoubled crime with vengeance new Thou biddest me to eeke? Can Night defray
 The wrath of thundring Ioue, that rules both night and day?

 Why fearest thou, that canst not hope for thing,
 And fearest not, that more thee hurten might,

There was that great proud king of Babylon,
 That would compell all nations to adore,
 And him as onely God to call vpon,
 Till through celestiall doome throwne out of dore,
 Into an Oxe he was transform'd of yore:
 There also was king Cræsus, that enhaunst
 His heart too high through his great riches store;
 And proud Antiochus, the which aduaunst
 His cursed hand gainst God, and on his altars daunst.

And them long time before, great Nimrod was,
 That first the world with sword and fire warrayd;
 And after him old Ninus farre did pas
 In princely pompe, of all the world obayd;
 There also was that mightie Monarch layd
 Low vnder all, yet aboue all in pride,
 That name of natieue syre did fowle vpbrayd,
 And would as Ammons sonne be magnifide,
 Till scornd of God and man a shamefull death he dide.

All these together in one heape were throwne,
 Like carkases of beasts in butchers stall.
 And in another corner wide were strowne
 The antique ruines of the Romaines fall:
 Great Romulus the Grandsyre of them all,
 Proud Tarquin, and too lordly Lentulus,
 Stout Scipio, and stubborne Hanniball,
 Ambitious Sylla, and sterne Marius,
 High Cæsar, great Pompey, and fierce Antonius.

Amongst these mighty men were wemen mixt,
 Proud wemen, vaine, forgetfull of their yoke:
 The bold Semiramis, whose sides transfixt
 With sonnes owne blade, her fowle reproches spoke;
 Faire Sthenobæa, that her selfe did choke
 With wilfull cord, for wanting of her will;
 High minded Cleopatra, that with stroke
 Of Aspes sting her selfe did stoutly kill:
 And thousands moe the like, that did that dongeon fill.

Besides the endlesse routs of wretched thralls,
 Which thither were assembled day by day,
 From all the world after their wofull falles,
 Through wicked pride, and wasted wealthes decay.
 But most of all, which in that Dongeon lay
 Fell from high Princes courts, or Ladies bowres,
 Where they in idle pompe, or wanton play,
 Consumed had their goods, and thriflesse howres,
 And lastly throwne themselues into these heauy stowres.

Whose case when as the carefull Dwarfe had tould,
 And made ensample of their mournfull sight
 Vnto his maister, he no lenger would
 There dwell in perill of like painefull plight,
 But early rose, and ere that dawning light
 Discouered had the world to heauen wyde,
 He by a priuie Posterne tooke his flight,
 That of no enuious eyes he mote be spyde:
 For doubtlesse death ensewd, if any him descryde.

Scarse could he footing find in that fowle way,
 For many corses, like a great Lay-stall
 Of mured men which therein strowed lay,
 Without remorse, or decent funerall:
 Which all through that great Princesse pride did fall
 And came to shamefull end. And them beside Forth ryding vnderneath the castell wall,
 A donghill of dead carkases he spide,
 The dreadfull spectacle of that sad house of Pride.

AS when a ship, that flyes faire vnder saile,
 An hidden rocke escaped hath vnwares,
 That lay in waite her wrack for to bewaile,
 The Marriner yet halfe amazed stares
 At perill past, and yet in doubt ne dares
 To ioy at his foole-happie ouersight :
 So doubly is distrest twixt ioy and cares
 The dreadlesse courage of this Elfin knight,
 Hauing escapt so sad ensamples in his sight.

Yet sad he was that his too hastie speed
 The faire Duess' had forst him leaue behind ;
 And yet more sad, that Vna his deare dreed
 Her truth had staine with treason so vnkind ;
 Yet crime in her could neuer creature find,
 But for his loue, and for her owne selfe sake,
 She wandred had from one to other Ynd,
 Him for to seeke, ne euer would forsake,
 Till her vnwares the fierce Sansloy did ouertake.

Who after Archimagoes fowle defeat,
 Led her away into a forrest wilde,
 And turning wrathfull fire to lustfull heat,
 With beastly sin thought her to haue defilde,
 And made the vassall of his pleasures vilde.
 Yet first he cast by treatie, and by traynes,
 Her to perswade, that stubborne fort to yilde :
 For greater conquest of hard loue he gaynes,
 That wo-kes it to his will, then he that it constraines.

With fawning wordes he courted her a while,
 And looking louely, and oft sighing sore,
 Her constant hart did tempt with diuerse guile:
 But wordes, and lookes, and sighes she did abhore,
 As rocke of Diamond stedfast euermore.
 Yet for to feed his fyrie lustfull eye,
 He snatcht the vele, that hong her face before;
 Then gan her beautie shine, as brightest skye,
 And burnt his beastly hart t'efforce her chastitye.

So when he saw his flatt'ring arts to fayle,
 And subtile engines bet from batteree,
 With greedy force he gan the fort assayle,
 Whereof he weend possessed soone to bee,
 And win rich spoile of ransackt chastetee.
 Ah heauens, that do this hideous act behold,
 And heauenly virgin thus outraged see,
 How can ye vengeance iust so long withhold,
 And hurle not flashing flames vpon that Paynim bold?

The pitteous maiden carefull comfortlesse,
 Does throw out thrilling shriekes, and shrieking cries,
 The last vaine helpe of womens great distresse,
 And with loud plaints importuneth the skyes,
 That molten starres do drop like weeping eyes;
 And Phæbus flying so most shamefull sight,
 His blushing face in foggy cloud implies,
 And hides for shame. What wit of mortall wight
 Can now deuise to quit a thrall from such a plight?

Eternall prouidence exceeding thought,
 Where none appeares can make her selfe a way:
 A wondrous way it for this Lady wrought,
 From Lyons clawes to pluck the griped pray.
 Her shrill outcries and shriekes so loud did bray,
 That all the woodes and forestes did resownd;
 A troupe of Faunes and Satyres far away
 Within the wood were dauncing in a rownd, Whiles old Sylvanus slept in shady arber rownd.

iv Who when they heard that pittcouſ ſtrained voice,
 In haſt forſooke their rurall meriment,
 And ran towards the far rebownded noyce,
 To weet, what wight ſo loudly did lament.
 Vnto the place they come incontinent:
 Whom when the raging Sarazin eſpide,
 A rude, miſſhapen, monſtrous rablement,
 Whoſe like he neuer ſaw, he durſt not bide,
 But got his ready ſteed, and faſt away gan ride.

v The wyld woodgods arriued in the place,
 There find the virgin dolefull deſolate,
 With ruffled rayments, and faire blubbred face,
 As her outrageous foe had left her late,
 And trembling yet through feare of former hate;
 All ſtand amazed at ſo vncouth ſight,
 And gin to pittie her vnhappie ſtate,
 All ſtand aſtonied at her beautie bright,
 In their rude eyes vnworthie of ſo wofull plight.

vi She more amaz'd, in double dread doth dwell;
 And euery tender part for feare does ſhake:
 As when a greedie Wolfe through hunger fell
 A ſeely Lambe farre from the flocke does take,
 Of whom he meanes his bloudie feaſt to make,
 A Lyon ſpyes faſt running towards him,
 The innocent pray in haſt he does forſake,
 Which quit from death yet quakes in euery lim
 With chaunge of feare, to ſee the Lyon looke ſo grieu.

vii Such fearefull fit aſſaid her trembling hart, Ne word to ſpeake, ne ioynt to moue ſhe had:
 The ſaluage nation feels her ſecret ſmart,
 And read her ſorrow in her count'nance ſad,
 Their frowning forheads with rough hornes yclad,
 And ruſticke horror all a ſide doe lay,
 And gently grenning, ſhew a ſemblance glad
 To comfort her, and feare to put away,
 Their backward bent knees teach her humbly to obay.

The doubtfull Damzell dare not yet commit
 Her single person to their barbarous truth,
 But still twixt feare and hope amazd does sit,
 Late learnd what harme to hastie trust ensu'th,
 They in compassion of her tender youth,
 And wonder of her beautie soueraine,
 Are wonne with pittie and vnwonted ruth,
 And all prostrate vpon the lowly plaine,
 Do kisse her feete, and fawne on her with count'nance faine.

Their harts she ghesseeth by their humble guise,
 And yieldees her to extremitie of time;
 So from the ground she fearelesse doth arise,
 And walketh forth without suspect of crime:
 They all as glad, as birdes of ioyous Prime,
 Thence lead her forth, about her dauncing round,
 Shouting, and singing all a shepheards ryme,
 And with greene braunches strowing all the ground,
 Do worship her, as Queene, with oliue girlond cround.

And all the way their merry pipes they sound,
 That all the woods with doubled Echo ring,
 And with their horned feet do weare the ground,
 Leaping like wanton kids in pleasant Spring.
 So towards old Syluanus they her bring;
 Who with the noyse awaked, commeth out,
 To weete the cause, his weake steps gouerning,
 And aged limbs on Cypresse stadle stout,
 And with an yuie twyne his wast is girt about.

Far off he wonders, what them makes so glad,
 Or Bacchus merry fruit they did inuent,
 Or Cybeles franticke rites haue made them mad;
 They drawing nigh, vnto their God present
 That flowre of faith and beautie excellent.
 The God himselfe vewing that mirrhour rare,
 Stood long amazd, and burnt in his intent;
 His owne faire Dryope now he thinkes not faire,
 And Pholoe fowle, when her to this he doth compaire.

The woodborne people fall before her flat,
 And worship her as Goddesses of the wood;
 And old Syluanns selfe bethinkes not, what
 To thinke of wight so faire, but gazing stood,
 In doubt to deeme her borne of earthly brood;
 Sometimes Dame Venus selfe he seemes to see,
 But Venus neuer had so sober mood;
 Sometimes Diana he her takes to bee,
 But misseth bow, and shaftes, and buskins to her knee.

By vew of her he ginneth to reuiue
 His ancient loue, and dearest Cyparisse,
 And calles to mind his pourtraiture aliue,
 How faire he was, and yet not faire to this,
 And how he slew with glauncing dart amisse
 A gentle Hynd, the which the louely boy
 Did loue as life, aboue all worldly blisse;
 For griefe whereof the lad n'ould after ioy,
 But pynd away in anguish and selfe-wild annoy.

The wooddy Nymphes, faire Hamadryades
 Her to behold do thither runne apace,
 And all the troupe of light-foot Naiades,
 Flocke all about to see her louely face:
 But when they vewed haue her heauenly grace,
 They enuie her in their malitious mind,
 And fly away for feare of fowle disgrace:
 But all the Satyres scorne their woody kind,
 And henceforth nothing faire, but her on earth they find.

Glad of such lucke, the luckelesse lucky maid,
 Did her content to please their feeble eyes,
 And long time with that saluage people staid,
 To gather breath in many miseries.
 During which time her gentle wit she plyes,
 To teach them truth, which worshipt her in vaine,
 And made her th'Image of Idolatryes;
 But when their bootlesse zeale she did restraine
 From her own worship, they her Asse would worship fayn.

It fortun'd a noble warlike knight
 By iust occasion to that Forrest came,
 To seeke his kindred, and the lignage right,
 From whence he tooke his well deserued name:
 He had in armes abroad wonne muchell fame,
 And fild far landes with glorie of his might,
 Plaine, faithfull, true, and enemy of shame,
 And euer lou'd to fight for Ladies right,
 But in vaine glorious frayes he litle did delight.

A Satyres sonne yborne in Forrest wyld,
 By straunge aduenture as it did betyde,
 And there begotten of a Lady myld,
 Faire Thyamis the daughter of Labryde,
 That was in sacred bands of wedlocke tyde
 To Therion, a loose vnruly swayne;
 Who had more ioy to raunge the Forrest wyde,
 And chase the saluage beast with busie payne,
 Then serue his Ladies louc, and wast in pleasures vayne.

The forlorne mayd did with loues longing burne,
 And could not lacke her louers company,
 But to the wood she goes, to serue her turne,
 And seeke her spouse, that from her still does fly,
 And followes other game and venery:
 A Satyre chaunst her wandring for to find,
 And kindling coles of lust in brutish eye,
 The loyall links of wedlocke did vnbind,
 And made her person thrall vnto his beastly kind.

So long in secret cabin there he held
 Her captiue to his sensuall desire,
 Till that with timely fruit her belly sweld,
 And bore a boy vnto that saluage sire:
 Then home he suffred her for to retire,
 For ransome leauing him the late borne childe;
 Whom till to ryper yeares he gan aspire,
 He noursled vp in life and manners wilde,
 Emongst wild beasts and woods, from lawes of men exilde.

For all he taught the tender ymp, was but
 To banish cowardize and bastard feare;
 His trembling hand he would him force to put Vpon the Lyon and the rugged Beare,
 And from the she Beares teats her whelps to teare;
 And eke wyld roring Buls he would him make
 To tame, and ryde their backes not made to beare;
 And the Robuckes in flight to ouertake,
 That euery last for feare of him did fly and quake.

Thereby so fearelesse, and so fell he grew,
 That his owne sire and maister of his guise
 Did often tremble at his horrid vew,
 And oft for dread of hurt would him aduise,
 The angry beasts not rashly to despise,
 Nor too much to prouoke; for he would learne
 The Lyon stoup to him in lowly wise,
 (A lesson hard) and make the Libbard sterne
 Leauē roaring, when in rage he for reuenge did earne.

And for to make his powre approued more,
 Wyld beasts in yron yokes he would compell;
 The spotted Panther, and the tusked Bore,
 The Pardale swift, and the Tigre cruell;
 The Antelope, and Wolfe both fierce and fell;
 And them constraine in equall tēme to draw.
 Such ioy he had, their stubborne harts to quell,
 And sturdie courage tame with dreadfull aw,
 That his beheast they feared, as a tyrans law.

His louing mother came vpon a day
 Vnto the woods, to see her little sonne;
 And chaunst vnwares to meet him in the way,
 After his sportes, and cruell pastime donne,
 When after him a Lyonesse did runne,
 That roaring all with rage, did lowd requere
 Her children deare, whom he away had wonne:
 The Lyon whelpes she saw how he did beare,
 And lull in rugged armes, withouten childish feare.

The fearefull Dame all quaked at the sight,
 And turning backe, gan fast to fly away,
 Vntill with loue reuokt from vaine affright,
 She hardly yet perswaded was to stay,
 And then to him these womanish words gan say;
 Ah Satyrene, my dearling, and my ioy,
 For loue of me leaue off this dreadfull play;
 To dally thus with death, is no fit toy,
 Go find some other play-fellowes, mine own sweet boy.
 In these and like delights of bloudy game
 He trayned was, till ryper yeares he raught,
 And there abode, whilst any beast of name
 Walkt in that forest, whom he had not taught
 To feare his force: and then his courage haught
 Desird of forreine foemen to be knowne,
 And far abroad for straunge aduentures sought:
 In which his might was neuer ouerthrowne,
 But through all Faery lond his famous worth was blown.
 Yet euermore it was his manner faire,
 After long labours and aduentures spent,
 Vnto those natie woods for to repaire,
 To see his sire and ofspring auncient.
 And now he thither came for like intent;
 Where he vnwares the fairest Vna found
 Straunge Lady, in so straunge habiliment,
 Teaching the Satyres, which her sat around,
 Trew sacred lore, which from her sweet lips did redound.
 He wondred at her wisdoms heauenly rare,
 Whose like in womens wit he neuer knew;
 And when her curteous deeds he did compare,
 Gan her admire, and her sad sorrowes rew,
 Blaming of Fortune, which such troubles threw,
 And ioyd to make prooffe of her crueltie

 Then forth he kept her goodly company,

But she all vowd vnto the Redcrosse knight,
His wandring perill closely did lament,
Ne in this new acquaintaunce could delight,
But her deare heart with anguish did torment,
And all her wit in secret counsels spent,
How to escape. At last in priuie wise
To Satyrane she shewed her intent;
Who glad to gain such fauour, gan deuise,
How with that pensieue Maid he best might thence arise.

So on a day when *Satyr*es all were gone,
To do their seruice to Syluana. Id,
The gentle virgin left behind one
He led away with courage stout and bold.
Too late it was, to *Satyr*es to be told,
Or euer hope recouer her againe:
In vaine he seekes that hauing cannot hold.
So fast he carried her with carefull paine,
That they the woods are past, and come now to the plaine.

The better part now of the lingring day,
They traueild had, when as they farre espide
A wearie wight forwandring by the way,
And towards him they gan in hast to ride,
To weet of newes, that did abroad betide,
Or tydings of her knight of the Redcrosse.
But he them spying, gan to turne aside,
For feure as seemd, or for some feigned losse;
More greedy they of newes, fast toward him do crosse.

A silly man, in simple weedes forworne,
And soild with dust of the long dried way;
His sandales were with toile some trauell torne,
And face all tand with scorching sunny ray,
As he had traueild many a sommers day,
Through boyling sands of Arabie and Inde;
And in his hand a Iacobs staffe, to stay
His wearie limbes vpon: and eke behind,
His scrip did hang, in which his needments he did bind.

The knight approaching nigh, of him inquerd Tydings of warre, and of aduentures new;
 But warres, nor new aduentures none he herd.
 Then Vna gan to aske, if ought he knew,
 Or heard abroad of that her champion trew,
 That in his armour bare a croslet red.
 Aye me, Deare dame (quoth he) well may I rew
 To tell the sad sight, which mine eies haue red:
 These eyes did see that knight both liuing and eke ded.

xxxvi

That cruell word her tender hart so thrild,
 That suddein cold did runne through euery vaine,
 And stony horror all her sences fild
 With dying fit, that downe she fell for paine.
 The knight her lightly reared vp againe,
 And comforted with curteous kind reliefe:
 Then wonne from death, she bad him tellen plaine
 The further processe of her hidden grieve;
 The lesser pangs can beare, who hath endur'd the chiefe.

xxxvii

Then gan the Pilgrim thus, I chaunst this day,
 This fatall day, that shall I euer rew,
 To see two knights in trauell on my way
 (A sory sight) arraung'd in battell new,
 Both breathing vengeaunce, both of wrathfull hew:
 My fearefull flesh did tremble at their strife,
 To see their blades so greedily imbrew,
 That drunke with bloud, yet thirsted after life:
 What more? the Redcrosse knight was slaine with Paynim knife.

 That hast with knightlesse guile and trecherous train
 Faire knighthood fowly shamed, and doest vaunt
 That good knight of the Redcrosse to haue slain:
 Arise, and with like treason now maintain
 Thy guilty wrong, or else thee guilty yield.
 The Sarazin this hearing, rose amain,
 And catching vp in hast his three square shield,
 And shining helmet, soone him buckled to the field.
 And drawing nigh him said, Ah misborne Elfe,
 In euill houre thy foes thee hither sent,
 Anothers wrongs to wreake vpon thy selfe:
 Yet ill thou blamest me, for hauing blent
 My name with guile and traiterous intent;
 That Redcrosse knight, perdie, I neuer slew,
 But had he beene, where earst his armes were lent,
 Th'enchauter vaine his errour should not rew:
 But thou his errour shalt, I hope now prouen trew.
 Therewith they gan, both furious and fell,
 To thunder blowes, and fiersly to assaile
 Each other bent his enemy to quell,
 That with their force they perst both plate and maile,
 And made wide furrowes in their fleshes fraile,
 That it would pittie any liuing eie.
 Large floods of bloud adowne their sides did raile;
 But floods of bloud could not them satisfie:
 Both hungred after death: both chose to win, or die.

So long they fight, and fell reuenge pursue,
 That fainting each, themselues to breathe let,
 And oft refreshed, battell oft renue:
 As when two Bores with rancling malice met,
 Their gory sides fresh bleeding fiercely fret,
 Til breathlesse both them selues aside retire,
 Where foming wrath, their cruell tuskes they whet,
 And trample th'earth, the whiles they may respire;
 Then backe to fight againe, new breathed and entire.

xlii

So fiersly, when these knights had breathed once,
 They gan to fight returne, increasing more
 Their puissant force, and cruell rage attonce,
 With heaped strokes more hugely, then before,
 That with their drerie wounds and bloody gore
 They both deformed, scarsely could be known.
 By this sad Vna fraught with anguish sore,
 Led with their noise, which through the aire was thrown,
 Arriu'd, where they in erth their fruitles bloud had sown.

xliii

Whom all so soone as that proud Sarazin
 Espide, he gan reuiue the memory
 Of his lewd lusts, and late attempted sin,
 And left the doubtfull battell hastily,
 To catch her, newly offred to his eie:
 But Satyran with strokes him turning, staid,
 And sternely bad him other businesse plie,
 Then hunt the steps of pure vnspotted Maid:
 Wherewith he all enrag'd, these bitter speeches said.

xliv

O foolish faeries sonne, what furie mad
 Hath thee incenst, to hast thy dolefull fate?
 Were it not better, I that Lady had,
 Then that thou hadst repented it too late?
 Most sencelesse man he, that himselfe doth hate,
 To loue another. Lo then for thine ayd
 Here take thy louers token on thy pate.
 So they to fight; the whiles the royall Mayd Fled farre away, of that proud Paynim sore afrajd.

xlviii

But that false Pilgrim, which that leasing told,
Being in deed old Archimage, did stay
In secret shadow, all this to behold,
And much reioyced in their bloudy fray:
But when he saw the Damsell passe away
He left his stond, and her pursewd apace,
In hope to bring her to her last decay.
But for to tell her lamentable cace,
And eke this battels end, will need another place.

Cant. VII.

What man so wise, what earthly wit so ware,
As to descry the crafty cunning traine,
By which deceit doth maske in visour faire,
And cast her colours dyed deepe in graine,
To seeme like Truth, whose shape she well can faine,
And fitting gestures to her purpose frame,
The guiltlesse man with guile to entertaine?
Great maistresse of her art was that false Dame,
The false Duessa, cloked with Fidessaes name.

Who when returning from the drery Night,
She fownd not in that perilous house of Pryde,
Where she had left, the noble Redcrosse knight,
Her hoped pray, she would no lenger bide,
But forth she went, to seeke him far and wide.
Ere long she fownd, whereas he wearie sate,
To rest him selfe, foreby a fountaine side,
Disarmed all of yron-coted Plate,
And by his side his steed the grassy forage ate.

He feedes vpon the cooling shade, and bayes iii
 His sweatie forehead in the breathing wind,
 Which through the trembling leaues full gently plays
 Wherein the cherefull birds of sundry kind
 Do chaunt sweet musick, to delight his mind:
 The Witch approching gan him fairely greet,
 And with reproch of carelesnesse vnkind
 Vpbrayd, for leauing her in place vnmeet,
 With fowle words tempring faire, soure gall with hony sweet.
 Vnkindnesse past, they gan of solace treat, iv
 And bathe in pleasaunce of the ioyous shade,
 Which shielded them against the boyling heat,
 And with greene boughes decking a glcomy glade,
 About the fountaine like a girlond made;
 Whose bubbling waue did euer freshly well,
 Ne euer would through feruent sommer fade:
 The sacred Nymph, which therein wont to dwell,
 Was out of Dianes fauour, as it then befell.
 The cause was this: one day when Phabe fayre v
 With all her band was following the chace,
 This Nymph, quite tyr'd with heat of scorching ayre
 Sat downe to rest in midst of the race:
 The goddesse wroth gan fowly her disgrace,
 And bad the waters, which from her did flow,
 Be such as she her selfe was then in place.
 Thenceforth her waters waxed dull and slow,
 And all that drunke thereof, did faint and feeble grow.
 Hereof this gentle knight vnweeting was, vi
 And lying downe vpon the sandie graile,
 Drunke of the streame, as cleare as cristall glas;
 Eftsoones his manly forces gan to faile,
 And mightie strong was turnd to feeble fraile.
 His chaunged powres at first them selues not felt,
 Till crudled cold his corage gan assaile,
 And chearefull bloud in faintnesse chill did melt,
 Which like a feuer fit through all his body swelt.

Yet goodly court he made still to his Dame,
 Poured out in loosnesse on the grassy grownd,
 Both carelesse of his health, and of his fame:
 Till at the last he heard a dreadfull sownd,
 Which through the wood loud bellowing, did rebownd,
 That all the earth for terroure seemd to shake,
 And trees did tremble. Th'Elfe therewith astovnd, Vpstart lightly from his looser make,
 And his vnready weapons gan in hand to take.

But ere he could his armour on him dight,
 Or get his shield, his monstrous enemy
 With sturdie steps came stalking in his sight,
 An hideous Geant horrible and hye,
 That with his talnesse seemd to threat the skye,
 The ground eke groned vnder him for dreed;
 His liuing like saw neuer liuing eye,
 Ne durst behold: his stature did exceed
 The hight of three the tallest sonnes of mortall seed.

The greatest Earth his vncouth mother was,
 And blustering Æolus his boasted sire,
 Who with his breath, which through the world doth pas,
 Her hollow womb did secretly inspire,
 And fild her hidden caues with stormie yre,
 That she conceiu'd; and trebling the dew time,
 In which the wombes of women do expire,
 Brought forth this monstrous masse of earthly slime,
 Puft vp with emptie wind, and fild with sinfull crime.

So growen great through arrogant delight
 Of th'high descent, whereof he was yborne,
 And through presumption of his matchlesse might,
 All other powres and knighthood he did scorne.
 Such now he marcheth to this man forlorne,
 And left to losse: his stalking steps are stayde
 Vpon a snaggy Oke, which he had torne
 Out of his mothers bowelles, and it made
 His mortall mace, wherewith his foemen he dismayde.

That when the knight he spide, he gan aduance xi
 With huge force and insupportable mayne,
 And towards him with dreadfull fury prounce;
 Who haplesse, and eke hopelesse, all in vaine
 Did to him pace, sad battaile to darrayne,
 Disarmd, disgrast, and inwardly dismayde,
 And eke so faint in euery ioynt and vaine,
 Through that fraile fountaine, which him feeble made,
 That scarsely could he weeld his bootlesse single blade.

The Geaunt strooke so maynly mercilesse, xii
 That could haue ouerthrowne a stony towre,
 And were not heauenly grace, that him did blesse.
 He had beene pouldred all, as thin as flowre:
 But he was wary of that deadly stowre,
 And lightly lept from vnderneath the blow:
 Yet so exceeding was the villeins powre,
 That with the wind it did him ouerthrow,
 And all his sences stound, that still he lay full low.

As when that diuelish yron Engin wrought xiii
 In deepest Hell, and framd by Furies skill,
 With windy Nitre and quick Sulphur fraught,
 And ramd with bullet round, ordaind to kill,
 Conceiueth fire, the heauens it doth fill
 With thundring noyse, and all the ayre doth choke,
 That none can breath, nor see, nor heare at will,
 Through smouldry cloud of duskish stincking smoke,
 That th'onely breath him daunts, who hath escapt the stroke.

So daunted when the Geaunt saw the knight, xiv
 His heauie hand he heaued vp on hye,
 And him to dust thought to haue battred quight,
 Vntill Duessa loud to him gan crye;
 O great Orgoglio, greatest vnder skye,
 O hold thy mortall hand for Ladies sake,
 Hold for my sake, and do him not to dye,
 But vanquisht thine eternall bondslaue make,
 And me thy worthy meed vnto thy Leman take.

He hearkned, and did stay from further harmes,
 To gayne so goodly guerdon, as she spake:
 So willingly she came into his armes,
 Who her as willingly to grace did take,
 And was possessed of his new found make.
 Then vp he tooke the slombred sencelesse corse,
 And ere he could out of his swowne awake,
 Him to his castle brought with hastie forse,
 And in a Dongeon deepe him threw without remorse.

xv

From that day forth Duessa was his deare,
 And highly honourd in his haughtie eye,
 He gaue her gold and purple pall to weare,
 And triple crowne set on her head full hye,
 And her endowd with royall maiestye:
 Then for to make her dreaded more of men,
 And peoples harts with awfull terrour tye,
 A monstrous beast ybred in filthy fen
 He chose, which he had kept long time in darksome den.

xvi

Such one it was, as that renowned Snake
 Which great Alcides in Stremona slew,
 Long fostred in the filth of Lerna lake,
 Whose many heads out budding euer new,
 Did breed him endlesse labour to subdew:
 But this same Monster much more vgly was;
 For seuen great heads out of his body grew,
 An yron brest, and backe of scaly bras,
 And all embrewd in bloud, his eyes did shine as glas.

xvii

His tayle was stretched out in wondrous length,
 That to the house of heauenly gods it raught,
 And with extorted powre, and borrow'd strength,
 The euer-burning lamps from thence it brought,
 And proudly threw to ground, as things of nought;
 And vnderneath his filthy feet did tread
 The sacred things, and holy heasts foretaught.
 Vpon this dreadfull Beast with seuenfold head
 He set the false Duessa, for more aw and dread.

xviii

The wofull Dwarfe, which saw his maisters fall,
 Whiles he had keeping of his grasing steed,
 And valiant knight become a caytiue thrall,
 When all was past, tooke vp his forlorne weed,
 His mightie armour, missing most at need;
 His siluer shield, now idle maisterlesse;
 His poynant speare, that many made to bleed,
 The ruefull monuments of heauinesse,
 And with them all departes, to tell his great distresse.

xix

He had not trauaile long, when on the way
 He wofull Ladie, wofull Vna met,
 Fast flying from the Paynims greedy pray,
 Whilest Satyrane him from pursuit did let:
 Who when her eyes she on the Dwarfe had set,
 And saw the signes, that deadly tydings spake,
 She fell to ground for sorrowfull regret,
 And liuely breath her sad brest did forsake,
 Yet might her pitteous hart be seene to pant and quake.

xx

The messenger of so vnhappie newes
 Would faine haue dyde: dead was his hart within,
 Yet outwardly some little comfort shewes:
 At last recouering hart, he does begin
 To rub her temples, and to chaufe her chin,
 And euery tender part does toss: and turne:
 So hardly he the flitted life does win,
 Vnto her natiue prison to retourne:
 Then gins her grieued ghost thus to lament and mourne.

xxi

Ye dreary instruments of dolefull sight,
 That doe this deadly spectacle behold,
 Why do ye lenger feed on loathed light,
 Or liking find to gaze on earthly mould,
 Sith cruell fates the carefull threeds vnfold,
 The which my life and loue together tyde?
 Now let the stony dart of senselesse cold
 Perce to my hart, and pas through euery side,
 And let eternall night so sad sight fro me hide.

xxii 9 sight om. 1590

O lightsome day, the lampe of highest Ioue,
 First made by him, mens wandring wayes to guyde,
 When darknesse he in deepest dongeon droue,
 Henceforth thy hated face for euer hyde,
 And shut vp heauens windowes shyning wyde:
 For earthly sight can nought but sorrow breed,
 And late repentance, which shall long abyde.
 Mine eyes no more on vanitie shall feed,
 But seeled vp with death, shall haue their deadly meed.

Then downe againe she fell vnto the ground;
 But he her quickly reared vp againe:
 Thrise did she sinke adowne in deadly swownd,
 And thrise he her reviu'd with busie paine:
 At last when life recouer'd had the raine,
 And ouer-wrestled his strong enemye,
 With foltring tong, and trembling euery vaine,
 Tell on (quoth she) the wofull Tragedie,
 The which these reliques sad present vnto mine eie.

Tempestuous fortune hath spent all her spight,
 And thrilling sorrow throwne his vtmost dart;
 Thy sad tongue cannot tell more heauy plight,
 Then that I feele, and harbour in mine hart:
 Who hath endur'd the whole, can beare each part.
 If death it be, it is not the first wound,
 That launched hath my brest with bleeding smart.
 Begin, and end the bitter balefull stound;
 If lesse, then that I feare, more fauour I haue found.

Then gan the Dwarfe the whole discourse declare,
 The subtill traines of Archimago old;
 The wanton loues of false Fidessa faire,
 Bought with the bloud of vanquisht Paynim bold:
 The wretched payre transform'd to treen mould;
 The house of Pride, and perils round about;
 The combat, which he with Sansioy did hould;
 The lucklesse conflict with the Gyant stout,
 Wherein captiu'd, of life or death he stood in doubt.

She heard with patience all vnto the end,
 And stroue to maister sorrowfull assay,
 Which greater grew, the more she did contend,
 And almost rent her tender hart in tway;
 And loue fresh coles vnto her fire did lay:
 For greater loue, the greater is the losse.
 Was neuer Ladie loued dearer day,
 Then she did loue the knight of the Redcrosse;
 For whose deare sake so many troubles her did tosse.

xxvii

At last when feruent sorrow slaked was,
 She vp arose, resolving him to find
 A liue or dead: and forward forth doth pas,
 All as the Dwarfe the way to her assynd:
 And euermore in constant carefull mind
 She fed her wound with fresh renewed bale;
 Long tost with stormes, and bet with bitter wind,
 High ouer hils, and low adowne the dale,
 She wandred many a wood, and measurd many a vale.

xxviii

At last she chaunced by good hap to meet
 A goodly knight, faire marching by the way
 Together with his Squire, arayed meet:
 His glitterand armour shined farre away,
 Like glauncing light of Phæbus brightest ray;
 From top to toe no place appeared bare,
 That deadly dint of steele endanger may:
 Athwart his brest a bauldrick braue he ware,
 That shynd, like twinkling stars, with stons most pretious rare.

xxix

And in the midst thereof one pretious stone
 Of wondrous worth, and eke of wondrous mights,
 Shapt like a Ladies head, exceeding shone,
 Like Hesperus emongst the lesser lights,
 And stroue for to amaze the weaker sights;
 Thereby his mortall blade full comely hong
 In yuory sheath, ycaru'd with curious slights;
 Whose hilts were burnisht gold, and handle strong
 Of mother pearle, and buckled with a golden tong.

xxx

His haughtie helmet, horrid all with gold,
 Both glorious brightnesse, and great terroure bred;
 For all the crest a Dragon did enfold
 With greedie pawes, and ouer all did spread
 His golden wings: his dreadfull hideous hed
 Close couched on the beuer, seem'd to throw
 From flaming mouth bright sparkles fierie red,
 That suddaine horror to faint harts did show;
 And scaly tayle was stretcht adowne his backe full low.

Vpon the top of all his loftie crest,
 A bunch of haire discolourd diuersly,
 With sprinkled pearle, and gold full richly drest,
 Did shake, and seem'd to daunce for iollity,
 Like to an Almond tree ymounted hye
 On top of greene Selinis ail alone,
 With blossomes braue bedecked daintily;
 Whose tender locks do tremble euery one
 At euery little breath, that vnder heauen is blowne.

His warlike shield all closely couer'd was,
 Ne might of mortall eye be euer seene;
 Not made of steele, nor of enduring bras,
 Such earthly mettals soone consumed bene:
 But all of Diamond perfect pure and cleene
 It framed was, one massie entire mould,
 Hewen out of Adamant rocke with engines keene,
 That point of speare it neuer percen could,
 Ne dint of direfull sword diuide the substance would.

The same to wight he neuer wont disclose,
 But when as monsters huge he would dismay,
 Or daunt vnequall armies of his foes,
 Or when the flying heauens he would affray;
 For so exceeding shone his glistring ray,
 That Phæbus golden face it did attaint,
 As when a cloud his beames doth ouer-lay;
 And siluer Cynthia waxed pale and faint,
 As when her face is staynd with magicke arts constraint.

 And when him list the raskall routes appall,
 Men into stones therewith he could transmew,
 And stones to dust, and dust to nought at all;
 And when him list the prouder lookes subdew,
 He would them gazing blind, or turne to other hew.

xxxv

Ne let it seeme, that credence this exceeds,
 For he that made the same, was knowne right well
 To haue done much more admirable deedes.
 It Merlin was, which whylome did excell
 All liuing wightes in might of magicke spell:
 Both shield, and sword, and armour all he wrought
 For this young Prince, when first to armes he fell;
 But when he dyde, the Faerie Queene it brought

 A goodly person, and could menage faire
 His stubborne steed with curbed canon bit,
 Who vnder him did trample as the aire,
 And chauft, that any on his backe should

What worlds delight, or ioy of liuing speech
 Can heart, so plung'd in sea of sorrowes deepe,
 And heaped with so huge misfortunes, reach?

 And in my heart his yron arrow steepe,
 Soone as I thinke vpon my bitter bale:
 Such helplesse harmes yts better hidden keepe,
 Then rip vp grieve, where it may not auaille,
 My last left comfort is, my woes to weepe and waile.

Ah Ladie deare, quoth then the gentle knight,
 Well may I weene, your grieve is wondrous great;
 For wondrous great grieve is oneth in my spright,
 Whiles thus I heare you of your sorrowes treat.
 But wofull Ladie let me you intrete,
 For to vnfold the anguish of your hart:
 Mishaps are maistred by aduice discrete,
 And counsell mittigates the greatest smart;
 Found neuer helpe, who neuer would his hurts impart.

O but (quoth she) great grieve will not be tould,
 And can more easily be thought, then said.
 Right so; (quoth he) but he, that neuer would,
 Could neuer: will to might giues greatest aid.
 But grieve (quoth she) does greater grow displaid,
 If then it find not helpe, and breeds despaire.
 Despaire breeds not (quoth he) where faith is staid.
 No faith so fast (quoth she) but flesh does paire.
 Flesh may empaire (quoth he) but reason can repaire.

His goodly reason, and well guided speech
 So deepe did settle in her gracious thought,
 That her perswaded to disclose the breach,
 Which loue and fortune in her heart had wrought,
 And said; Faire Sir, I hope good hap hath brought
 You to inquire the secrets of my grieve,
 Or that your wisdom will direct my thought,
 Or that your prowess can me yield reliefe:
 Then heare the storie sad, which I shall tell you brieve.

Else should this Redcrosse knight in bands haue dyde,
For whose deliuerance she this Prince doth thither guide.

They sadly traueild thus, vntill they came Nigh to a castle builded strong and hie:
Then cryde the Dwarfe, lo yonder is the same,
In which my Lord my liege doth lucklesse lie,
Thrall to that Gyants hatefull tyrannie:
Therefore, deare Sir, your mightie powres assay.
The noble knight alighted by and by
From loftie steede, and bad the Ladie stay,
To see what end of fight should him befall that day.

So with the Squire, th'admirer of his might,
He marched forth towards that castle wall;
Whose gates he found fast shut, ne liuing wight
To ward the same, nor answer commers call.
Then tooke that Squire an horne of bugle small,
Which hong adowne his side in twisted gold,
And tassels gay. Wyde wonders ouer all
Of that same hornes great vertues weren told,
Which had approued bene in vses manifold.

Was neuer wight, that heard that shrilling sound,
 But trembling feare did feele in euery vaine;
 Three miles it might be easie heard around,
 And Ecchoes three answerd it selfe againe:
 No false enchauntment, nor deceitfull traine
 Might once abide the terror of that blast,
 But presently was voide and wholly vaine:
 No gate so strong, no locke so firme and fast,
 But with that percing noise flew open quite, or brast.

The same before the Geants gate he blew,
 That all the castle quaked from the ground,
 And euery dore of freewill open flew.
 The Gyant selfe dismaied with that sownd,
 Where he with his Duessa dalliance fownd,
 In hast came rushing forth from inner bowre,
 With staring countenance sterne, as one astownd,
 And staggering steps, to weet, what suddein stowre
 Had wrought that horror strange, and dar'd hisdreaded powre.

And after him the proud Duessa came,
 High mounted on her manyheaded beast,
 And euery head with fyrie tongue did flame,
 And euery head was crowned on his creast,
 And bloudie mouthed with late cruell feast.
 That when the knight beheld, his mightie shild
 Vpon his manly arme he soone addrest,
 And at him fiercely flew, with courage fild,
 And eger greedinesse through euery member thild.

Therewith the Gyant buckled him to fight,
 Inflam'd with scornefull wrath and high disdaine,
 And lifting vp his dreadfull club on hight,
 All arm'd with ragged snubbes and knottie graine,
 Him thought at first encounter to haue slaine.
 But wise and warie was that noble Pere,
 And lightly leaping from so monstrous maine,
 Did faire auoide the violence him nere;
 It booted nought, to thinke, such thunderbolts to beare.

Ne shame he thought to shunne so hideous might:
 The idle stroke, enforcing furious way,
 Missing the marke of his misaymed sight
 Did fall to ground, and with his heauie sway
 So deeply dinted in the driuen clay,
 That three yardes deepe a furrow vp did throw:
 The sad earth wounded with so sore assay,
 Did grone full grievous vnderneath the blow,
 And trembling with strange feare, did like an earthquakeshow.

As when almightie Ioue in wrathfull mood,
 To wreake the guilt of mortall sins is bent,
 Hurles forth his thundring dart with deadly food,
 Enrold in flames, and smouldring dreriment,
 Through riuen cloudes and molten firmament;
 The fierce threeforked engin making way,
 Both loftie towres and highest trees hath rent,
 And all that might his angrie passage stay,
 And shooting in the earth, casts vp a mount of clay.

His boystrous club, so buried in the ground,
 He could not rearen vp againe so light,
 But that the knight him at auantage found,
 And whiles he stroue his combred clubbe to quight
 Out of the earth, with blade all burning bright
 He smote off his left arme, which like a blocke Did fall to ground, depriu'd of natiue might;
 Large streames of bloud out of the truncked stocke
 Forth gushed, like fresh water streame from riuen rocke.

Dismaied with so desperate deadly wound,
 And eke impatient of vnwonted paine,
 He loudly brayd with beastly yelling sound,
 That all the fields rebelowd againe;
 As great a noyse, as in Cymbrian plaine
 An heard of Bulles, when kindly rage dot's sting,
 Do for the milkie mothers want complaine,
 And fill the fields with troublous bellowing,
 The neighbour woods around with hollow murmur ring.

That when his deare Duessa heard, and saw
 The euill stownd, that daung^r d her estate,
 Vnto his aide she hastily did draw
 Her dreadfull beast, who swolne with bloud of late
 Came ramping forth with proud presumptuous gate,
 And threatned all his heads like flaming brands.
 But him the Squire made quickly to retrate, Encountring fierce with single sword in hand,
 And twixt him and his Lord did like a bulwarke stand.

xii

The proud Duessa full of wrathfull spight,
 And fierce disdaine, to be affronted so,
 Enforst her purple beast with all her might
 That stop out of the way to ouerthroe,
 Scorning the let of so vnequall foe:
 But nathemore would that courageous swayne
 To her yeeld passage, gainst his Lord to goe,
 But with outrageous strokes did him restraine,
 And with his bodie bard the way atwixt them twaine.

xiii

Then tooke the angrie witch her golden cup,
 Which still she bore, replete with magick artes;
 Death and despayre did many thereof sup,
 And secret poyson through their inner parts,
 Th'eternall bale of heauie wounded harts;
 Which after charmes and some enchauntments said,
 She lightly sprinkled on his weaker parts;
 Therewith his sturdie courage soone was quayd,
 And all his senses were with suddeine dread dismayd.

xiv

So downe he fell before the cruell beast,
 Who on his necke his bloudie clawes did seize,
 That life nigh crusht out of his panting brest:
 No powre he had to stirre, nor will to rize.
 That when the carefull knight gan well auise,
 He lightly left the foe, with whom he fought,
 And to the beast gan turne his enterprise;
 For wondrous anguish in his hart it wrought,
 To see his loued Squire into such thraldome brought.

And high aduauncing his bloud-thirstie blade,
 Stroke one of those deformed heads so sore,
 That of his puissance proud ensample made;
 His monstrous scalpe downe to his teeth it tore,
 And that misformed shape mis-shaped more:
 A sea of bloud gusht from the gaping wound,
 That her gay garments staynd with filthy gore,
 And ouerflowed all the field around;
 That ouer shoes in bloud he waded on the ground.

Thereat he roared for exceeding paine,
 That to haue heard, great horror would haue bred,
 And scourging th'emptie ayre with his long traine,
 Through great impatience of his griued hed
 His gorgeous ryder from her loftie sted
 Would haue cast downe, and trod in durtie myre,
 Had not the Gyant soone her succoured;
 Who all enrag'd with smart and franticke yre,
 Came hurtling in full fierce, and forst the knight retyre.

The force, which wont in two to be disperst,
 In one alone left hand he now vnites,
 Which is through rage more strong then both were erst;
 With which his hideous club aloft he dites,
 And at his foe with furious rigour smites,
 That strongest Oake might seeme to ouerthrow:
 The stroke vpon his shield so heauie lites,
 That to the ground it doubleth him full low:
 What mortall wight could euer beare so monstrous blow?

And in his fall his shield, that couered was,
 Did loose his vele by chaunce, and open flew:
 The light whereof, that heauens light did pas,
 Such blazing brightnesse through the aier threw,
 That eye mote not the same endure to vew.
 Which when the Gyaunt spyde with staring eye,
 He downe let fall his arme, and soft withdrew
 His weapon huge, that heaued was on hye
 For to haue slaine the man, that on the ground did lye.

xviii 8 low 1590, 1596: lowe, 1609

And eke the fruitfull-headed beast, amaz'd
 At flashing beames of that sunshiny shield,
 Became starke blind, and all his senses daz'd,
 That downe he tumbled on the durtie field,
 And seem'd himselfe as conquered to yield.
 Whom when his maistresse proud perceiu'd to fall,
 Whiles yet his feeble feet for faintnesse reeld,
 Vnto the Gyant loudly she gan call,
 O helpe Oryoglio, helpe, or else we perish all.

xx

At her so pitteous cry was much amouu'd
 Her champion stout, and for to ayde his frend,
 Againe his wonted angry weapon proou'd:
 But all in vaine: for he has read his end
 In that bright shield, and all their forces spend Themselues in vaine: for since that glauncing sight,
 He hath no powre to hurt, nor to defend;
 As where th'Almighties lightning brond does light,
 It dimmes the dazed eyen, and daunts the senses quight.

xxi

Whom when the Prince, to battell new addrest,
 And threatning high his dreadfull stroke did see,
 His sparkling blade about his head he blest,
 And smote off quite his right leg by the knee,
 That downe he tombled; as an aged tree,
 High growing on the top of rocky clift,
 Whose hartstrings with keene steele nigh hewen be,
 The mightie trunck halfe rent, with ragged rift
 Doth roll adowne the rocks, and fall with fearefull drift.

xxii

Or as a Castle reared high and round,
 By subtile engins and malicious slight
 Is vndermined from the lowest ground,
 And her foundation forst, and feebled quight,
 At last downe falles, and with her heaped hight
 Her hastie ruine does more heauie make,
 And yields it selfe vnto the victours might;
 Such was this Gyaunts fall, that seemd to shake
 The stedfast globe of earth, as it for feare did quake.

The knight then lightly leaping to the pray,
 With mortall steele him smot againe so sore,
 That headlesse his vnweldy bodie lay,
 Ad wallowd in his owne fowle bloudy gore,
 Which flowed from his wounds in wondrous store.
 But soone as breath out of his breast did pas,
 That huge great body, which the Gyaunt bore,
 Was vanisht quite, and of that monstrous mas
 Was nothing left, but like an emptie bladder was.

Whose grieuous fall, when false Duessa spide,
 Her golden cup she cast vnto the ground,
 And crowned mitre rudely threw aside;
 Such percing griefe her stubborne hart did wound,
 That she could not endure that dolefull stound,
 But leauing all behind her, fled away:
 The light-foot Squire her quickly turnd around,
 And by hard meanes enforcing her to stay,
 So brought vnto his Lord, as his deserued pray.

The royall Virgin, which beheld from farre,
 In pensie plight, and sad perplexitie,
 The whole atchieuement of this doubtfull warre,
 Came running fast to greet his victorie,
 With sober gladnesse, and myld modestie,
 And with sweet ioyous cheare him thus bespake;
 Faire braunch of noblesse, flowre of cheualrie,
 That with your worth the world amazed make,
 How shall I quite the paines, ye suffer for my sake?

And you fresh bud of vertue springing fast,
 Whom these sad eyes saw nigh vnto deaths dore,
 What hath poore Virgin for such perill past, Wherewith you to reward? Accept therefore My simple selfe, and seruice euermore;
 And he that high does sit, and all things see
 With equall eyes, their merites to restore,
 Behold what ye this day haue done for mee,
 And what I cannot quite, requite with vsuree.

 Your fortune maister eke with gouerning,
 And well begun end all so well, I pray,
 Ne let that wicked woman scape away;
 For she it is, that did my Lord bethrall,
 My dearest Lord, and deepe in dongeon lay,
 Where he his better dayes hath wasted all.
 O heare, how piteous he to you for ayd does call.
 xxviii
 Forthwith he gaue in charge vnto his Squire,
 That scarlot whore to keepeen carefully;
 Whiles he himselfe with greedie great desire
 Into the Castle entred forcibly,
 Where liuing creature none he did espye;
 Then gan he lowdly through the house to call:
 But no man car'd to answer to his crye.
 There raignd a solemne silence ouer all,
 Nor voice was heard, nor wight was seene in bowre or hall.
 xxx
 At last with creeping crooked pace forth came
 An old old man, with beard as white as snow,
 That on a staffe his feeble steps did frame,
 And guide his wearie gate both too and fro:
 For his eye sight him failed long ygo,
 And on his arme a bounch of keyes he bore,
 The which vnused rust did ouergrow:
 Those were the keyes of euery inner dore,
 But he could not them vse, but kept them still in store.

 But very vncouth sight was to behold,
 How he did fashion his vntoward pace,
 For as he forward moou'd his footing old,
 So backward still was turnd his wrindled face,
 Vnlike to men, who euer as they trace,

 And foster father of the Gyant dead;

His reuerend haire and holy grautie

The knight much honord, as beseeemed well,
And gently askt, where all the people bee,
Which in that stately building wont to dwell.

Who answerd him full soft, he could not tell.

Againe he askt, where that same knight was layd,

Whom great Orygelis with his puissaunce fell

Had made his caytiue thrall; againe he sayde,

He could not tell: ne euer other answer made.

Then asked he, which way he in might pas:

He could not tell, againe he answered.

Thereat the curteous knight displeased was,

And said, Old sire, it seemes thou hast not red

How ill it sits with that same siluer hed

In vaine to mocke, or mockt in vaine to bee:

But if thou be, as thou art pourtrahed

With natures pen, in ages graue degree,

Aread in grauer wise, what I demaund of thee.

His answer likewise was, he could not tell.

Whose sencelesse speach, and doted ignorance

When as the noble Prince had marked well,

He ghest his nature by his countenance,

And calmd his wrath with goodly temperance.

Then to him stepping, from his arme did reach

Those keyes, and made himselfe free enterance.

Each dore he opened without any breach;

There was no barre to stop, nor foe him to empeach.

There all within full rich arayd he found,

With royall arras and resplendent gold.

And did with store of euery thing abound,

That greatest Princes presence might behold.

But all the floore (too filthy to be told)

With bloud of guiltlesse babes, and innocents trew,

Which there were slaine, as sheepe out of the fold,

Defiled was, that dreadfull was to vew,

And sacred ashes ouer it was strowed new.

And there beside of marble stone was built
 An Altare, caru'd with cunning imagery,
 On which true Christians bloud was often spilt,
 And holy Martyrs often doen to dyc,
 With cruell malice and strong tyranny:
 Whose blessed sprites from vnderneath the stone
 To God for vengeance cryde continually,
 And with great grieve were often heard to grone,
 That hardest heart would bleede, to heare their piteous mone. xxvi
 Through euery rowme he sought, and euery bowr,
 But no where could he find that wofull thrall:
 At last he came vnto an yron doore,
 That fast was lockt, but key found not at all
 Emongst that bounch, to open it withall;
 But in the same a little grate was pight,
 Through which he sent his voyce, and lowd did call
 With all his powre, to weet, if liuing wight
 Were housed therewithin, whom he enlargen might. xxvii
 Therewith an hollow, dreary, murmuring voyce
 These piteous plaints and dolours did resound;
 O who is that, which brings me happy choyce
 Of death, that here lye dying euery stound,
 Yet liue perforce in balefull darknesse bound?
 For now three Moones haue changed thrice their hew,
 And haue beene thrice hid vnderneath the ground,
 Since I the heauens chearefull face did vew,
 O welcome thou, that doest of death bring tydings trew. xxviii
 Which when that Champion heard, with percing point xxix
 Of pittie deare his hart was thrilled sore,
 And trembling horror ran through euery ioynt,
 For ruth of gentle knight so fowle forlore:
 Which shaking off, he rent that yron dore,
 With furious force, and indignation fell;
 Where entred in, his foot could find no flore,
 But all a deepe descent, as darke as hell,
 That breathed euer forth a filthie banefull smell.

But neither darkenesse fowle, nor filthy bands,
 Nor noyous smell his purpose could withhold,
 (Entire affection hateth nicer hands)
 But that with constant zeale, and courage bold,
 After long paines and labours manifold,
 He found the meanes that Prisoner vp to reare;
 Whose feeble thighes, vnable to vphold
 His pined corse, him scarce to light could beare,
 A ruefull spectacle of death and ghastly dreere.

His sad dull eyes deepe sunck in hollow pits,
 Could not endure th'vnwonted sunne to view;
 His bare thin cheekes for want of better bits,
 And empty sides deceiued of their dew,
 Could make a stony hart his hap to rew;
 His rawboned armes, whose mighty brawned bowrs
 Were wont to rive steele plates, and helmets hew,
 Were cleane consum'd, and all his vitall powres
 Decayd, and all his flesh shronk vp like withered flowres.

Whom when his Lady saw, to him she ran
 With hasty ioy: to see him made her glad,
 And sad to view his visage pale and wan,
 Who earst in flowres of freshest youth was clad.
 Tho when her well of teares she wasted had,
 She said, Ah dearest Lord, what euill starre
 On you hath fround, and pourd his influence bad,
 That of your selfe ye thus berobbed are,
 And this misseeming hew your manly looks doth marre?

But welcome now my Lord, in wele or woe,
 Whose presence I haue lackt too long a day;
 And fie on Fortune mine auowed foe,
 Whose wrathfull wreakes them selues do now alay.
 And for these wrongs shall treble penance pay
 Of treble good: good growes of euils priefe.

 And loe that wicked woman in your sight,
 The roote of all your care, and wretched plight,
 Now in your powre, to let her liue, or dye.
 To do her dye (quoth Vna) were despight,
 And shame t'auenge so weake an enemy;

 And ornaments that richly were displaid;
 Ne spared they to strip her naked all.
 Then when they had despoild her tire and call,
 Such as she was, their eyes might her behold,
 That her misshaped parts did them appall,

Cant. IX.

O Goodly golden chaine, wherewith yfere
The vertues linked are in louely wize :
And noble minds of yore allyed were,
In braue poursuit of cheualrous emprise,
That none did others safety despize,
Nor aid enuy to him, in need that stands,
But friendly each did others prayse deuize
How to aduaunce with fauourable hands,
As this good Prince redeemd the Redcrosse knight from bands.
Who when their powres, empaird through labour long, ii
With dew repast they had recured well,
And that weake captiue wight now wexed strong,
Them list no lenger there at leasure dwell,
But forward fare, as their aduentures fell,
But ere they parted, Vna faire besought
That straunger knight his name and nation tell ;
Least so great good, as he for her had wrought,
Should die vnknown, and buried be in thanklesse thought.
Faire virgin (said the Prince) ye me require iii
A thing without the compas of my wit :
For both the lignage and the certain Sire,
From which I sprong, from me are hidden yit.
For all so soone as life did me admit
Into this world, and shewed heauens light,
From mothers pap I taken was vnfit :
And streight deliuered to a Faery knight,
To be vpbrought in gentle thewes and martiall might.

Vnto old Timon he me brought byliue,
 Old Timon, who in youthly yeares hath beene
 In warlike feates th'expertest man aliue,
 And is the wisest now on earth I weene;
 His dwelling is low in a valley greene,
 Vnder the foot of Rauran mossy hore,
 From whence the riuer Dee as siluer cleene
 His tomling billowes rolls with gentle rore:
 There all my dayes he traird me vp in vertuous lore.

Thither the great Magicien Merlin came,
 As was his vse, oftentimes to visit me:
 For he had charge my discipline to frame,
 And Tutours nouriture to ouersee.
 Him oft and oft I askt in priuitie,
 Of what loines and what lignage I did spring:
 Whose aunswere bad me still assured bee,
 That I was sonne and heire vnto a king,
 As time in her iust terme the truth to light should bring.

Well worthy impe, said then the Lady gent,
 And Pupill fit for such a Tutours hand.
 But what aduenture, or what high intent
 Hath brought you hither into Faery land,
 Aread Prince Arthur, crowne of Martiall band?
 Full hard it is (quoth he) to read aright
 The course of heauenly cause, or vnderstand
 The secret meaning of th'eternall might,
 Rules mens wayes, and rules the thoughts of liuing wight.

Whither he through fatall deepe foresight
 Me hither sent, for cause to me vnghest,
 Or that fresh bleeding wound, which day and night
 Whilome doth rangle in my riuen brest,
 With forced fury following his behest,
 Me hither brought by wayes yet neuer found,
 You to haue helpt I hold my selfe yet blest.
 Ah curteous knight (quoth she) what secret wound
 Could euer find, to grieue the gentlest hart on ground?

Deare Dame (quoth he) you sleeping sparkes awake,
 Which troubled once, into huge flames will grow,
 Ne euer will their feruent fury slake,
 Till liuing moysture into smoke do flow,
 And wasted life do lye in ashes low.
 Yet sithens silence lesseneth not my fire,
 But told it flames, and hidden it does glow,
 I will reuele, what ye so much desire:
 Ah Loue, lay downe thy bow, the whiles I may respire.

It was in freshest flowre of youthly yeares,
 When courage first does creepe in manly chest,
 Then first the coale of kindly heat appears
 To kindle loue in euery liuing brest;
 But me had warnd old Timons wise behest,
 Those creeping flames by reason to subdew,
 Before their rage grew to so great vnrest,
 As miserable louers vse to rew,
 Which still wex old in woe, whiles woe still wexeth new.

That idle name of loue, and louers life,
 As losse of time, and vertues enimy
 I euer scornd, and ioyd to stirre vp strife,
 In middest of their mournfull Tragedy,
 Ay wont to laugh, when them I heard to cry,
 And blow the fire, which them to ashes brent:
 Their God himselfe, grieu'd at my libertie,
 Shot many a dart at me with fiers intent,
 But I them warded all with wary gouernment.

But all in vaine: no fort can be so strong,
 Ne fleshly brest can armed be so sound,
 But will at last be wonne with battrie long,
 Or vnawares at disauantage found;
 Nothing is sure, that growes on earthly ground:
 And who most trustes in arme of fleshly might,
 And boasts, in beauties chaine not to be bound,
 Doth soonest fall in disauentrous fight,
 And yeeldes his caytiue neck to victours most despight.

So faire a creature yet saw neuer sunny day.

Most goodly glee and louely blandishment
She to me made, and bad me loue her deare,
For dearely sure her loue was to me bent,
As when iust time expired should appeare.
But whether dreames delude, or true it were,
Was neuer hart so rauisht with delight,
Ne liuing man like words did euer heare,
As she to me deliuered all that night;
And at her parting said, She Queene of Faeries hight.

When I awoke, and found her place deuoyd,
And nought but pressed gras, where she had lyen,
I sorrowed all so much, as earst I ioyd,
And washed all her place with watry eyen.
From that day forth I lou'd that face diuine;
From that day forth I cast in carefull mind,
To seeke her out with labour, and long tyne,
And neuer vow to rest, till her I find,
Nine monethes I seeke in vaine yet ni'll that vow vnbind.

Thus as he spake, his visage waxed pale,
 And chaunge of hew great passion did bewray;
 Yet still he stroue to cloke his inward bale,
 And hide the smoke, that did his fire display,
 Till gentle Vna thus to him gan say;
 O happy Queene of Faeries, that hast found
 Mongst many, one that with his prowess may Defend thine honour, and thy foes confound:
 True Loues are often sown, but seldom grow on ground.
 Thine, O then, said the gentle Redcrosse knight,
 Next to that Ladies loue, shalbe the place,
 O fairest virgin, full of heauenly light,
 Whose wondrous faith, exceeding earthly race,
 Was firmest fixt in mine extremest case.
 And you, my Lord, the Patrone of my life,
 Of that great Queene may well gaine worthy grace:
 For onely worthy you through prowes priefe
 Yf liuing man mote worthy be, to be her lief.
 So diuersly discoursing of their loues,
 The golden Sunne his glistring head gan shew,
 And sad remembraunce now the Prince amoues,
 With fresh desire his voyage to pursew:
 Als Vna earnd her traueill to renew.
 Then those two knights, fast friendship for to bynd,
 And loue establish each to other trew,
 Gaue goodly gifts, the signes of gratefull mynd,
 And eke as pledges firme, right hands together ioynd.
 Prince Arthur gaue a boxe of Diamond sure,
 Embowd with gold and gorgeous ornament,
 Wherein were closd few drops of liquor pure,
 Of wondrous worth, and vertue excellent,
 That any wound could heale incontinent:
 Which to requite, the Redcrosse knight him gaue
 A booke, wherein his Saueours testament
 Was writ with golden letters rich and braue;
 A worke of wondrous grace, and able soules to saue.

ound.

Thus beene they parted, Arthur on his way
 To seeke his loue, and th'other for to fight
 With Vnaes foe, that all her realme did pray.
 But she now weighing the decayed plight,
 And shrunk synewes of her chosen knight,
 Would not a while her forward course pursew,
 Ne bring him forth in face of dreadfull fight,
 Till he recouered had his former hew:
 For him to be yet weake and wearie well she knew.

So as they traueild, lo they gan espy
 An armed knight towards them gallop fast,
 That seemed from some feared foe to fly,
 Or other griesly thing, that him agast.
 Still as he fled, his eye was backward cast,
 As if his feare still followed him behind;
 Als flew his steed, as he his bands had brast,
 And with his winged heeles did tread the wind,
 As he had beene a foie of Pegasus his kind.

Nigh as he drew, they might perceiue his head
 To be vnarmd, and curld vncombed heares
 Vpstart stiffe, dismayd with vncouth dread;
 Nor drop of bloud in all his face appeares
 Nor life in limbe: and to increase his feares,
 In fowle reproch of knighthoods faire degree,
 About his neck an hempen rope he weares,
 That with his glistring armes does ill agree;
 But he of rope or armes has now no memoree.

The Redcrosse knight toward him crossed fast,
 To weet, what mister wight was so dismayd:
 There him he finds all sencelesse and aghast,
 That of him selfe he seemd to be afrayd;
 Whom hardly he from flying forward stayd,
 Till he these wordes to him deliuer might;
 Sir knight, aread who hath ye thus arayd,
 And eke from whom make ye this hasty flight:
 For neuer knight I saw in such misseeming plight.

He answerd nought at all, but adding new Feare to his first amazment, staring wide
 With stony eyes, and hartlesse hollow hew,
 Astonisht stood, as one that had aspid
 Infernall furies, with their chaines vntide.
 Him yet againe, and yet againe bespake
 The gentle knight; who nought to him replide,
 But trembling euery ioynt did inly quake,
 And foltring tongue at last these words seemd forth to shake.
 For Gods deare loue, Sir knight, do me not stay;
 For loe he comes, he comes fast after mee.
 Eft looking backe would faine haue runne away;
 But he him forst to stay, and tellen free
 The secret cause of his perplexitie:
 Yet nathemore by his bold hartie speech,
 Could his bloud-frozen hart emboldned bee,
 But through his boldnesse rather feare did reach,
 Yet forst, at last he made through silence suddein breach.
 And am I now in safetie sure (quoth he)
 From him, that would haue forced me to dye?
 And is the point of death now turnd fro mee,
 That I may tell this haplesse history?
 Feare nought: (quoth he) no daunger now is nye.
 Then shall I you recount a ruefull cace,
 (Said he) the which with this vnlucky eye
 I late beheld, and had not greater grace
 Me reft from it, had bene partaker of the place.
 I lately chaunst (Would I had neuer chaunst)
 With a faire knight to keepen companee,
 Sir Terwin hight, that well himselfe aduaunst
 In all affaires, and was both bold and free,
 But not so happie as mote happie bee:
 He lou'd, as was his lot, a Ladie gent,
 That him againe lou'd in the least degree:
 For she was proud, and of too high intent,
 And ioyd to see her louer languish and lament.

From whom returning sad and comfortlesse,
 As on the way together we did fare,
 We met that villen (God from him me blesse)
 That cursed wight, from whom I scapt whyleare,
 A man of hell, that calls himselfe Despaire:
 Who first vs greets, and after faire areedes
 Of tydings strange, and of aduentures rare:
 So creeping close, as Snake in hidden weedes,
 Inquireth of our states, and of our knightly deedes.

Which when he knew, and felt our feeble harts
 Embost with bale, and bitter byting griefe,
 Which loue had launched with his deadly darts,
 With wounding words and termes of foule reprieue
 He pluckt from vs all hope of due relieue,
 That earst vs held in loue of lingring life;
 Then hopelesse hartlesse, gan the cunning thiefe
 Perswade vs die, to stint all further strife:
 To me he lent this rope, to him a rustie knife.

With which sad instrument of hastie death,
 That wofull louer, loathing lenger light,
 A wide way made to let forth liuing breath.
 But I more fearefull, or more luckie wight,
 Dismayd with that deformed dismall sight,
 Fled fast away, halfe dead with dying feare:
 Ne yet assur'd of life by you, Sir knight,
 Whose like infirmitie like chaunce may beare:
 But God you neuer let his charmed speeches heare.

How may a man (said he) with idle speach
 Be wonne, to spoyle the Castle of his health?
 I wote (quoth he) whom triall late did teach,
 That like would not for all this worldes wealth:
 His subtill tongue, like dropping honny, mealt'h
 Into the hart, and searcheth euerie vaine,
 That ere one be aware, by secret stealth
 His powre is reft, and weaknesse doth remaine.
 O neuer Sir desire to try his guilefull traine.

Certes (said he), hence shall I neuer rest,
 Till I that treachours art haue heard and tride;
 And you Sir knight, whose name mote I request,
 Of grace do me vnto his cabin guide.
 I that hight Trenisan (quoth he) will ride
 Against my liking backe, to doe you grace:
 But nor for gold nor glee will I abide
 By you, when ye arriue in that same place;
 For leuer had I die, then see his deadly face.
 Ere long they come, where that same wicked wight
 His dwelling has, low in an hollow caue,
 Farre vnderneath a craggie clift ypight,
 Darke, dolefull, drearie, like a greedie graue,
 That still for carrion carcases doth craue:
 On top whereof aye dwelt the ghastly Owle,
 Shrieking his balefull note, which euer draue
 Farre from that haunt all other chearefull fowle;
 And all about it wandring ghostes did waile and howle.
 And all about old stockes and stubs of trees,
 Whereon nor fruit, nor leafe was euer seene,
 Did hang vpon the ragged rocky knees;
 On which had many wretches hanged beene,
 Whose carcases were scattered on the greene,
 And throwne about the cliffs. Arriued there,
 That bare-head knight for dread and dolefull teene,
 Would faine haue fled, ne durst approchen neare,
 But th'other forst him stay, and comforted in feare.
 That darkesome caue they enter, where they find
 That cursed man, low sitting on the ground,
 Musing full sadly in his sullein mind;
 His griesie lockes, long growen, and vnbound,
 Disordred hong about his shoulders round,
 And hid his face; through which his hollow eyne
 Lookt deadly dull, and stared as astound;
 His raw-bone cheekes through penurie and pine,
 Were shronke into his iawes, as he did neuer dine.

 All wallowd in his owne yet luke-warme blood,
 That from his wound yet welled fresh alas;
 In which a rustie knife fast fixed stood,
 And made an open passage for the gushing flood.

Which piteous spectacle, approuing trew
 The wofull tale that Trenisan had told,
 When as the gentle Redcrosse knight did vew,
 With firie zeale he burnt in courage bold,
 Him to auenge, before his bloud were cold,
 And to the villein said, Thou damned wight,
 The author of this fact, we here behold,
 What iustice can but iudge against thee right,
 With thine owne bloud to price his bloud, here shed in sight?

What franticke fit (quoth he) hath thus distraught
 Thee, foolish man, so rash a docme to giue?
 What iustice euer other iudgement taught,
 But he should die, who merites not to liue?
 None else to death this man despayring driue,
 But his owne guiltie mind deseruing death.

He there does now enioy eternall rest
 And happie ease which thou doest want and craue,
 And further from it daily wanderest:
 What if some litle paine the passage haue,
 That makes fraile flesh to feare the bitter waue?
 Is not short paine well borne, that brings long ease,
 And layes the soule to sleepe in quiet graue?
 Sleepe after toyle, port after stormie seas,
 Ease after warre, death after life does greatly please.
 The knight much wondred at his suddeine wit,
 And said, The terme of life is limited,
 Ne may a man prolong, nor shorten it;
 The souldier may not moue from watchfull sted,
 Nor leaue his stand, vntill his Captaine bed.
 Who life did limit by almightie doome, (Quoth he) knowes best the termes established;
 And he, that points the Centonell his roome,
 Doth license him depart at sound of morning droome.
 Is not his deed, what euer thing is donne,
 In heauen and earth? did not he all create
 To die againe? all ends that was begonne.
 Their times in his eternall booke of fate
 Are written sure, and haue their certaine date.
 Who then can striue with strong necessitie,
 That holds the world in his still chaunging state,
 Or shunne the death ordaynd by dertinie?
 When houre of death is come, let none aske whence, nor why.
 The lenger life, I wote the greater sin,
 The greater sin, the greater punishment:
 All those great battels, which thou boasts to win,
 Through strife, and bloud-shed, and auengement,
 Now praysd, hereafter deare thou shalt repent:
 For life must life, and bloud must bloud repay.
 Is not enough thy euill life forespent?
 For he, that once hath missed the right way,
 The further he doth goe, the further he doth stray.

Then do no further goe, no further stray,
 But here lie downe, and to thy rest betake, Th'ill to preuent, that life ensewen may.
 For what hath life, that may it loued make,
 And giues not rather cause it to forsake?
 Feare, sickness, age, losse, labour, sorrow, strife,
 Paine, hunger, cold, that makes the hart to quake;
 And euer fickle fortune rageth rife,
 All which, and thousands mo do make a loathsome life.

Thou wretched man, of death hast greatest need,
 If in true ballance thou wilt weigh thy state:
 For neuer knight, that dared warlike deede,
 More lucklesse disauentures did amate:
 Witnesse the dongeon deepe, wherein of late
 Thy life shut vp, for death so oft did call;
 And though good lucke prolonged hath thy date,
 Yet death then, would the like mishaps forestall,
 Into the which hereafter thou maiest happen fall.

Why then doest thou, O man of sin, desire
 To draw thy dayes forth to their last degree?
 Is not the measure of thy sinfull hire
 High heaped vp with huge iniquitie,
 Against the day of wrath, to burden thee?
 Is not enough, that to this Ladie milde
 Thou falsed hast thy faith with periurie,
 And sold thy selfe to serue Duessa vilde,
 With whom in all abuse thou hast thy selfe defilde?

Is not he iust, that all this doth behold
 From highest heauen, and beares an equall eye?
 Shall he thy sins vp in his knowledge fold,
 And guiltie be of thine impietie?
 Is not his law, Let euery sinner die:
 Die shall all flesh? what then must needs be donne,
 Is it not better to doe willinglie,
 Then linger, till the glasse be all out ronne?
 Death is the end of woes: die soone, O faeries sonne.

The knight was much enmoued with his speach,
That as a sword's point through his hart did perse,
And in his conscience made a secret breach,
Well knowing true all, that he did reherse,
And to his fresh remembrance did reuerse
The vgly vew of his deformed crimes,
That all his manly powres it did disperse,
As he were charmed with inchaunted rimes,
That oftentimes he quakt, and fainted oftentimes.
In which amazement, when the Miscreant
Perceiued him to wauer weake and fraile,
Whiles trembling horror did his conscience dant,
And hellish anguish did his soule assaile,
To driue him to despaire, and quite to quaile,
He shew'd him painted in a table plaine,
The damned ghosts, that doe in torments waile,
And thousand feends that doe them endlesse paine
With fire and brimstone, which for euer shall remaine.
The sight whereof so thoroughly him dismaid,
That nought but death before his eyes he saw,
And euer burning wrath before him laid,
By righteous sentence of th'Almighties law:
Then gan the villein him to ouercrow,
And brought vnto him swords, ropes, poison, fire,
And all that might him to perdition draw;
And bad him choose, what death he would desire:
For death was due to him, that had prouokt Gods ire.
But when as none of them he saw him take,
He to him raught a dagger sharpe and keene,
And gaue it him in hand: his hand did quake,
And tremble like a leafe of Aspin greene,
And troubled bloud through his pale face was seene
To come, and goe with tydings from the hart,
As it a running messenger had beene.
At last resolu'd to worke his finall smart,
He lifted vp his hand, that backe againe did start.

Cant. X.

*Her faithfull knight faire Vna brings to house of Holiness,
Where he is taught repentance, and the way to heavenly blisse.*

WHat man is he, that boasts of fleshly might,
And vaine assurance of mortality,
Which all so soone, as it doth come to fight, Against spirituall foes, yeelds by and by,
Or from the field most cowardly doth fly?
Ne let the man ascribe it to his skill,
That thorough grace hath gained victory.
If any strength we haue, it is to ill,
But all the good is Gods, both power and eke will.
By that, which lately hapned, Vna saw,
That this her knight was feeble, and too faint;
And all his sinews woxen weake and raw,
Through long enprisonment, and hard constraint,
Which he endured in his late restraint,
That yet he was vnfit for bloudie fight:
Therefore to cherish him with diets daint,
She cast to bring him, where he chearen might,
Till he recouered had his late decayed plight.
There was an auntient house not farre away,
Renowmd throughout the world for sacred lore,
And pure vnspotted life: so well they say
It gouerned was, and guided euermore,
Through wisdom of a matrone graue and hore;
Whose onely ioy was to relieue the needes
Of wretched soules, and helpe the helpelesse pore:
All night she spent in bidding of her bedes,
And all the day in doing good and godly deedes.

Dame Celia men did her call, as thought
 From heauen to come, or thither to arise,
 The mother of three daughters, well vpbrought
 In goodly thewes, and godly exercise:
 The eldest two most sober, chaste, and wise,
Fidelia and Speranza virgins were,
 Though spoused, yet wanting wedlocks solemnize;
 But faire Charissa to a louely fere
 Was lincked, and by him had many pledges dere.
 Arriued there, the dore they find fast lockt;
 For it was warely watched night and day,
 For feare of many foes: but when they knockt,
 The Porter opened vnto them streight way:
 He was an aged syre, all hory gray,
 With lookes full lowly cast, and gate full slow,
 Wont on a staffe his feeble steps to stay,
 Hight Humilité. They passe in stouping low;
 For streight and narrow was the way, which he did show.
 Each goodly thing is hardest to begin,
 But entred in a spacious cou. c they see,
 Both plaine, and pleasant to be walked in,
 Where them does meete a francklin faire and free,
 And entertaines with comely courteous glee,
 His name was Zele, that him right well became,
 For in his speeches and behauiour hee
 Did labour liuely to expresse the same,
 And gladly did them guide, till to the Hall they came.
 There fairely them receiues a gentle Squire,
 Of milde demeanure, and rare courtesie,
 Right cleanly clad in comely sad attire;
 In word and deede that shew'd great modestie,
 And knew his good to all of each degree,
 Hight Reuerence. He them with speeches meet
 Does faire entreat; no courting nicetie,
 But simple true, and eke vnfained sweet,
 As might become a Squire so great persons to greet.

vii 8 simple, trew Morris

And afterwards them to his Dame he leades,
 That aged Dame, the Ladie of the place:
 Who all this while was busie at her beades:
 Which doen, she vp arose with seemely grace,
 And toward them full matronely did pace.
 Where when that fairest Vna she beheld,
 Whom well she knew to spring from heauenly race,
 Her hart with ioy vnwonted inly sweld,
 As feeling wondrous comfort in her weaker eld.
 And her embracing said, O happie earth,
 Whereon thy innocent feet doe euer tread,
 Most vertuous virgin borne of heauenly berth,
 That to redeeme thy woefull parents head,
 From tyrans rage, and euer-dying dread,
 Hast wandred through the world now long a day;
 Yet ceasest not thy wearie soles to lead,
 What grace hath thee now hither brought this way?
 Or doen thy feeble feet vnweeting hither stray?
 Strange thing it is an errant knight to see
 Here in this place, or any other wight,
 That hither turnes his steps. So few there bee,
 That chose the narrow path, or seeke the right:
 All keepe the broad high way, and take delight
 With many rather for to go astray,
 And be partakers of their euill plight,
 Then with a few to walke the rightest way;
 O foolish men, why haste ye to your owne decay?
 Thy selfe to see, and tyred limbs to rest,
 O matrone sage (quoth she) I hither came,
 And this good knight his way with me addrest,
 Led with thy prayses and broad-blazed fame,
 That vp to heauen is blowne. The auncient Dame
 Him goodly greeted in her modest guise,
 And entertaynd them both, as best became,
 With all the court'sies, that she could deuise,
 Ne wanted ought, to shew her bounteous or wise.

x 4 chuse 1609

xi 5 Dame, 1590 &c.

Thus as they gan of sundry things deuise,
 Loe two most goodly virgins came in place,
 Ylinked arme in arme in louely wise,
 With countenance demure, and modest grace,
 They numbred euen steps and equall pace:
 Of which the eldest, that Fidelia hight,
 Like sunny beames threw from her Christall face,
 That could haue dazd the rash beholders sight,
 And round about her head did shine like heauens light.

She was araied all in lilly white,
 And in her right hand bore a cup of gold,
 With wine and water fild vp to the hight,
 In which a Serpent did himselfe enfold,
 That horreur made to all, that did behold;
 But she no whit did chaunge her constant mood:
 And in her other hand she fast did hold
 A booke, that was both signd and seald with blood,
 Wherein darke things were writ, hard to be vnderstood.

Her younger sister, that Speranza hight,
 Was clad in blew, that her beseemed well;
 Not all so chearefull seemed she of sight,
 As was her sister; whether dread did dwell,
 Or anguish in her hart, is hard to tell:
 Vpon her arme a siluer anchor lay,
 Whereon she leaned euer, as befell:
 And euer vp to heauen, as she did pray,
 Her stedfast eyes were bent, ne swarued other way.

They seeing Vna, towards her gan wend,
 Who them encounters with like courtesie;
 Many kind speeches they betwene them spend,
 And greatly ioy each other well to see:
 Then to the knight with shamefast modestie
 They turne themselues, at Vnaes meeke request,
 And him salute with well beseeming glee;
 Who faire them quites, as him beseemed best,
 And goodly gan discourse of many a noble gest.

Then Vna thus ; But she your sister deare ;
 The deare Charissa where is she become ?
 Or wants she health, or busie is elsewhere ?
 Ah no, said they, but forth she may not come :
 For she of late is lightned of her wombe,
 And hath encreast the world with one sonne more,
 That her to see should be but troublesome.
 Indeede (quoth she) that should her trouble sore,
 But thank't be God, and her encrease so euermore.
 Then said the aged Calia, Deare dame,
 And you good Sir, I wote that of your toyle,
 And labours long, through which ye hither came,
 Ye both forwearied be: therefore a while
 I read you rest, and to your bowres recoyle.
 Then called she a Groome, that forth him led Into a goodly lodge, and gan despoile
 Of puissant armes, and laid in easie bed ;
 His name was meeke Obedience rightfully ared.
 Now when their wearie limbes with kindly rest,
 And bodies were refresht with due repast,
 Faire Vna gan Fidelia faire request,
 To haue her knight into her schoolehouse plaste,
 That of her heauenly learning he might taste,
 And heare the wisdom'e of her words diuine.
 She graunted, and that knight so much agraste,
 That she him taught celestially discipline,
 And opened his dull eyes, that light mote in them shine.
 And that her sacred Booke, with bloud ywrit,
 That none could read, except she did them teach,
 She vnto him disclosed euery whit,
 And heauenly documents thereout did preach,
 That weaker wit of man could neuer reach,
 Of God, of grace, of iustice, of free will,
 That wonder was to heare her goodly speach :
 For she was able, with her words to kill,
 And raise againe to life the hart, that she did thrill.

And when she list poure out her larger spright,
 She would commaund the hastie Sunne to stay,
 Or backward turne his course from heauens hight;
 Sometimes great hostes of men she could dismay,

 And eke huge mountaines from their natiue seat
 She would commaund, themselues to beare away,
 And throw in raging sea with roaring threat.
 Almighty God her gaue such powre, and puissance great.

The faithfull knight now grew in litle space,
 By hearing her, and by her sisters lore,
 To such perfection of all heauenly grace,
 That wretched world he gan for to abhore,
 And mortall life gan loath, as thing forlore,
 Greeu'd with remembrance of his wicked wayes,
 And prickt with anguish of his sinnes so sore,
 That he desirede to end his wretched dayes:
 So much the dart of sinfull guilt the soule dismayes.

But wise Speranza gaue him comfort sweet,

 In this distressed doubtfull agonie,
 When him his dearest Vna did behold,
 Disdeining life, desiring leaue to die,
 She found her selfe assayld with great perplexitie.

And came to Celia to declare her smart,
 Who well acquainted with that commune plight,
 Which sinfull horror workes in wounded hart,
 Her wisely comforted all that she might,
 With goodly counsell and aduisement right;
 And streightway sent with carefull diligence,
 To fetch a Leach, the which had great insight
 In that disease of griued conscience,
 And well could cure the same; His name was Patience.

Who comming to that soule-diseased knight,
 Could hardly him intreat, to tell his grieve:
 Which knowne, and all that noyd his heauie spright
 Well searcht, eftsoones he gan apply reliefe
 Of salues and med'cines, which had passing priefe,
 And thereto added words of wondrous might:
 By which to ease he him recured brieve,
 And much asswag'd the passion of his plight,
 That he his paine endur'd, as seeming now more light.

But yet the cause and root of all his ill,
 Inward corruption, and infected sin,
 Not purg'd nor heald, behind remained still,
 And festring sore did rankle yet within,
 Close creeping twixt the marrow and the skin.
 Which to extirpe, he laid him priuily
 Downe in a darkesome lowly place farre in,
 Whereas he meant his corrosiues to apply,
 And with streight diet tame his stubborne malady.

In ashes and sackcloth he did array
 His daintie corse, proud humors to abate,
 And dieted with fasting euery day,
 The swelling of his wounds to mitigate,
 And made him pray both earely and eke late:
 And euer as superfluous flesh did rot
Amendmen. readie still at hand did wayt,
 To pluck it off with pincers fire whot,
 That soone in him was left no one corrupted iot.

And bitter Penance with an yron whip,
 Was wont him once to disple euery day:
 And sharpe Remorse his hart did pricke and nip,
 That drops of bloud thence like a well did play;
 And sad Repentance vsed to embay
 His bodie in salt water smarting sore,
 The filthy blots of sinne to wash away.
 So in short space they did to health restore
 The man that would not liue, but earst lay at deathes dore.

In which his torment often was so great,
 That like a Lyon he would cry and rore,
 And rend his flesh, and his owne synewes eat.
 His owne deare Vna hearing euermore
 His ruefull shriekes and gronings, often tore
 Her guiltlesse garments, and her golden heare,
 For pittie of his paine and anguish sore;
 Yet all with patience wisely she did beare;
 For well she wist, his crime could else be neuer cleare.

Whom thus recouer'd by wise Patience,
 And trew Repentance they to Vna brought :
 Who ioyous of his cured conscience,
 Him dearely kist, and fairely eke besought
 Himselfe to chearish, and consuming thought
 To put away out of his carefull brest.
 By this Charissa, late in child-bed brought,
 Was woxen strong, and left her fruitfull nest ;
 To her faire Vna brought this vnacquainted guest.

She was a woman in her freshest age,
 Of wondrous beauty, and of bountie rare,
 With goodly grace and comely personage,
 That was on earth not easie to compare;
 Full of great loue, but Cupids wanton snare
 As hell she hated, chast in worke and will ;
 Her necke and breasts were euer open bare,
 That ay thereof her babes might sucke their fill ;
 The rest was all in yellow robes arayed still.

A multitude of babes about her hong,
 Playing their sports, that ioyd her to behold,
 Whom still she fed, whiles they were weake and young,
 But thrust them forth still, as they waxed old :
 And on her head she wore a tyre of gold,
 Adorn'd with gemmes and owches wondrous faire,
 Whose passing price vneath was to be told ;
 And by her side there sate a gentle paire
 Of turtle doues, she sitting in an yuorie chaire.

xxxi 6 faire. 1596

The knight and Vna entring, faire her greet,
 And bid her ioy of that her happie brood;
 Who them requites with court sies seeming meet,
 And entertaines with friendly chearefull mood.
 Then Vna her besought, to be so good,
 As in her vertuous rules to schoole her knight,
 Now after all his torment well withstood,
 In that sad house of Penance, where his spright
 Had past the paines of hell, and long enduring night.
 She was right ioyous of her iust request,
 And taking by the hand that Faeries sonne,
 Gan him instruct in euery good behest,
 Of loue, and righteousness, and well to donne,
 And wrath, and hatred warely to shonne,
 That drew on men Gods hatred, and his wrath,
 And many soules in dolours had fordonne:
 In which when him she well instructed hath,
 From thence to heauen she teacheth him the ready path.
 Wherein his weaker wandring steps to guide,
 An auncient matrone she to her does call,
 Whose sober lookes her wisdom well describe:
 Her name was Mercie, well knowne ouer all,
 To be both gracious, and eke liberall:
 To whom the carefull charge of him she gaue,
 To lead aright, that he should neuer fall
 In all his wayes through this wide worldes waue,
 That Mercy in the end his righteous soule might saue.
 The godly Matrone by the hand him beares
 Forth from her presence, by a narrow way,
 Scattered with bushy thornes, and ragged breares,
 Which still before him she remou'd away,
 That nothing might his ready passage stay:
 And euer when his feet encombred were,
 Or gan to shrink, or from the right to stray,
 She held him fast, and firmly aid vpbear,
 As carefull Nourse her child from falling oft does reare.

Eftsoones vnto an holy Hospitall,
 That was fore by the way, she did him bring,
 In which seuen Bead-men that had vower! all
 Their life to seruice of high heauens king
 Did spend their dayes in doing godly thing:
 Their gates to all were open euermore,
 That by the wearie way were traueiling,
 And one sate wayting euer them before,
 To call in commers-by, that needy were and pore.

The first of them that eldest was, and best,
 Of all the house had charge and gouernement,
 As Guardian and Steward of the rest:
 His office was to giue entertainment
 And lodging, vnto all that came, and went:
 Not vnto such, as could him feast againe,
 And double quite, for that he on them spent,
 But such, as want of harbour did constraîne:
 Those for Gods sake his dewty was to entertaine.

The second was as Almner of the place,
 His office was, the hungry for to feed,
 And thristy giue to drinke, a worke of grace:
 He feard not once him selfe to be in need,
 Ne car'd to hoord for those, whom he did breede:
 The grace of God he layd vp still in store,
 Which as a stocke he left vnto his seede;
 He had enough, what need him care for more?
 And had he lesse, yet some he would giue to the pore.

The third had of their wardrobe custodie,
 In which were not rich tyres, nor garments gay,
 The plumes of pride, and wings of vanitie,
 But clothes meet to keepe keene could away,
 And naked nature seemely to aray;
 With which bare wretched wights he dayly clad,
 The images of God in earthly clay;
 And if that no spare cloths to giue he had,
 His owne coate he would cut, and it distribute glad.

The fourth appointed by his office was,
 Poore prisoners to relieue with gratiouse ayd,
 And captiues to redeeme with price of bras,
 From Turkes and Sarazins, which them had stayd;
 And though they faultie were, yet well he wayd,
 That God to vs forgiueth euery howre
 Much more then that, why they in bands were layd,
 And he that harrowd hell with heauie stowre,
 The faultie soules from thence brought to his heauenly bowre.

The fift had charge sicke persons to attend,
 And comfort those, in point of death which lay;
 For them most needeth comfort in the end,
 When sin, and hell, and death do most dismay
 The feeble soule departing hence away.
 All is but lost, that liuing we bestow,
 If not well ended at our dying day.
 O man haue mind of that last bitter throw;
 For as the tree does fall, so lyes it euer low.

The sixth had charge of them now being dead,
 In seemely sort their corse to engraue,
 And deck with dainty flowres their bridall bed,
 That to their heauenly spouse both sweet and braue
 They might appeare, when he their soules shall saue.
 The wondrous workemanship of Gods owne mould,
 Whose face he made, all beasts to feare, and gaue
 All in his hand, euen dead we honour should.
 Ah dearest God me graunt, I dead be not defould.

The seuenth now after death and buriall done,
 Had charge the tender Orphans of the dead
 And widowes ayd, least they should be vndone:
 In face of iudgement he their right would plead,
 Ne ought the powre of mighty men did dread
 In their defence, nor would for gold or fee
 Be wonne their rightfull causes downe to tread:
 And when they stood in most necessitee,
 He did supply their want, and gaue them euer free.

There when the Elfin knight arriued was,
 The first and chieftest of the seuen, whose care
 Was guests to welcome, towardes him did pas:
 Where seeing Mercie, that his steps vp bare,
 And alwayes led, to her with reuerence rare
 He humbly louted in meeke lowlinesse,
 And seemely welcome for her did prepare:
 For of their order she was Patronesse,
 Albe Charissa were their chieftest founderesse.

There she awhile him stayes, him selfe to rest,
 That to the rest more able he might bee:
 During which time, in euery good behest
 And godly worke of Almes and charitee
 She him instructed with great industree;
 Shortly therein so perfect he became,
 That from the first vnto the last degree,
 His mortall life he learned had to frame
 In holy righteousness, without rebuke or blame.

Thence forward by that painfull way they pas,
 Forth to an hill, that was both steepe and hy;
 On top whereof a sacred chappell was,
 And eke a litle Hermitage thereby,
 Wherein an aged holy man did lye,
 That day and night said his deuotion,
 Ne other worldly busines did apply;
 His name was heauenly Contemplation;
 Of God and goodnesse was his meditation.

Great grace that old man to him giuen had;
 For God he often saw from heauens light,
 All were his earthly eyen both blunt and bad,
 And through great age had lost their kindly sight,
 Yet wondrous quick and persant was his spright,
 As Eagles eye, that can behold the Sunne:
 That hill they scale with all their powre and might,
 That his frayle thighes nigh wearie and fordonne
 Gan faile, but by her helpe the top at last he wonne.

There they do finde that godly aged Sire,
 With snowy lockes adowne his shoulders shed,
 As hoarie frost with spangles doth attire
 The mossy braunches of an Oke halfe ded.
 Each bone might through his body well be red,
 And euery sinew seene through his long fast:
 For nought he car'd his carcas long vnfed;
 His mind was full of spirituall repast,
 And pyn'd his flesh, to keepe his body low and chast.
 Who when these two approching he aspid,
 At their first presence grew agrieued sore,
 That forst him lay his heauenly thoughts aside;
 And had he not that Dame respected more,
 Whom highly he did reuerence and adore,
 He would not once haue moued for the knight.
 They him saluted standing far afore;
 Who well them greeting, humbly did requight,
 And asked, to what end they clomb that tedious height.
 What end (quoth she) should cause vs take such paine,
 But that same end, which euery liuing wight
 Should make his marke, high heauen to attaine?
 Is not from hence the way, that leadeth right
 To that most glorious house, that glistreth bright
 With burning starres, and euerliuing fire,
 Whereof the keyes are to thy hand behight
 By wise Fidelia? she doth thee require,
 To shew it to this knight, according his desire.
 Thrise happy man, said then the father graue,
 Whose staggering steps thy steady hand doth lead,
 And shewes the way, his sinfull soule to saue.
 Who better can the way to heauen aread,
 Then thou thy selfe, that was both borne and bred
 In heauenly throne, where thousand Angels shine?
 Thou doest the prayers of the righteous sead
 Present before the maiestie diuine,
 And his auenging wrath to clemencie incline.

Yet since thou bidst, thy pleasure shalbe donne.
 Then come thou man of earth, and see the way,
 That neuer yet was seene of Faeries sonne,
 That neuer leads the trauciler astray,
 But after labours long, and sad delay,
 Brings them to ioyous rest and endlesse blis.
 But first thou must a season fast and pray,
 Till from her bands the spright assoiled is,
 And haue her strength recur'd from fraile infirmitis.

That done, he leads him to the highest Mount;
 Such one, as that same mighty man of God,
 That bloud-red billowes like a walled front
 On either side disparted with his rod,
 Till that his army dry-foot through them yod,
 Dwelt fortie dayes vpon; where writ in stone
 With bloudy letters by the hand of God,
 The bitter doome of death and balefull mone
 He did receiue, whiles flashing fire about him shone.

Or like that sacred hill, whose head full hie,
 Adorn'd with fruitfull Oliues all arownd,
 Is, as it were for endlesse memory
 Of that deare Lord, who oft thereon was fownd,
 For euer with a flowring girlond crownd:
 Or like that pleasaunt Mount, that is for ay
 Through famous Poets verse each where renownd,
 On which the thrise three learned Ladies play
 Their heauenly notes, and make full many a louely lay.

From thence, far off he vnto him did shew
 A litle path, that was both steepe and long,
 Which to a goodly Citie led his vew;
 Whose wals and towres were builded high and strong
 Of perle and precious stone, that earthly tong
 Cannot describe, nor wit of man can tell;
 Too high a ditty for my simple song;
 The Citie of the great king hight it well,
 Wherein eternall peace and happinesse doth dwell.

As he thereon stood gazing, he might see
 The blessed Angels to and fro descend
 From highest heauen, in gladsome companee,
 And with great ioy into that Citie wend,
 As commonly as friend does with his frend.
 Whereat he wondred much, and gan enquire,
 What stately building durst so high extend
 Her loftie towres vnto the starry sphere,
 And what vnknown nation there empeopled were.
 Faire knight (quoth he) Hierusalem that is,
 The new Hierusalem, that God has built
 For those to dwell in, that are chosen his,
 His chosen people purg'd from sinfull guilt,
 With pretious blood, which cruelly was spilt
 On cursed tree, of that vnspotted lam,
 That for the sinnes of all the world was kilt:
 Now are they Saints all in that Citie sam,
 More deare vnto their God, then younglings to their dam.
 Till now, said then the knight, I weened well,
 That great Cleopolis, where I haue beene,
 In which that fairest Faerie Queene doth dwell,
 The fairest Citie was, that might be seene;
 And that bright towre all built of christall cleene, Panthea, seemd the brightest thing, that was:
 But now by prooffe all otherwise I weene;
 For this great Citie that does far surpas,
 And this bright Angels towre quite dims that towre of glas.
 Most trew, then said the holy aged man;
 Yet is Cleopolis for earthly frame,
 The fairest peece, that eye beholden can:
 And well beseemes all knights of noble name,
 That couet in th'immortall booke of fame
 To be eternized, that same to haunt,
 And doen their seruice to that soueraigne Dame,
 That glorie does to them for guerdon graunt:
 For she is heauenly borne, and heauen may iustly vaunt.

 Whose sight my feeble soule doth greatly cheare :
 And on the top of all I do espye
 The watchman wayting tydings glad to heare,
 That O my parents might I happily

 And Briton fields with Sarazin bloud bedyde,

 Halfe flying, and halfe footing in his hast,

 Approching nigh, he reared high afore
 His body monstrous, horrible, and vast,
 Which to increase his wondrous greatnesse more,
 Was swolne with wrath, and poyson, and with bloudy gore.
 And ouer, all with brasen scales was armd,
 Like plated coate of steele, so couched neare,
 That nought mote perce, ne might his corse be harmd
 With dint of sword, nor push of pointed speare;

 So shaked he, that horroure was to heare,
 For as the clashing of an Armour bright,
 Such noyse his rouzed scales did send vnto the knight.
 His flaggy wings when forth he did display,
 Were like two sayles, in which the hollow wynd
 Is gathered full, and worketh speedy way:
 And eke the pennes, that did his pineons bynd,
 Were like mayne-yards, with flying canuas lynd,
 With which whenas him list the ayre to beat,

 And thicke entangled knots adown does slacke,
 Bespotted as with shields of red and blacke,

 And at the point two stings in-fixed arre,
 Both deadly sharpe, that sharpest steele exceeden farre.

But stings and sharpest steele did far exceed
 The sharpnesse of his cruell rending clawes;
 Dead was it sure, as sure as death in deed,
 What euer thing does touch his rauinous pawes,
 Or what within his reach he euer drawes.
 But his most hideous head my tounge to tell

And that more wondrous was, in either iaw
 Three ranckes of yron teeth enraunged were,
 In which yet trickling bloud and gobbets raw

 That sight thereof bred cold congealed feare:
 Which to increase, and all atonce to kill,
 A cloud of smothering smoke and sulphur seare
 Out of his stinking gorge forth steemed still,
 That all the ayre about with smoke and stench did fill.

And often bounding on the brused gras,
As for great ioyance of his newcome guest.
Eftsoones he gan aduance his haughtie crest,
As chauffed Bore his bristles doth vpreare,
And shoke his scales to battell readie drest;
That made the Redcrosse knight nigh quake for feare,
As bidding bold defiance to his foeman neare.

The knight gan fairely couch his steadie speare,
And fiercely ran at him with rigorous might:
The pointed steele arriuing rudely theare,
His harder hide would neither perce, nor bight,
But glauncing by forth passed forward right;
Yet sore amoued with so puissant push,
The wrathfull beast about him turned light,
And him so rudely passing by, did brush
With his long tayle, that horse and man to ground did rush.

Both horse and man vp lightly rose againe,
And fresh encounter towards him addrest:
But th'idle stroke yet backe recoyld in vaine,
And found no place his deadly point to rest.
Exceeding rage enflam'd the furious beast,
To be auenged of so great despight;
For neuer felt his imperceable brest
So wondrous force, from hand of liuing wight;
Yet had he prou'd the powre of many a puissant knight.

Then with his wauiing wings displayed wyde,
Himselfe vp high he lifted from the ground,
And with strong flight did forcibly diuide
The yielding aire, which nigh too feeble found
Her flitting partes, and element vnsound,
To beare so great a weight: he cutting way
With his broad sayles, about him soared round:
At last low stouping with vnweldie sway,
Snatcht vp both horse and man, to beare them quite away.

Long he them bore aboue the subiect plaine,
 So farre as Ewghen bow a shaft may send,
 Till struggling strong did him at last constraine,
 To let them downe before his flightes end:
 As hagarde hauke presuming to contend
 With hardie fowle, aboue his hable might,
 His wearie pounces all in vaine doth spend,
 To trusse the pray too heauie for his flight;
 Which comming downe to ground, does free it selfe by fight.

xix

He so disseized of his gryping grosse,
 The knight his thrillant speare againe assayd
 In his bras-plated body to embosse,
 And three mens strength vnto the stroke he layd;
 Wherewith the stiffe beame quaked, as affrayd,
 And glauncing from his scaly necke, did glyde
 Close vnder his left wing, then broad displayd.
 The percing steele there wrought a wound full wyde,
 That with the vncouth smart the Monster lowdly cryde.

xx

He cryde, as raging seas are wont to rore,
 When wintry storme his wrathfull wreck does threat,
 The rolling billowes beat the ragged shore,
 As they the earth would shoulder from her seat,
 And greedie gulfe does gape, as he would eat
 His neighbour element in his reuenge:
 Then gin the blustering brethren boldly threat,
 To moue the world from off his stedfast henge,
 And boystrous battell make, each other to auenge.

xxi

The steely head stucke fast still in his flesh,
 Till with his cruell clawes he snatcht the wood,
 And quite a sunder broke. Forth flowed fresh
 A gushing riuer of blacke goarie blood,
 That drowned all the land, whereon he stood;
 The streame thereof would driue a water-mill.
 Trebly augmented was his furious mood
 With bitter sense of his deepe rooted ill,
 That flames of fire he threw forth from his large nosethrill.

xxii

His hideous taylor then hurled he about,
 And therewith all enwrapt the nimble thyes
 Of his froth-fomy steed, whose courage stout
 Striving to loose the knot, that fast him tyes, Himselfe in streighter bandes too rash impleyes,
 That to the ground he is perforce constraynd
 To throw his rider : who can quickly ryse
 From off the earth, with durty bloud distaynd,
 For that reprochfull fall right fowly he disdaynd.

And fiercely tooke his trenchand blade in hand,
 With which he stroke so furious and so fell,
 That nothing seemd the puissance could withstand :
 Vpon his crest the hardned yron fell,
 But his more hardned crest was armd so well,
 That deeper dint therein it would not make ;
 Yet so extremely did the buffe him quell,
 That from thenceforth he shund the like to take,
 But when he saw them come, he did them still forsake.

The knight was wrath to see his stroke beguyld,
 And smote againe with more outrageous might ;
 But backe againe the sparckling steele recoyld,
 And left not any marke, where it did light ;
 As if in Adamant rocke it had bene pight.
 The beast impatient of his smarting wound,
 And of so fierce and forcible despight,
 Thought with his wings to styte about the ground ;
 But his late wounded wing vnseruiceable found.

Then full of griefe and anguish vehement,
 He lowdly brayd, that like was neuer heard,
 And from his wide deuouring ouen sent
 A flake of fire, that flashing in his beard,
 Him all amazd, and almost made affeard :
 The scorching flame sore swinged all his face,
 And through his armour all his bodie seard,
 That he could not endure so cruell cace,
 But thought his armes to leaue, and helmet to vnlace.

Not that great Champion of the antique world, xxvii
 Whom famous Poetes verse so much doth vaunt,
 And hath for twelue huge labours high extold,
 So many furies and sharpe fits did haunt,
 When him the poysoned garment did enchaunt
 With Cenaurus bloud, and bloudie verses charm'd,
 As did this knight twelue thousand dolours daunt,
 Whom fyrie steele now burnt, that earst him arm'd,
 That erst him goodly arm'd, now most of all him harm'd.

Faint, wearie, sore, emboyled, griued, brent xxviii
 With heat, toyle, wounds, armes, smart, and inward fire
 That neuer man such mischiefes did torment;
 Death better were, death did he oft desire,
 But death will neuer come, when needes require.
 Whom so dismayd when that his foe beheld,
 He cast to suffer him no more respire,
 But gan his sturdie sterne about to weld,
 And him so strongly stroke, that to the ground him feld.

It fortun'd (as faire it then befell) xxix
 Behind his backe vnweeting, where he stood,
 Of auncient time there was a springing well,
 From which fast trickled forth a siluer flood,
 Full of great vertues, and for med'cine good.
 Whylome, before that cursed Dragon got
 That happie land, and all with innocent blood
 Defyld those sacred waues, it rightly hot
The well of life, ne yet his vertues had forgot.

For vnto life the dead it could restore, xxx
 And guilt of sinfull crimes cleane wash away,
 Those that with sicknesse were infected sore,
 It could recure, and aged long decay
 Renew, as one were borne that very day.
 Both Silo this, and Jordan did excell,
 And th'English Bath, and eke the german Span,
 Ne can Cephise, nor Hebrus match this well:
 Into the same the knight backe ouerthrowen, fell.

Now gan the golden Phabus for to steepe
 His fierie face in billowes of the went,
 And his faint steedes watred in Ocean deepe,
 Whiles from their iournall labours they did rest,
 When that infernall Monster, hauing kest
 His wearie foe into that liuing well,
 Can high aduance his broad discoloured brest,
 About his wonted pitch, with countenance fell,
 And clapt his yron wings, as victor he did dwell.

Which when his pensiuie Ladie saw from farre,
 Great woe and sorrow did her soule assay,
 As weening that the sad end of the warre,
 And gan to highest God entirely pray,
 That feared chance from her to turne away;
 With folded hands and knees full lowly bent
 All night she watcht, ne once adowne would lay
 Her daintie limbs in her sad dreriment,
 But praying still did wake, and waking did lament.

The morrow next gan early to appeare,
 That Titan rose to runne his daily race;
 But early ere the morrow next gan reare
 Out of the sea faire Titans deawy face,
 Vp rose the gentle virgin from her place,
 And looked all about, if she might spy
 Her loued knight to moue his manly pace:
 For she had great doubt of his safety,
 Since late she saw him fall before his enemy.

At last she saw, where he vpstarted braue
 Out of the well, wherein he drenched lay;
 As Eagle fresh out of the Ocean waue,
 Where he hath left his plumes all hoary gray,
 And deckt himselfe with feathers youthly gay,
 Like Eyas hauke vp mounts vnto the skies,
 His newly budded pineons to assay,
 And marueiles at himselfe, still as he flies:
 So new this new-borne knight to battell new did rise.

xxxiv 8 merueiles 1590

Whom when the damned feend so fresh did spy,
 No wonder if he wondred at the sight,
 And doubted, whether his late enemy
 It were, or other new supplied knight.
 He, now to proue his late renewed might,
 High brandishing his bright deaw-burning blade,
 Vpon his crested scalpe so sore did smite,
 That to the scull a yawning wound it made:
 The deadly dint his dulled senses all dismaid.

xxxv

I wote not, whether the reuenging steele
 Were hardned with that holy water dew,
 Wherein he fell, or sharper edge did feele,
 Or his baptized hands now greater grew;
 Or other secret vertue did ensew;
 Else neuer could the force of fleshly arme,
 Ne molten mettall in his bloud embrew:
 For till that stownd could neuer wight him harme,
 By subtilty, nor slight, nor might, nor mighty charme.

xxxvi

The cruell wound enraged him so sore,
 That loud he yelded for exceeding paine;
 As hundred ramping Lyons seem'd to rore,
 Whom rauenous hunger did thereto constraîne:
 Then gan he tosse aloft his stretched traine,
 And therewith scourge the buxome aire so sore,
 That to his force to yeelden it was faine;
 Ne ought his sturdie strokes might stand afore,
 That high trees ouerthrew, and rocks in peeces tore.

xxxvii

The same aduauncing high about his head,
 With sharpe intended sting so rude him smot,
 That to the earth him droue, as stricken dead,
 Ne liuing wight would haue him life behot:
 The mortall sting his angry needle shot
 Quite through his shield, and in his shoulder seasd, Where fast it stucke, ne would there out be got:
 The grieve thereof him wondrous sore diseasd,
 Ne might his ranckling paine with patience be appeasd.

But yet more mindfull of his honour deare,
 Then of the grievous smart, which him did wring,
 From loathed soile he can him lightly reare,
 And stroue to loose the farre infixed sting:
 Which when in vaine he tryde with strugeling,
 Inflam'd with wrath, his raging blade he heft,
 And strooke so strongly, that the knotty string
 Of his huge taile he quite a sunder cleft, Fiue ioynts thereof he hewd, and but the stump him left.

xxxix

Hart cannot thinke, what outrage, and what cryes,
 With foule enfouldred smoake and flashing fire,
 The hell-bred beast threw forth vnto the skyes,
 That all was couered with darknesse dire:
 Then fraught with rancour, and engorged ire,
 He cast at once him to auenge for all,
 And gathering vp himselfe out of the mire,
 With his vneuen wings did fiercely fall
 Vpon his sunne-bright shield, and gript it fast withall.

xi

Much was the man encombred with his hold,
 In feare to lose his weapon in his paw,
 Ne wist yet, how his talants to vnfold;
 Nor harder was from Cerberus greedie iaw
 To plucke a bone, then from his cruell claw
 To reauue by strength the griped gage away:
 Thrise he assayd it from his foot to draw,
 And thrise in vaine to draw it did assay,
 It booted nought to thinke, to robbe him of his pray.

xii

Tho when he saw no power might preuaile,
 His trustie sword he cald to his last aid,
 Wherewith he fiercely did his foe assaile,
 And double blowes about him stoutly laid,
 That glauncing fire out of the yron plaid;
 As sparckles from the Anduile vse to fly,
 When heauie hammers on the wedge are swaid;
 Therewith at last he forst him to vnty

 Vpon the ioynt the lucky steele did light,
 And made such way, that hewd it quite in twaine;
 The paw yet missed not his minisht might,
 But hong still on the shield, as it at first was pight.

xliii

For grieve thereof, and diuelish despight,
 From his infernall founace forth he threw Huge flames, that dimmed all the heauens light,
 Enrold in duskish smoke and brimstone blew;
 As burning Aetna from his boyling stew
 Doth belch out flames, and rockes in peeces broke,
 And ragged ribs of mountaines molten new,
 Enwrapt in coleblacke clouds and filthy smoke,
 That all the land with stench, and heauen with horror choke.

 As he recoyled backward, in the mire
 His nigh forwearied feeble feet did slide,
 And downe he fell, with dread of shame sore terrifide.

There grew a goodly tree him faire beside,
 Loaden with fruit and apples rosie red,
 As they in pure vermilion had beene dide,
 Whereof great vertues ouer all were red:
 For happie life to all, which thereon fed,

xlvi 9 The tree of life, 1590, 1596.

In all the world like was not to be found,
 Saue in that soile, where all good things did grow,
 And freely sprong out of the fruitfull ground,
 As incorrupt Nature did them sow,
 Till that dread Dragon all did ouerthrow.
 Another like faire tree eke grew thereby,
 Whereof who so did eat, eftsoones did know
 Both good and ill: O mornefull memory:
 That tree through one mans fault hath doen vs all to dy.

xlvii

From that first tree forth flowd, as from a well,
 A trickling streame of Balme, most soueraine
 And daintie deare, which on the ground still fell,
 And ouerflowed all the fertill plaine,
 As it had deawed bene with timely raine:
 Life and long health that gracious ointment gaue,
 And deadly woundes could heale, and reare againe
 The senselesse corse appointed for the graue.
 Into that same he fell: which did from death him saue.

xlviii

For nigh thereto the euer damned beast
 Durst not approach, for he was deadly made,
 And all that life preserued, did detest:
 Yet he it oft aduentur'd to inuade.
 By this the drouping day-light gan to fade,
 And yeeld his roome to sad succeeding night,
 Who with her sable mantle gan to shade
 The face of earth, and wayes of liuing wight,
 And high her burning torch set vp in heauen bright.

xlix

When gentle Vna saw the second fall
 Of her deare knight, who wearie of long fight,
 And faint through losse of bloud, mou'd not at all,
 But lay as in a dreame of deepe delight,
 Besmeard with pretious Balme, whose vertuous might Did heale his wounds, and scorching heat alay,
 Againe she stricken was with sore affright,
 And for his safetie gan deuoutly pray;
 And watch the noyous night, and wait for ioyous day.

l

The ioyous day gan early to appeare,
 And faire Aurora from the dewy bed
 Of aged Tithone gan her selfe to reare,
 With rosie cheekes, for shame as blushing red;
 Her golden lockes for haste were loosely shed
 About her cares, when Vna her did marke
 Clymbe to her charet, all with flowers spred,
 From heauen high to chase the chearelesse darke;
 With merry note her loud salutes the mounting larke.
 Then freshly vp arose the doughtie knight,
 All healed of his hurts and woundes wide,
 And did himselfe to battell readie dight;
 Whose early foe awaiting him beside
 To haue deuourd, so soone as day he spyde,
 When now he saw himselfe so freshly reare,
 As if late fight had nought him damnifyde,
 He woxe dismayd, and gan his fate to feare;
 Nathlesse with wonted rage he him aduanced neare.
 And in his first encounter, gaping wide,
 He thought attonce him to haue swallowd quight,
 And rusht vpon him with outrageous pride;
 Who him r'encountring fierce, as hauke in flight,
 Perforce rebutted backe. The weapon bright
 Taking aduantage of his open iaw,
 Ran through his mouth with so importune might,
 That deepe emperst his darksome hollow maw,
 And back retyrd, his life bloud forth with all did draw.
 So downe he fell, and forth his life did breath,
 That vanisht into smoke and cloudes swift;
 So downe he fell, that th'earth him vnderneath
 Did grone, as feeble so great load to lift;
 So downe he fell, as an huge rockie clift,
 Whose false foundation waues haue washt away,
 With dreadfull poyse is from the mayneland rift,
 And rolling downe, great Neptune doth dismay;
 So downe he fell, and like an heaped mountaine lay.

The knight himselfe euen trembled at his fall,
 So huge and horrible a masse it seem'd;
 And his deare Ladie, that beheld it all,
 Durst not approach for dread, which she misdeem'd,
 But yet at last, when as the direfull feend
 She saw not stirre, off-shaking vaine affright,
 She nigher drew, and saw that ioyous end:
 Then God she prayd, and thank't her faithfull knight,
 That had atchieu'd so great a conquest by his might.

Cant. XII.

BEhold I see the hauen nigh at hand,
 To which I meane my wearie course to bend;
 Vere the maine shete, and beare vp with the land,
 The which afore is fairely to be kend,
 And seemeth safe from stormes, that may offend;
 There this faire virgin wearie of her way
 Must landed be, now at her iourneyes end:
 There eke my feeble barke a while may stay,
 Till merry wind and weather call her thence away.

Scarsely had Phæbus in the glooming East
 Yet harnessed his fire-footed teeme,
 Ne reard about the earth his flaming creast,
 When the last deadly smoke aloft did steeme,
 That signe of last outbreathed life did seeme
 Vnto the watchman on the castle wall;
 Who thereby dead that balefull Beast did deeme,
 And to his Lord and Ladie lowd gan call,
 To tell, how he had seene the Dragons fatall fall.

Vprose with hastie ioy, and feeble speed
That aged Sire, the Lord of all that land,
And looked forth, to weet, if true indeede
Those tydings were, as he did vnderstand,
Which whenas true by tryall he out fond,
He bad to open wyde his brazen gate,
Which long time had bene shut, and out of hond
Proclaymed ioy and peace through all his state;
For dead now was their foe, which them forrayed late.
Then gan triumphant Trompets sound on hie,
That sent to heauen the ecchoed report
Of their new ioy, and happie victorie
Gainst him, that had them long opprest with tort,
And fast imprisoned in sieged fort.
Then all the people, as in solemne feast,
To him assembled with one full consort,
Reioycing at the fall of that great beast,
From whose eternall bondage now they were releast.
Forth came that auncient Lord and aged Queene,
Arayd in antique robes downe to the ground,
And sad habiliments right well besene;
A noble crew about them waited round
Of sage and sober Peres, all grauely gownd;
Whom farre before did march a goodly band
Of tall young men, all hable armes to sownd,
But now they laurell braunches bore in hand;
Glad signe of victorie and peace in all their land.
Vnto that doughtie Conquerour they came,
And him before themselues prostrating low,
Their Lord and Patrone loud did him proclame,
And at his feet their laurell boughes did throw.
Soone after them all dauncing on a row
The comely virgins came, with girlands dight,
As fresh as flowres in meadow greene do grow,
When morning dew vpon their leaues doth light:
And in their hands sweet Timbrels all vpheld on hight.

And them before, the fry of children young
 Their wanton sports and childish mirth did play,
 And to the Maydens sounding tymbrels sung
 In well attuned notes, a ioyous lay,
 And made delightfull musicke all the way,
 Vntill they came, where that faire virgin stood;
 As faire Diana in fresh sommers day
 Beholds her Nymphes, enraung'd in shadie wood,
 Some wrestle, some do run, some bathe in christall flood.

So she beheld those maydens meriment
 With chearefull vew; who when to her they came,
 Themselues to ground with gracious humblesse bent,
 And her ador'd by honorable name,
 Lifting to heauen her euerlasting fame:
 Then on her head they set a girland greene,
 And crowned her twixt earnest and twixt game;
 Who in her selfe-resemblance well besene,
 Did seeme such, as she was, a goodly maiden Queene.

And after, all the raskall many ran,
 Heaped together in rude rablement,
 To see the face of that victorious man:
 Whom all admired, as from heauen sent,
 And gazd vpon with gaping wonderment.
 But when they came, where that dead Dragon lay,
 Stretcht on the ground in monstrous large extent,
 The sight with idle feare did them dismay,
 Ne durst approch him nigh, to touch, or once assay.

Some feard, and fled; some feard and well it faynd;
 One that would wiser seeme, then all the rest,
 Warnd him not touch, for yet perhaps remaynd
 Some lingring life within his hollow brest,
 Or in his wombe might lurke some hidden nest
 Of many Dragonets, his fruitfull seed;
 Another said, that in his eyes did rest
 Yet sparckling fire, and bad thereof take heed;
 Another said, he saw him moue his eyes indeed.

 Halfe dead through feare, her litle babe reuyld,
 And to her gossips gan in counsell say;
 How can I tell, but that his talants may Yet scratch my sonne, or rend his tender hand?
 So diuersly themselues in vaine they fray;
 Whiles some more bold, to measure him nigh stand,
 To proue how many acres he did spread of land.
 Thus flocked all the folke him round about,
 The whiles that hoarie king, with all his traine,

 With princely gifts of yuorie and gold,
 And thousand thanks him yeelds for all his paine.
 Then when his daughter deare he does behold,
 Her dearly doth imbrace, and kisseth manifold.
 And after to his Pallace he them brings,
 With shaumes, and trompets, and with Clarions sweet;
 And all the way the ioyous people sings,
 And with their garments strowes the paued street:
 Whence mounting vp, they find purueyance meet
 Of all, that royall Princes court became,
 And all the floore was vnderneath their feet
 Bespred with costly scarlot of great name,
 On which they lowly sit, and fitting purpose frame.
 What needs me tell their feast and goodly guize,
 In which was nothing riotous nor vaine?
 What needs of daintie dishes to deuize,
 Of comely seruices, or courtly trayne?

Then when with meates and drinkes of euery kinde

Their feruent appetites they quenched had,

That auncient Lord gan fit occasion finde,

Of straunge aduentures, and of perils sad,

Which in his trauell him befallen had,

For to demaund of his renowned guest:

Who then with vtt'rance graue, and count'nance sad,

From point to point, as is before exprest,

Discourst his voyage long, according his request.

Great pleasure mixt with pittifull regard,

That godly King and Queene did passionate,

Whiles they his pittifull aduentures heard,

And often blame the too importune fate,

That heapd on him so many wrathfull wreakes:

For neuer gentle knight, as he of late,

So tossed was in fortunes cruell freakes;

And all the while salt teares bedewd the hearers cheaks.

 And on her now a garment she did weare,
 All lilly white, withoutten spot, or pride,
 That seemd like silke and siluer wouen neare,
 But neither silke nor siluer therein did appeare.

The blazing brightnesse of her beauties beame,
 And glorious light of her sunshyny face
 To tell, were as to striue against the streame.
 My ragged rimes are all too rude and base,
 Her heavenly lineaments for to enchace.
 Ne wonder; for her owne deare loued knight,
 All were she dayly with himselfe in place,
 Did wonder much at her celestiall sight:
 Oft had he seene her faire, but neuer so faire dight.

So fairely dight, when she in presence came,
 She to her Sire made humble reuerence,
 And bowed low, that her right well became,
 And added grace vnto her excellence:
 Who with great wisdom, and graue eloquence
 Thus gan to say. But eare he thus had said,
 With flying speede, and seeming great pretence,
 Came running in, much like a man dismaid,
 A Messenger with letters, which his message said.

All in the open hall amazed stood,
 At suddeinnesse of that vnwarie sight,
 And wondred at his breathlesse hastie mood.
 But he for nought would stay his passage right,
 Till fast before the king he did alight;
 Where falling flat, great humblesse he did make,
 And kist the ground, whereon his foot was pight;
 Then to his hands that writ he did betake,
 Which he disclosing, red thus, as the paper spake.

To thee, most mighty king of Eden faire,
 Her greeting sends in these sad lines addrest,
 The wofull daughter, and forsaken heire
 Of that great Emperour of all the West;
 And bids thee be aduized for the best,
 Ere thou thy daughter linck in holy band
 Of wedlocke to that new vnknownen guest:
 For he already plighted his right hand
 Vnto another loue, and to another land.

To me sad mayd, or rather widow sad,
 He was affiaunced long time before,
 And sacred pledges he both gaue, and had,
 False erraunt knight, infamous, and forswore:
 Witnesse the burning Altars, which he swore,
 And guiltie heauens of his bold periury,
 Which though he hath polluted oft of yore,
 Yet I to them for iudgement iust do fly,
 And them coniure t'auenge this shamefull iniury.

xxvii

Therefore since mine he is, or free or bond,
 Or false or trew, or liuing or else dead,
 Withhold, O soueraine Prince, your hasty hond
 From knitting league with him, I you aread;
 Ne weene my right with strength adowne to tread,
 Through weakenesse of my widowhed, or woe:
 For truth is strong, her rightfull cause to plead,
 And shall find friends, if need requireth soe,
 So bids thee well to fare, Thy neither friend, nor foe,

Fidessa.

When he these bitter byting words had red,
 The tydings straunge did him abashed make,
 That still he sate long time astonished
 As in great muse, ne word to creature spake.
 At last his solemne silence thus he brake,
 With doubtfull eyes fast fixed on his guest;
 Redoubted knight, that for mine onely sake
 Thy life and honour late aduenturest,
 Let nought be hid from me, that ought to be exprest.

xxix

What meane these bloody vowes, and idle threats,
 Throwne out from womanish impatient mind?
 What heauens? what altars? what enraged heates
 Here heaped vp with termes of loue vnkind,
 My conscience cleare with guilty bands would bind?
 High God be witnesse, that I guiltlesse ame.
 But if your selfe, Sir knight, ye faultie find,
 Or wrapped be in loues of former Dame,
 With crime do not it couer, but disclose the same.

To whom the Redcrosse knight this answere sent,
 My Lord, my King, be nought hereat dismayd,
 Till well ye wote by graue intendiment,
 What woman, and wherefore doth me vpbrayd
 With breach of loue, and loyalty betrayd.
 It was in my mishaps, as hitherward
 I lately traueild, that vnwares I strayd
 Out of my way, through perils straunge and hard;
 That day should faile me, ere I had them all declard.

There did I find, or rather I was found
 Of this false woman, that Fidessa hight,
Fidessa hight the falsest Dame on ground,
 Most false Duessa, royall richly dight,
 That easie was t' inuegle weaker sight:
 Who by her wicked arts, and wylie skill,
 Too false and strong for earthly skill or might,
 Vnwares me wrought vnto her wicked will,
 And to my foe betrayd, when least I feared ill.

Then stepped forth the goodly royall Mayd,
 And on the ground her selfe prostrating low,
 With sober countenance thus to him sayd;
 O pardon me, my soueraigne Lord, to show
 The secret treasons, which of late I know
 To haue bene wrought by that false sorceresse.
 She onely she it is, that earst did throw
 This gentle knight into so great distresse,
 That death him did awaite in dayly wretchednesse.

And now it seemes, that she suborned hath
 This craftie messenger with letters vaine,
 To worke new woe and improuided scath,
 By breaking of the band betwixt vs twaine;
 Wherein she vsed hath the practicke paine
 Of this false footman, clokt with simplenesse,
 Whom if ye please for to discouer plaine,
 Ye shall him Archimago find, I ghesse,
 The falsest man aliue; who tries shall find no lesse.

The king was greatly moued at her speach,
 And all with suddein indignation freight,
 Bad on that Messenger rude hands to reach.
 Eftsoones the Gard, which on his state did wait,
 Attacht that faitor false, and bound him strait:
 Who seeming sorely chauffed at his band,
 As chained Beare, whom cruell dogs do bait,
 With idle force did faine them to withstand,
 And often semblaunce made to scape out of their hand.

xxxv

But they him layd full low in dungeon deepe,
 And bound him hand and foote with yron chains.
 And with continuall watch did warely keepe;
 Who then would thinke, that by his subtile trains
 He could escape fowle death or deadly paines?
 Thus when that Princes wrath was pacifide,
 He gan renew the late forbidden banes,
 And to the knight his daughter deare he tyde,
 With sacred rites and voves for euer to abyde.

xxxvi

His owne two hands the holy knots did knit,
 That none but death for euer can deuide;
 His owne two hands, for such a turne most fit,
 The housling fire did kindle and prouide,
 And holy water thereon sprinckled wide;
 At which the bushy Teade a groome did light,
 And sacred lampe in secret chamber hide,
 Where it should not be quenched day nor night,
 For feare of euill fates, but burnen euer bright.

xxxvii

Then gan they sprinckle all the posts with wine,
 And made great feast to solemnize that day;
 They all perfumde with frankincense diuine,
 And precious odours fetcht from far away,
 That all the house did sweat with great aray:
 And all the while sweete Musicke did apply
 Her curious skill, the warbling notes to play,
 To driue away the dull Melancholy;
 The whiles one sung a song of loue and iollity.

During the which there was an heauenly noise
 Heard sound through all the Pallace pleasantly,
 Like as it had bene many an Angels voice,
 Singing before th'eternall maiesty,
 In their trinall triplicities on hye;
 Yet wist no creature, whence that heauenly sweet Proceeded, yet eachone felt secretly
 Himselfe thereby reft of his sences meet,
 And rauished with rare impression in his sprite.

Great ioy was made that day of young and old,
 And solemne feast proclaimd throughout the land,
 That their exceeding merth may not be told:
 Suffice it heare by signes to vnderstand
 The vsuall ioyes at knitting of loues band.
 Thrise happy man the knight himselfe did hold,
 Possessed of his Ladies hart and hand,
 And euer, when his eye did her behold,
 His heart did seeme to melt in pleasures manifold.

Her ioyous presence and sweet company
 In full content he there did long enioy,
 Ne wicked enuie, ne vile gealosity
 His deare delights were able to annoy:
 Yet swimming in that sea of blisfull ioy,
 He nought forgot, how he whilome had sworne,
 In case he could that monstrous beast destroy,
 Vnto his Farie Queene backe to returne:
 The which he shortly did, and Vna left to mourne.

Now strike your sailes ye iolly Mariners,
 For we be come vnto a quiet rode,
 Where we must land some of our passengers,
 And light this wearie vessell of her lode.
 Here she a while may make her safe abode,
 Till she repaired haue her tackles spent,
 And wants supplide. And then againe abroad
 On the long voyage whereto she is bent:
 Well may she speede and fairely finish her intent.

THE SECOND BOOKE OF THE FAERIE QVEENE.

Contayning,
THE LEGEND OF SIR GUYON.

OR
Of Temperaunce.

Right well I wote most mighty Soueraine,
That all this famous antique history,
Of some th'abundance of an idle braine
Will iudged be, and painted forgery,
Rather then matter of iust memory,
Sith none, that breatheth liuing aire, does know,
Where is that happy land of Faery,
Which I so much do vaunt, yet no where show,
But vouch antiquities, which no body can know.

But let that man with better sence aduize,
That of the world least part to vs is red:
And dayly how through hardy enterprise,
Many great Regions are discovered,
Which to late age were neuer mentioned.
Who euer heard of th'Indian Peru?
Or who in venturous vessell measured
The Amazons huge riuer now found trew?
Or fruitfullest Virginia who did euer vew?

Proem. ii 8 Amarons 1590: Amazon F. E.

Yet all these were, when no man did them know; iii
 Yet haue from wisest ages hidden beene:
 And later times things more vnknowne shall show.
 Why then should witlesse man so much misweene
 That nothing is, but that which he hath seene?
 What if within the Moones faire shining spheare?
 What if in euery other starre vnseene
 Of other worldes he happily should heare?
 He wonder would much more: yet such to some appeare.
 Of Faerie lond yet if he more inquire, iv
 By certaine signes here set in sundry place
 He may it find; ne let him then admire,
 But yield his sence to be too blunt and bace,
 That no'te without an hound fine footing trace.
 And thou, O fairest Princesse vnder sky,
 In this faire mirrhour maist behold thy face,
 And thine owne realmes in lond of Faery,
 And in this antique Image thy great auncestry.
 The which O pardon me thus to enfold v
 In couert vele, and wrap in shadowes light,
 That feeble eyes your glory may behold,
 Which else could not endure those beames bright,
 But would be dazled with exceeding light.
 O pardon, and vouchsafe with patient care
 The braue aduentures of this Faery knight
 The good Sir Guyon graciously to heare,
 In whom great rule of Temp'raunce goodly doth appeare.

Can. I.

Guyon by Archimago abusd,
The Redcrosse knight awaytes,
Findex Mordant and Amausia slaine
With pleasures poisoned baytes.

That cunning Architect of cancred guile,
Whom Princes late displeasure left in bands,
For falsed letters and suborned wile,
Soone as the Redcrosse knight he vnderstands
To beene departed out of Eden lands,
To serue againe his soueraine Elfin Queene,
His artes he moues, and out of caytiues hands
Himselfe he frees by secret meanes vnseene;
His shackles emptie left, him selfe escaped cleene.

And forth he fares full of malicious mind,
To worken mischief and auenging woe,
Where euer he that godly knight may find,
His onely hart sore, and his onely foe,
Sith Vna now he algates must forgoe,
Whom his victorious hands did earst restore
To natiue crowne and kingdome late ygoe:
Where she enioyes sure peace for euermore
As weather-beaten ship arriu'd on happie shore.

Him therefore now the obiect of his spight
And deadly food he makes: him to offend
By forged treason, or by open fight
He seekes, of all his drift the aymed end:
Thereto his subtile engins he does bend,
His practick wit, and his faire filed tong,
With thousand other sleights: for well he kend,
His credit now in doubtfull ballaunce hong;
For hardly could be hurt, who was already stong.

Still as he went, he craftie stales did lay,
 With cunning traines him to entrap vnwares,
 And priuie spials plast in all his way,
 To weete what course he takes, and how he fares;
 To ketch him at a vantage in his snares.
 But now so wise and warie was the knight
 By triall of his former harmes and cares,
 That he descride, and shonned still his slight:
 The fish that once was caught, new bait will hardly bite.
 Nath'lesse th'Enchaunter would not spare his paine,
 In hope to win occasion to his will;
 Which when he long awaited had in vaine,
 He chaungd his minde from one to other ill:
 For to all good he enemy was still.
 Vpon the way him fortun'd to meet,
 Faire marching vnderneath a shady hill,
 A goodly knight, all armd in harnesse meete,
 That from his head no place appeared to his feete.
 His carriage was full comely and vpright,
 His countenaunce demure and temperate,
 But yet so sterne and terrible in sight,
 That cheard his friends, and did his foes amate:
 He was an Elfin borne of noble state,
 And mickle worship in his natiue land;
 Well could he tourney and in lists debate,
 And knighthood tooke of good Sir Huons hand,
 When with king Oberon he came to Faerie land.
 Him als accompanyd vpon the way
 A comely Palmer, clad in blacke attire,
 Of ripest yeares, and haire all hoarie gray,
 That with a staffe his feeble steps did stire,
 Least his long way his aged limbes should tire:
 And if by lookes one may the mind aread,
 He seemd to be a sage and sober sire,
 And euer with slow pace the knight did lead,
 Who taught his trampling steed with equall steps to tread.

Such whenas Archimago them did view,
 He weened well to worke some vncouth wile,
 Eftsoones vntwisting his deceitfull clew,
 He gan to weaue a web of wicked guile,
 And with faire countenance and flatt'ring stile,
 To them approching, thus the knight bespake:
 Faire sonne of Mars, that seeke with warlike spoile,
 And great atchieu'ments great your selfe to make,
 Vouchsafe to stay your steed for humble misers sake.

He sayd his steed for humble misers sake,
 And bad tell on the tenor of his plaint;
 Who feigning then in euery limbe to quake,
 Through inward feare, and seeming pale and faint
 With piteous mone his percing speach gan paint;
 Deare Lady how shall I declare thy cace,
 Whom late I left in langourous constraint?
 Would God thy selfe now present were in place,
 To tell this ruefull tale; thy sight could win thee grace.

Or rather would, O would it so had chaunst,
 That you, most noble Sir, had present beene,
 When that lewd ribauld with vile lust aduaunst
 Layd first his filthy hands on virgin cleene,
 To spoile her daintie corse so faire and sheene,
 As on the earth, great mother of vs all,
 With liuing eye more faire was neuer seene,
 Of chastitie and honour virginall:
 Witnesse ye heauens, whom she in vaine to helpe did call.

How may it be, (said then the knight halfe wroth,)
 That knight should knighthood euer so haue shent?
 None but that saw (quoth he) would weene for troth,
 How shamefully that Maid he did torment.
 Her looser golden lockes he rudely rent,
 And drew her on the ground, and his sharpe sword
 Against her snowy brest he fiercely bent,
 And threatned death with many a bloudie word;
 Tounge hates to tell the rest, that eye to see abhord.

viii 5 with a faire 1596 7 spoile. 1596 ix 7 languorous 1590

Therewith amoued from his sober mood,
 And liues he yet (said he) that wrought this act,
 And doen the heauens afford him vitall food?
 He liues, (quoth he) and boasteth of the fact,
 Ne yet hath any knight his courage crackt.
 Where may that treachour then (said he) be found,
 Or b. what meanes may I his footing tract?
 That shall I shew (said he) as sure, as hound
 The stricken Deare doth challenge by the bleeding wound.
 He staid not lenger talke, but with fierce ire
 And zealous hast away is quickly gone
 To seeke that knight, where him that craftie Squire Supposd to be. They do arriue anone,
 Where sate a gentle Lady all alone,
 With garments rent, and haire discheueled,
 Wringing her hands, and making piteous mone;
 Her swollen eyes were much disfigured,
 And her faire face with teares was fowly blubbered.
 The knight approching nigh, thus to her said,
 Faire Ladie, through foule sorrow ill bedight,
 Great pittie is to see you thus dismaid,
 And marre the blossome of your beautie bright:
 For thy appease your grieve and heauie plight,
 And tell the cause of your conceiued paine.
 For if he liue, that hath you doen despight,
 He shall you doe due recompence againe,
 Or else his wrong with greater puissance maintaine.
 Which when she heard, as in despightfull wise,
 She wilfully her sorrow did augment,
 And offred hope of comfort did despise:
 Her golden lockes most cruelly she rent,
 And scratcht her face with ghastly dreriment,
 Ne would she speake, ne see, ne yet be seene,
 Put hid her visage, and her head downe bent,
 Either for grieuous shame, or for great teene,
 As if her hart with sorrow had transfixt beene.

xii
Till her that Squire bespake, Madame my lief,
For Gods deare loue be not so wilfull bent,
But doe vouchsafe now to receiue reliefe,
The which good fortune doth to you present.
For what bootes it to weepe and to wayment,
When ill is chaunst, but doth the ill increase,
And the weake mind with double woe torment?
When she her Squire heard speake, she gan appease
Her voluntarie paine, and feele some secret ease.

xiii
Eftsoone she said, Ah gentle trustie Squire,
What comfort can I woful wretch conceaue,
Or why should euer I henceforth desire
To see faire heauens face and life not leaue,
Sith that false Traytour did my honour reauue?
False traytour certes (said the Faerie knight)
I read the man, that euer would deceaue
A gentle Ladie, or her wrong through might:
Death were too little paine for such a foule despight.

xiv
But now, faire Ladie, comfort to you make,
And read, who hath ye wrought this shamefull plight;
That short reuenge the man may ouertake,
Where so he be, and soone vpon him light.
Certes (saide she) I wote not how he hight,
But vnder him a gray steede did he wield,
Whose sides with dapled circles weren dight;
Vpright he rode, and in his siluer shield
He bore a bloudie Crosse, that quattered all the field.

xv
Now by my head (saide Guyon) n. I muse,
How that same knight should so foule amis,
Or euer gentle Darrzell so abuse:
For may I boldly say, he surely is A right good knight, and true of word ywis:
I present was, and can it witnesse well,
When armes he swore, and streight did enterpris
Th'aduenture of the Errant damozell,
In which he hath great glorie wonne, as I heare tell.

Nathlesse he shortly shall againe be tryde,
 And fairely quite him of th'imputed blame,
 Else be ye sure he dearely shall abyde,
 Or make you good amendment for the same:
 All wrongs haue mends, but no amends of shame.
 Now therefore Ladie, rise out of your paine,
 And see the saluing of your blotted name.
 Full loth she seemd thereto, but yet did faine;
 For she was inly glad her purpose so to gaine.
 Her purpose was not such, as she did faine,
 Ne yet her person such, as it was seene,
 But vnder simple shew and semblant plaine
 Lurckt false Duessa secretly vnseene,
 As a chast Virgin, that had wronged beene:
 So had false Archimago her disguisd,
 To cloke her guile with sorrow and sad teene;
 And eke himselfe had craftily deuisd
 To be her Squire, and do her seruice well aguisd.
 Her late forlorne and naked he had found,
 Where she did wander in waste wilderness,
 Lurking in rockes and caues farre vnder ground,
 And with greene mosse cou'ring her nakednesse,
 To hide her shame and loathly filthinesse;
 Sith her Prince Arthur of proud ornaments
 And borrow'd beautie spoyld. Her nathelesse Th'enchaunter finding fit for his intents,
 Did thus reuest, and deckt with due habiliments.
 For all he did, was to deceiue good knights,
 And draw them from pursuit of praise and fame,
 To slug in slouth and sensuall delights,
 And end their daies with irrenowmed shame.
 And now exceeding grieffe him ouercame,
 To see the Redcrosse thus aduaunced hye;
 Therefore this craftie engine he did frame,
 Against his praise to stirre vp enmitye
 Of such, as vertues like mote vnto him allye.

So now he Guyon guides an vncouth way Through woods and mountaines, till they came at last
 Into a pleasant dale, that lowly lay
 Betwixt two hils, whose high heads ouerplast,
 The valley did with coole shade ouercast,
 Through midst thereof a little riuer rold,
 By which there sate a knight with helme vnlast,
 Himselfe refreshing with the liquid cold,
 After his trauell long, and labours manifold.

Loe yonder he, cryde Archimage alowd,
 That wrought the shamefull fact, which I did shew;
 And now he doth himselfe in secret shrowd,
 To flie the vengeance for his outrage dew;
 But vaine: for ye shall dearely do him rew,
 So God ye speed, and send you good successe;
 Which we farre off will here abide to vew.
 So they him left, inflam'd with wrathfulnesse,
 That streight against that knight his speare he did addresse.

Who seeing him from farre so fierce to pricke,
 His warlike armes about him gan embrace,
 And in the rest his readie speare did sticke;
 Tho when as still he saw him towards pace,
 He gan rencounter him in equall race.
 They bene ymet, both readie to affrap,
 When suddenly that warriour gan abace
 His threatned speare, as if some new mishap
 Had him betidde, or hidden daunger did entrap.

And cryde, Mercie Sir knight, and mercie Lord,
 For mine offence and heedlesse hardiment,
 That had almost committed crime abhord,
 And with reprochfull shame mine honour shent,
 Whiles cursed steele against that badge I bent,
 The sacred badge of my Redeemers death,
 Which on your shield is set for ornament:
 But his fierce foe his steede could stay vneath,
 Who prickt with courage kene, did cruell battell breath.

But when he heard him speake, streight way he knew xxviii

His error, and himselfe inclyning sayd;

Ah deare Sir Guyon, well becommeth you,

But me behoueth rather to vpbrayd,

Whose hastie hand so farre from reason strayd,

That almost it did haynous violence

On that faire image of that heauenly Mayd,

That decks and armes your shield with faire defence:

Your court'sie takes on you anothers due offence.

So bene they both attone, and doen vpreare xxix

Their beuers bright, each other for to greeete;

Goodly comportance each to other beare,

And entertaine themselues with court'sies meet.

Then said the Redcrosse knight, Now mote I weete,

Sir Guyon, why with so fierce saliaunce,

And fell intent ye did at earst me meet;

For sith I know your goodly gouernaunce,

Great cause, I weene, you guided, or some vncouth chaunce.

Certes (said he) well mote I shame to tell xxx

 But wretched we, where ye haue left your marke,

 His race with reason, and with words his will,
 From foule intemperance he oft did stay,
 And suffred not in wrath his hastie steps to stray.

In this faire wize they traueild long yfere,
 Through many hard assayes, which did betide;
 Of which he honour still away did beare,
 And spred his glorie through all countries wide.
 At last as chaunst them by a forest side
 To passe, for succour from the scorching ray,
 They heard a ruefull voice, that dearnly cride
 With percing shriekes, and many a dolefull lay;
 Which to attend, a while their forward steps they stay.

 As bound by them to liue in liues despight,
 Yet can they not warne death from wretched wight.

 That through the wood reecchoed againe,
 And after gaue a grone so deepe and low,
 That seemd her tender heart was rent in twaine,
 Or thrild with point of thorough piercing paine;
 As gentle Hynd, whose sides with cruell steele

 Whiles the sad pang approching she does feele,
 Brayes out her latest breath, and vp her eyes doth seele.

Which when that warriour heard, dismounting strait
 From his tall steed, he rusht into the thicke,
 And soone arriued, where that sad pourtraict
 Of death and dolour lay, halfe dead, halfe quicke,
 In whose white alabaster brest did sticke
 A cruell knife, that made a griesly wound,

Pittifull spectacle of deadly smart,

Beside a bubbling fountaine low she lay,
Which she increased with her bleeding hart,
And the cleane waues with purple gore did ray;
Als in her lap a louely babe did play
His cruell sport, in stead of sorrow dew;
For in her streaming blood he did embay
His litle hands, and tender ioynts embrew;
Pitifull spectacle, as euer eye did view.

Besides them both, vpon the soiled gras

The dead corse of an armed knight was spred, Whose armour all with bloud besprinkled was;
His ruddie lips did smile, and rosy red
Did paint his chearefull cheekes, yet being ded:
Seemd to haue beene a goodly personage,
Now in his freshest flowre of lustie hed,
Fit to inflame faire La y with loues rage,
But that fiers fate did crop the blossome of his age.

Whom when the good Sir Guyon did behold,

His hart gan wexe as starke, as marble stone,
And his fresh bloud did frieze with fearefull coïd,
That all his senses seemd bereft attone:
At last his mightie ghost gan deepe to grone,
As Lyon grudging in his great disdaine,
Mournes inwardly, and makes to himselfe mone;
Till ruth and fraile affection did constraine
His stout courage to stoupe, and shew his inward paine.

Out of her gored wound the cruell steele

He lightly snatcht, and did the floudgate stop
With his faire garment: then gan softly feele
Her feeble pulse, to proue if any drop
Of liuing bloud yet in her veynes did hep;
Which when he felt to moue, he hoped faire
To call backe life to her forsaken shop;
So well he did her deadly wounds repaire,
That at the last she gan to breath out liuing aire.

Ah farre be it (said he) Deare dame fro mee,
 To hinder soule from her desired rest,
 Or hold sad life in long captiuitee:
 For all I seeke, is but to haue redrest
 The bitter pangs, that doth your heart infest.
 Tell then, O Lady tell, what fatall priefe
 Hath with so huge misfortune you opprest?
 That I may cast to compasse your reliefe,
 Or die with you in sorrow, and partake your grieve.
 With feeble hands then stretched forth on hye,
 As heauen accusing guiltie of her death,
 And with dry drops congealed in her eye,
 In these sad words she spent her vtmost breath:
 Heare then, O man, the sorrowes that vneath
 My tongue can tell, so farre all sense they pas:
 Loe this dead corpse, that lies here vnderneath,
 The gentlest knight, that euer on greene græs
 Gay steed with spurs did pricke, the good Sir Mordant was.

Was, (ay the while, that he is not so now)
 My Lord my loue; my deare Lord, my deare loue,
 So long as heauens iust with equall brow
 Vouchsafed to behold vs from aboue,
 One day when him high courage did emmoue,
 As wont ye knights to seeke aduentures wilde,
 He pricked forth, his puissant force to proue,
 Me then he left enwombed of this child,
 This lucklesse child, whom thus ye see with bloud defild.
 Him fortun'd (hard fortune ye may ghesse)
 To come, where vile Acrasia does wonne, Acrasia a false enchaunteresse,
 That many errant knights hath foule fordonne:
 Within a wandring Island, that doth ronne
 And stray in perilous gulfe, her dwelling is;
 Faire Sir, if euer there ye trauell, shonne
 The cursed land where many wend amis,
 And know it by the name; it hight the Bowre of blis.

Her blisse is all in pleasure and delight,
 Wherewith she makes her louers drunken mad,
 And then with words and weedes of wondrous might,
 On them she workes her will to vses bad:
 My lifest Lord she thus beguiled had;
 For he was flesh: (all flesh doth frailtie breed.)
 Whom when I heard to beene so il' bestad,
 Weake wretch I wrapt my selfe in Palmers weed,
 And cast to seeke him forth through daunger and great dread.

Now had faire Cynthia by euen tournes
 Full measured three quarters of her yeare,
 And thrise three times had fild her crooked hornes,
 Whenas my wombe her burdein would forbear,
 And bad me call Lucina to me neare.
Lucina came: a manchild forth I brought:
 The woods, the Nymphes, my bowres, my midwiues weare,
 Hard helpe at need. So deare thee babe I bought,
 Yet nought too deare I deemd, while so my dear I sought.

Him so I sought, and so at last I found,
 Where him that witch had thrall'd to her will,
 In chaines of lust and lewd desires ybound,
 And so transformed from his former skill,
 That me he knew not, neither his owne ill;
 Till through wise handling and faire gouernance,
 I him recured to a better will,
 Purged from drugs of foule intemperance:
 Then meanes I gan deuise for his deliuerance.

Which when the vile Enchaunteresse perceiu'd,
 How that my Lord from her I would repriue,
 With cup thus charmd, him parting she deceiu'd;
Sad verse, giue death to him that death does giue,
And losse of loue, to her that loues to liue,
So soone as Bacchus with the Nympe does lincke:
 So parted we and on our iourney driue,
 Till comming to this well, he stoupt to drinke:
 The charme fulfild, dead suddenly he downe did sincke.

 Behold the image of mortalitie,

 The strong through pleasure soonest falles, the weake through
 But temperance (said he) with golden squire lviii
 Betwixt them both can measure out a meane,
 Neither to melt in pleasures whot desire,
 Nor fry in hartlesse grieve and dolefull teene.
 Thrise happie man, who fares them both atweene:
 But sith this wretched woman ouercome

 But after death the tryall is to come,
 When best shall be to them, that liued best:
 But both alike, when death hath both suppress,
 Religious reuerence doth buriall teene,
 Which who so wants, wants so much of his rest:
 For all so great shame after death I weene,
 As selfe to dyen bad, vnburied bad to beene.

THus when Sir Guyon with his faithfull guide
 Had with due rites and dolorous lament
 The end of their sad Tragedie vptyde,
 The litle babe vp in his armes he hent;
 Who with sweet pleasance and bold blandishment
 Gan smyle on them, that rather ought to weepe,
 As carelesse of his woe, or innocent
 Of that was doen, that ruth emperced deepe
 In that knights heart, and wordes with bitter teares did steepe.

Arg. 1 clensd, 1590 &c. 3 Extremities: 1590 &c.

Ah lucklesse babe, borne vnder cruell starre,
 And in dead parents balefull ashes bred,
 Full litle weenest thou, what sorrowes are Left thee for portion of thy liuelihed,
 Poore Orphane in the wide world scattered,
 As budding braunch rent from the natiue tree,
 And throwen forth, till it be withered:
 Such is the state of men: thus enter wee
 Into this life with woe, and end with miseree.

Then soft himselfe inclyning on his knee
 Downe to that well, did in the water weene
 (So loue does loath disdainfull nicitee)
 His guiltie hands from bloudie gore to cleene.
 He washt them oft and oft, yet nought they beene
 For all his washing cleaner. Still he strouc,
 Yet still the litle hands were bloudie seene;
 The which him into great amaz'ment droue,
 And into diuerse doubt his wauering wonder cloue.

He wist not whether blot of foule offence
 Might not be purgd with water nor with bath;
 Or that high God, in lieu of innocence,
 Imprinted had that token of his wrath,
 To shew how sore bloudguiltinesse he hat'th;
 Or that the charme and venim, which they druncke,
 Their blood with secret filth infected hath,
 Being diffused through the senselesse truncke,
 That through the great contagion direfull deadly stunck,
 Whom thus at gaze, the Palmer gan to bord
 With goodly reason, and thus faire bespake;
 Ye bene right hard amated, gracious Lord,
 And of your ignorance great maruell make,
 Whiles cause not well conceiued ye mistake.

 Welling out streames of teares, and quite dismayd
 With stony feare of that rude rustick mate,
 Transformd her to a stone from stedfast virgins state.
 Lo now she is that stone, from whose two heads, ix
 As from two weeping eyes, fresh streames do flow,
 Yet cold through feare, and old conceiued dreads;
 And yet the stone her semblance seemes to show,

Where when the knight arriu'd, he was right well Receiu'd, as knight of so much worth became,
 Of second sister, who did far excell
 The other two; Medina was her name,
 A sober sad, and comely curteous Dame;
 Who rich arayd, and yet in modest guise,
 In goodly garments, that her well became,
 Faire marching forth in honorable wize,
 Him at the threshold met, and well did enterprize.

She led him vp into a goodly bowre,
 And comely courted with meet modestie,
 Ne in her speach, ne in her hauiour,
 Was lightnesse scene, or looser vanitie,
 But gracious womanhood, and grauitie,
 Aboue the reason of her youthly yeares:
 Her golden lockes she roundly did vptye
 In breaded tramels, that no looser heares
 Did out of order stray about her daintie eares.

xv

Whilest she her selfe thus busily did frame,
 Seemely to entertaine her new-come guest,
 Newes hereof to her other sisters came,
 Who all this while were at their wanton rest,
 Accounting each her friend with lauish fest:
 They were two knights of perelesse puissance,
 And famous far abroad for warlike gest,
 Which to these Ladies loue did countenaunce,
 And to his mistresse each himselfe stroue to aduaunce.

xvi

He that made loue vnto the eldest Dame,

 Yet not so good of deedes, as great of name,
 Which he by many rash aduentures wan,
 Since errant armes to sew he first began;
 More huge in strength, then wise in workes he was,
 And reason with foole-hardize ouer ran;
 Sterne melancholy did his courage pas,
 And was for terroure more, all armd in shyning bras.

xvii

xiv

But he that lou'd the youngest, was Sans-loy,
 He that faire Vna late fowle outraged,
 The most vnruely, and the boldest boy,
 That euer warlike weapons menaged,
 And to all lawlesse lust encouraged,
 Through strong opinion of his matchlesse might:
 Ne ought he car'd, whom he endamaged
 By tortious wrong, or whom bereau'd of right.
 He now this Ladies champion chose for loue to fight.

xviii

These two gay knights, vovd to so diuerse loues,
 Each other does enuie with deadly hate,
 And dayly warre against his foeman moues,
 In hope to win more fauour with his mate,
 And th'others pleasing seruice to abate,
 To magnifie his owne. But when they heard,
 How in that place straunge knight arriued late,
 Both knights and Ladies forth right angry far'd,
 And fiercely vnto battell sterne themselues prepar'd.

xix

xvi

But ere they could proceede vnto the place,
 Where he abode, themselues at discord fell,
 And cruell combat ioynd in middle space:
 With horrible assault, and furie fell,
 They heapt huge strokes, the scorned life to quell,
 That all on vpror from her settled seat

 With goodly meanes to pacifie, well as he can.

 Whom they in equall pray hope to deuide,
 They stint their strife, and him assaile on euery side.

But he, not like a wearie traucilere,
 Their sharpe assault right boldly did rebut,
 And suffred not their blowes to byte him nere,
 But with redoubled buffes them backe did put:
 Whose griued mindes, which choler did englut,
 Against themselues turning their wrathfull spight,
 Gan with new rage their shields to hew and cut;
 But still when Guyon came to part their fight,
 With heauie load on him they freshly gan to smight.

 That her on either side do sore assay,
 And boast to swallow her in greedy graue;
 She scorning both their spights, does make wide way,
 And with her brest breaking the fomy waue,
 Does ride on both their backs, and faire her selfe doth saue.

 Wondrous great prowesse and heroick worth

 When two so mighty warriours he dismade:
 Attonce he wards and strikes, he takes and payes,
 Now forst to yield, now forcing to inuade,

 After their wearie sweat and bloudy toile,
 She them besought, during their quiet treague,
 Into her lodging to repaire a while,
 To rest themselues, and grace to reconcile.
 They soone consent: so forth with her they fare,
 Where they are well receiu'd, and made to spoile Themselues of soiled armes, and to prepare
 Their minds to pleasure, and their mouthes to dainty fare.

And those two froward sisters, their faire loues
 Came with them eke, all were they wondrous loth,
 And fained cheare, as for the time behoues,
 But could not colour yet so well the troth,
 But that their natures bad appeard in both:
 For both did at their second sister grutch,
 And inly grieue, as doth an hidden moth
 The inner garment fret, not th'vtter touch;
 One thought their cheare too litle, th'other thought too much.

Elissa (so the eldest hight) did deeme
 Such entertainment base, ne ought would eat,
 Ne ought would speake, but euermore did seeme
 As discontent for want of merth or meat;
 No solace could her Paramour intreat
 Her once to show, ne court, nor dalliance,
 But with bent lowring browes, as she would threat,
 She scould, and frownd with froward countenance,
 Vnworthy of faire Ladies comely gouernaunce.

But young Perissa was of other mind,
 Full of disport, still laughing, loosely light,
 And quite contrary to her sisters kind;
 No measure in her mood, no rule of right,
 But poured out in pleasure and delight;
 In wine and meats she flowd about the bancke,
 And in excesse exceeded her owne might;
 In sumptuous tire she ioyd her selfe to prancke,
 But of her loue too lauish (litle haue she thancke.)

Fast by her side did sit the bold Sans-loy,
 Fit mate for such a mincing mineon,
 Who in her loosenesse tooke exceeding ioy;
 Might not be found a franker franion,
 Of her lewd pastime to make companion;
 But Huddibras, like a Malecontent,
 Did see and grieue at his bold fashion;
 Hardly could he endure his hardiment
 Yet still he sat, and inly did him selfe torment.

 When they would striue dew reason to exceed;
 But that same froward twaine would accourage,
 And of her plenty adde vnto their need:
 So kept she them in order, and her selfe in heed.

 And pleasd them all with meete satietie,
 At last when lust of meat and drinke was ceast,
 She Guyon deare besought of curtesie,

 And whither now on new aduenture bound.
 Who with bold grace, and comely grauitie,
 Drawing to him the eyes of all around,
 From lofty siege began these words aloud to sound.

To her I homage and my seruice owe,
 In number of the noblest knights on ground,
 Mongst whom on me she deigned to bestowe
 Order of Maydenhead, the most renownd,
 That may this day in all the world be found:
 An yearely solemne feast she wontes to make
 The day that first doth lead the yeare around;
 To which all knights of worth and courage bold
 Resort, to heare of straunge aduentures to be told.

There this old Palmer shewed himselfe that day,
 And to that mighty Princesse did complaine
 Of grieuous mischiefes, which a wicked Fay
 Had wrought, and made whelmd in deadly paine,
 Whereof he crau'd redresse. My Soueraine,
 Whose glory is in gracious deeds, and ioyes
 Throughout the world her mercy to maintaine,

 Whose wofull parents she hath wickedly fordonne.

Tell on, faire Sir, said she, that dolefull tale,
 From which sad ruth does seeme you to restraine,
 That we may pittie such vnhappy bale,
 And learne from pleasures poyson to abstaine:

 Sith his good steed is lately from him gone;
 Patience perforce; helpelesse what may it boot
 To fret for anger, or for griefe to mone?
 His Palmer now shall foot no more alone:
 So fortune wrought, as vnder greene woods syde
 He lately heard that dying Lady grone,
 He left his steed without, and speare besyde,
 And rushed in on foot to ayd her, ere she dyde.

The whiles a losell wandring by the way,
 One that to bourtie neuer cast his mind,
 Ne thought of honour euer did assay
 His baser brest, but in his kestrell kind
 A pleasing vaine of glory vaine did find,
 To which his flowing tounge, and troublous spright
 Gae him great ayd, and made him more inclind:
 He that braue steed there finding ready dight,
 Purloynd both steed and speare, and ran away full light.

Now gan his hart all swell in iollitie,
 And of him selfe great hope and helpe conceiu'd,
 That puffed vp with smoke of vanitie,
 And with selfe-loued personage deceiu'd,

 For such, as he him thought, or faine would bee:
 But for in court gay portaunce he perceiu'd,

So forth they pas, a well consorted paire,
 Till that at length with Archimage they meet:
 Who seeing one that shone in armour faire,
 On goodly courser thundring with his feet,
 Eftsoones supposed him a person meet,
 Of his reuenge to make the instrument:
 For since the Redcrosse knight he earst did weet,
 To beene with Guyon knit in one consent,
 The ill, which earst to him, he now to Guyon ment.
 And comming close to Trompart gan inquere
 Of him, what mighty warriour that mote bee,
 That rode in golden sell with single spere,
 But wanted sword to wreake his enmittee.
 He is a great aduenturer, (said he)
 That hath his sword through hard assay forgone,
 And now hath vowd, till he auenged bee,
 Of that despight, neuer to wearen none;

Certes, my Lord, (said he) that shall I soone,
 And giue you eke good helpe to their decay,
 But mote I wisely you aduise to doon;
 Giue no ods to your foes, but do puruay

 For they be two the prowtest knights on ground,
 And oft approu'd in many hard assay,
 And eke of surest steele, that may be found,
 Do arme your selfe against that day, them to confound.

xv

 And that weake eld hath left thee nothing wise,
 Else neuer should thy iudgement be so fraile,
 To measure manhood by the sword or maile.
 Is not enough foure quarters of a man,
 Withouten sword or shield, an host to quaille?
 Thou little wotest, what this right hand can:
 Speake they, which haue beheld the batailles, which it wan.

xvi

The man was much abashed at his boast;
 Yet well he wist, that who so would contend
 With either of those knights on euen coast,
 Should need of all his armes, him to defend;
 Yet feared least his boldnesse should offend,
 When Braggadocchio said, Once I did sweare,
 When with one sword seuen knights I brought to end,
 Thence forth in battell neuer sword to beare,
 But it were that, which noblest knight on earth doth weare.

xvii

Perdie Sir knight, said then th'enchauter blieue,
 That shall I shortly purchase to your hond:
 For now the best and noblest knight aliue
 Prince Arthur is, that wonnes in Faerie lond;
 He hath a sword, that flames like burning brond.
 The same by my deuice I vnder take Shall by to morrow by thy side be fond.
 At which bold word that boaster gan to quake,
 And wondred in his mind, what mote that monster make.

xviii

He stayd not for more bidding, but away
 Was suddein vanished out of his sight:
 The Northerne wind his wings did broad display
 At his commaund, and reared him vp light
 From off the earth to take his aerie flight.
 They lookt about, but no where could espie
 Tract of his foot: then dead through great affright
 They both nigh were, and each bad other flie:
 Both fled attonce, ne euer backe returned eie.

Till that they come vnto a forrest greene,
 In which they shrowd themselues from causelesse feare;
 Yet feare them followes still, where so they beene,
 Each trembling leafe, and whistling wind they heare,
 As ghastly bug their haire on end does reare:
 Yet both the striue their fearfulnessse to faine.
 At last they heard a horne, that shrilled cleare
 Throughout the wood, that ecchoed againe,
 And made the forrest ring, as it would rine in twaine.

Eft through the thicke they heard one rudely rush;
 With noyse whereof he from his loftie steed
 Downe fell to ground, and crept into a bush,
 To hide his coward head from dying dreed.
 But Trompart stoutly stayd to taken heed
 Of what might hap. Eftsoone there stepped forth

 But heauenly pourtraict of bright Angels hew,
 Cleare as the skie, withouten blame or blot,

 And in her cheekes the vermeill red did shew
 Like roses in a bed of lillies shed,

Seemes to be borne by natieue influence;
As feates of armes, and loue to entertaine,
But chiefly skill to ride, seemes a science
Proper to gentle blood; some others faine
To menage steeds, as did this vaunter; but in vaine.

But he the rightfull owner of that steed,
Who well could menage and subdew his pride,
The whiles on foot was forced for to yeed,
With that blacke Palmer, his most trusty guide;
Who suffred not his wandering feet to slide.
But when strong passion, or weake fleshlinesse
Would from the right way seeke to draw him wide,
He would through temperance and stedfastnesse,
Teach him the weake to strengthen, and the strong suppress.

It fortun'd forth faring on his way,
He saw from farre, or seemed for to see
Some troublous vpror or contentious fray,
Whereto he drew in haste it to agree.
A mad man, or that feigned mad to bee,
Drew by the haire along vpon the ground,
A handsome stripling with great crueltee,
Whom sore he bett, and gor'd with many a wound,
That cheekes with teares, and sides with bloud did all abound.

And him behind, a wicked Hag did stalke,
 In ragged robes, and filthy disaray,
 Her other leg was lame, that she no'te walke,
 But on a staffe her feeble steps did stay;
 Her lockes, that loathly were and hoarie gray,
 Grew all afore, and loosely hong vnrold,
 But all behind was bald, and worne away,
 That none thereof could euer taken hold,
 And eke her face ill fauourd, full of wrinckles old.

And euer as she went, her tongue did walke
 In double reproch, and termes of vile despight,
 Proucking him by her outrageous talke,
 To heape more vengeance on that wretched wight;
 Sometimes she raught him stones, wherwith to smite, Sometimes her staffe, though it her one leg were,
 Withouten which she could not go vpright;
 Ne any euill meanes she did forbear,
 That might him moue to wrath, and indignation reare.

The noble Guyon mou'd with great remorse,
 Approching, first the Hag did thrust away,
 And after adding more impetuous forse,
 His mightie hands did on the madman lay,
 And pluckt him backe; who all on fire streight way,
 Against him turning all his fell intent,
 With beastly brutish rage gan him assay,
 And smot, and bit, and kickt, and scratcht, and rent,
 And did he wist not what in his auengement.

And sure he was a man of mickle might,
 Had he had gouernance, it well to guide:
 But when the franticke fit inflamd his spright,
 His force was vaine, and strooke more often wide,
 Then at the aymed marke, which he had eide:
 And oft himselfe he chaunst to hurt vnwares,
 Whilst reason blent through passion, nought describe,
 But as a blindfold Bull at randon fares, [nought cares.
 And where he hits, nought knowes, and whom he hurts,

His rude assault and rugged handeling
 Straunge seemed to the knight, that aye with foe
 In faire defence and goodly menaging
 Of armes was wont to fight, yet nathemoe
 Was he abashed now not fighting so,
 But more enfierced through his currish play,
 Him sternely grypt, and haling to and fro,
 To ouerthrow him strongly did assay,
 But ouerthrew himsele vnwares, and lower lay.

viii

And being downe the villein sore did beat,
 And bruze with clownish fistes his manly face:
 And eke the Hag with many a bitter threat,
 Still cald vpon to kill him in the place.
 With whose reproch and odious menace
 The knight emboying in his haughtie hart,
 Knit all his forces, and gan soone vnbrace
 His grasping hold: so lightly did vpstart,
 And drew his deadly weapon, to maintaine his part.

ix

Which when the Palmer saw, he loudly cryde,
 Not so, O Guyon, neuer thinke that so
 That Monster can be maistred or destroyd:
 He is not, ah, he is not such a foe,
 As steele can wound, or strength can ouerthrooe.
 That same is Furor, cursed cruell wight,
 That vnto knighthood workes much shame and woe;
 And that same Hag, his aged mother, hight Occasion, the root of all wrath and despight.

x

With her, who so will raging Furor tame,
 Must first begin, and well her amenege:
 First her restraine from her reprochfull blame,
 And euill meanes, with which she doth enrage
 Her franticke sonne, and kindles his courage,
 Then when she is withdrawen, or strong withstood,
 It's eath his idle furie to asswage,
 And calme the tempest of his passion wood;
 The bankes are ouerflowen, when stopped is the flood.

Therewith Sir Guyon left his first emprise,
 And turning to that woman, fast her hent
 By the hoare lockes, that hong before her eyes,
 And to the ground her threw: yet n'oukl she stent
 Her bitter rayling and foule reuilement,
 But still prouokt her sonne to wreake her wrong;
 But nathelesse he did her still torment,
 And catching hold of her vngratious tong,
 Thereon an yron lock did fasten firme and strong.

Then when as vse of speach was from her rest,
 With her two crooked handes she signes did make,
 And beckned him, the last helpe she had left:
 But he that last left helpe away did take,
 And both her hands fast bound vnto a stake,
 That she note stirre. Then gan her sonne to flie
 Full fast away, and did her quite forsake;
 But Guyon after him in haste did hie,
 And soone him ouertooke in sad perplexitie.

In his strong armes he stiffely him embraste,
 Who him gainstriuing, nought at all preuaild:
 For all his power was vtterly defaste,
 And furious fits at earst quite weren quaild:
 Oft he re'nforst, and oft his forces fayld,
 Yet yield he would not, nor his rancour slacke.
 Then him to ground he cast, and rudely hayld,
 And both his hands fast bound behind his backe,
 And both his feet in fetters to an yron racke.

With hundred yron chaines he did him bind,
 And hundred knots that did him sore constraine:
 Yet his great yron teeth he still did grind,
 And grimly gnash, threatning reuenge in vaine;
 His burning eyen, whom bloudie strakes did staine,
 Stared full wide, and threw forth sparkes of fire,
 And more for ranck despight, then for great paine,
 Shakt his long lockes, colourd like copper-wire,
 And bit his tawny beard to shew his raging ire.

- Thus when as Guyon Furor had captiu'd, xvi
 Turning about he saw that wretched Squire,
 Whom that mad man of life nigh late depriu'd,
 Lying on ground, all soild with bloud and mire:
 Whom when as he perceiued to respire,
 He gan to comfort, and his wounds to dresse.
 Being at last recured, he gan inquire,
 What hard mishap him brought to such distresse,
 And made that caitiues thral, the thral of wretchednesse.
- With hart then throbbing, and with watry eyes, xvii
 Faire Sir (quoth he) what man can shun the hap,
 That hidden lyes vnwares him to surpryse?
 Misfortune waites aduantage to entrap
 The man most warie in her whelming lap.
 So me weake wretch, of many weakest one,
 Vnweeting, and vnware of such mishap,
 She brought to mischief through occasion,
 Where this same wicked villein did me light vpon.

 Of all my sorrow, and of these sad teares,
 With whom from tender dug of commune nourse,
 Attonce I was vpbrought, and eft when yeares
 More rype vs reason lent to chose our Peares,
 Our selues in league of vowed loue we knit:
 In which we long time without gealous feares,
 Or faultie thoughts continewd, as was fit;
 And for my part I vow, dissembled not a whit.
- It was my fortune commune to that age, xix
 To loue a Ladie faire of great degree,
 The which was borne of noble parentage,
 And set in highest seat of dignitee,
 Yet seemd no lesse to loue, then loued to bee:
 Long I her seru'd, and found her faithfull still,

My friend, hight Philemon, I did partake
Of all my loue and all my priuitie;
Who greatly ioyous seemed for my sake,
And gracious to that Ladie, as to mee,
Ne euer wight, that mote so welcome bee,
As he to her, withouten blot or blame,
Ne euer thing, that she could thinke or see,
But . . . to him she would impart the same:
O wretched man, that would abuse so gentle Dame.

xx

xvii

At last such grace I found, and meanes I wrought,
That I that Ladie to my spouse had wonne;
Accord of friends, consent of parents sought,
Affiance made, my happinesse begonne,
There wanted nought but few rites to be donne,
Which marriage make; that day too farre did seeme:
Most ioyous man, on whom the shining Sunne
Did shew his face, my selfe I did esteeme,
And that my falsen friend did no lesse ioyous deeme.

But ere that wished day his beame disclosd,
He either enuying my toward good,
Or of himselfe to treason ill disposd,
One day vnto me came in friendly mood,
And told for secret how he vnderstood
That Ladie whom I had to me assynd,
Had both distaind her honorable blood,
And eke the faith, which she to me did bynd;
And therfore wisht me stay, till I more truth should fynd.

The gnawing anguish and sharpe gelosy,
Which his sad speech infixd in my brest,
Ranckled so sore, and festred inwardly,
That my engreued mind could find no rest,
Till that the truth thereof I did outwrest,
And him besought by that same sacred band
Betwixt vs both, to counsell me the best.
He then with solemne oath and plighted hand
Assur'd, ere long the truth to let me vnderstand.

 He promised to bring me at that howre,
 When I should see, that would me nearer moue,
 And driue me to withdraw my blind abused loue.

This gracelesse man for furtherance of his guile,
 Did court the handmayd of my Lady deare,
 Who glad t'embosome his affection vile,
 Did all she might, more pleasing to appeare.
 One day to worke her to his will more neare,
 He woo'd her thus: Pryene (so she hight)
 What great despight doth fortune to thee beare,
 Thus lowly to abase thy beautie bright,
 That it should not deface all others lesser light?

xxv

But if she had her least helpe to thee lent,
 T'adorne thy forme according thy desert,
 Their blazing pride thou wouldest soone haue blent,
 And staynd their prayses with thy least good part;

 The whiles to me the treachour did remoue
 His craftie engin, and as he had sayd,
 Me leading, in a secret corner layd,
 The sad spectatour of my Tragedie;
 Where left, he went, and his owne false part playd,
 Disguised like that groome of base degree,
 Whom he had feignd th'abuser of my loue to bee.

Eftsoones he came vnto th'appointed place,
 And with him brought Pryene, rich arayd,
 In Claribellaes clothes. Her proper face
 I not descerned in that darkesome shade,
 But weend it was my loue, with whom he playd.
 Ah God, what horroure and tormenting grieve
 My hart, my hands, mine eyes, and all assayd?
 Me lieber were ten thousand deathes priefe,
 Then wound of gealous worme, and shame of such repriefe.

I home returning, fraught with fowle despight,
 And chawing vengeance all the way I went,
 Soone as my loathed loue appeard in sight,
 With wrathfull hand I slew her innocent;
 That after soone I dearely did lament:
 For when the cause of that outrageous deede
 Demanded, I made plaine and euident,
 Her faultie Handmayd, which that bale did breede, Confest, how Philemon her wrought to chaunge her weede.

Which when I heard, with horrible affright
 And hellish fury all enragd, I sought
 Vpon my selfe that vengeable despight
 To punish: yet it better first I thought,
 To wreake my wrath on him, that first it wrought.
 To Philemon, false faytour Philemon
 I cast to pay, that I so dearely bought;
 Of deadly drugs I gaue him drinke anon,
 And washt away his guilt with guiltie potion.

Thus heaping crime on crime, and grieve on grieve,
 To losse of loue adioyning losse of frend,
 I meant to purge both with a third mischiefe,
 And in my woes beginner it to end:
 That was Pryene; she did first offend,
 She last should smart: with which cruell intent,
 When I at her my murderous blade did bend,
 She fled away with ghastly dreriment,
 And I pursewing my fell purpose, after went.

xxviii 2 Pryene, 1596 4 discerned 1609 8 deathez 1609

Feare gaue her wings, and rage enforst my flight; xxxiii
 Through woods and plaines so long I did her chace, Till this mad man, whom your victorious might Hath now fast bound, me met in middle space,
 As I her, so he me pursewd apace,
 And shortly ouertooke: I, breathing yre,
 Sore chauffed at my stay in such a cace,
 And with my heat kindled his cruell fyre;
 Which kindled once, his mother did more rage inspyre.

Betwixt them both, they haue me doen to dye, xxxiii
 Through wounds, and strokes, and stubborne handling,
 That death were better, then such agony,
 As grieve and furie vnto me did bring;
 Of which in me yet stickes the mortall sting,
 That during life will neuer be appeasd.
 When he thus ended had his sorrowing,
 Said Guyon, Squire, sore haue ye beene diseasd;
 But all your hurts may soone through temperance be easd.

Then gan the Palmer thus, Most wretched man, xxxiv
 That to affections does the bridle lend;
 In their beginning they are weake and wan,
 But soone through suffrance grow to fearefull end;
 Whiles they are weake betimes with them contend:
 For when they once to perfect strength do grow,
 Strong warres they make, and cruell battry bend
 Gainst fort of Reason, it to ouerthrow:
 Wrath, gelosie, grieve, loue this Squire haue layd thus low.

Wrath, gealosie, grieve, loue do thus expell: xxxv
 Wrath is a fire, and gealosie a weede,
 Grieve is a flood, and loue a monster fell;
 The fire of sparkes, the weede of little seede,
 The flood of drops, the Monster filth did breede:
 But sparks, seed, drops, and filth do thus delay;
 The sparks soone quench, the springing seed outweed,
 The drops dry vp, and filth wipe cleane away:
 So shall wrath, gealosie, grieve, loue dye and decay.

Vnlucky Squire (said Guyon) sith thou hast
 Falne into mischiefe through intemperaunce,
 Henceforth take heede of that thou now hast past,
 And guide thy wayes with warie gouernaunce,
 Least worse betide thee by some later chaunce.
 But read how art thou nam'd, and of what kin.
Phedon I hight (quoth he) and do aduaunce
 Mine auncestry from famous Coradin,
 Who first to rayse our house to honour did begin.

Thus as he spake, lo far away they spyde
 A varlet running towards hastily,
 Whose flying feet so fast their way applyde,
 That round about a cloud of dust did fly,
 Which mingled all with sweate, did dim his eye.
 He soone approched, panting, breathlesse, whot,
 And all so soyled, that none could him descry;
 His countenaunce was bold, and bashed not
 For Guyons lookes, but scornefull eyglaunce at him shot.

Behind his backe he bore a brasen shield,
 On which was drawen faire, in colours fit,
 A flaming fire in midst of bloudy field,
 And round about the wreath this word was writ,
Burnt I do burne. Right well beseemed it,
 To be the shield of some redoubted knight;
 And in his hand two darts exceeding flit,
 And deadly sharpe he held, whose heads were dight
 In poyson and in bloud, of malice and despight.

When he in presence came, to Guyon first
 He boldly spake, Sir knight, if knight thou bee,
 Abandon this forestalled place at erst,
 For feare of further harme, I counsell thee,
 Or bide the chaunce at thine owne ieoperdie.
 The knight at his great boldnesse wondered,
 And though he scornd his idle vanitie,
 Yet mildly him to purpose answered;
 For not to grow of nought he it coniectured.

Varlet; this place most dew to me I deeme,
Yielded by him, that held it forcibly. xi

Butwhenceshould come that harme, which thou doest seeme
To threat to him, that minds his chaunce t'abye?
Perdy (said he) here comes, and is hard by
A knight of wondrous powre, and great assay,
That neuer yet encountred enemy,
But did him deadly daunt, or fowle dismay;
Ne thou for better hope, if thou his presence stay.

How hight he then (said Guyon) and from whence? xii
Pyrochles is his name, renowned farre
For his bold feats and hardy confidence,
Full oft approu'd in many a cruell warre,
The brother of Cymochles, both which arre
The sonnes of old Acrates and Despight,
Acrates sonne of Phlegeton and Iarre;
But Phlegeton is sonne of Herebus and Night;
But Herebus sonne of Aeternitie is hight.

So from immortall race he does proceede, xiii
That mortall hands may not withstand his might,
Drad for his derring do, and bloody deed;
For all in bloud and spoile is his delight.
His am I Atin, his in wrong and right,
That matter make for him to worke vpon,
And stirre him vp to strife and cruell fight.
Fly therefore, fly this fearefull stead anon,
Least thy foolhardize worke thy sad confusion.

His be that care, whom most it doth concerne, xlii
(Said he) but whither with such hasty flight
Art thou now bound? for well mote I discerne
Great cause, that carries thee so swift and light.
My Lord (quoth he) me sent, and streight behight
To seeke Occasion, where so she bee:
For he is all disposd to bloody fight,
And breathes out wrath and hainous crueltie;
Hard is his hap, that first fals in his ieopardie.

WHo euer doth to temperaunce apply
His stedfast life, and all his actions frame,
Trust me, shall find no greater enemy,
Then stubborne perturbation, to the same;
To which right well the wise do giue that name,
For it the goodly peace of stayed mindes
Does ouerthrow, and troublous warre proclame:
His owne woes authour, who so bound it findes,
As did Pyrochles, and it wilfully vnbindes.

After that varlets flight, it was not long,
Ere on the plaine fast pricking Guyon spide
One in bright armes embatteiled full strong,
That as the Sunny beames do glaunce and glide
Vpon the trembling waue, so shined bright,
And round about him threw forth sparkling fire,
That seemd him to enflame on euery side:
His steed was bloody red, and fomed ire,
When with the maistring spur he did him roughly stire.

Approching nigh, he neuer stayd to greete,
Ne chaffar words, prowde courage to prouoke,
But prickt so fiers, that vnderneath his feete
The smouldring dust did round about him smoke,
Both horse and man nigh able for to choke;
A: 1 fairly couching his steele-headed speare,
Him first saluted with a sturdy stroke;
It booted nought Sir Guyon comming neare

But lightly shunned it, and passing by,
 With his bright blade did smite at him so fell,
 That the sharpe steele arriuing forcibly
 On his broad shield, bit not, but glauncing fell
 On his horse necke before the quilted sell,
 And from the head the body sundred quight.
 So him dismounted low, he did compell
 On foot with him to matchen equall fight;
 The truncked beast fast bleeding, did him fowly dight.

iv

Sore bruized with the fall, he slow vprose,
 And all enraged, thus him loudly shent;
 Disleall knight, whose coward courage chose
 To wreake it selfe on beast all innocent,
 And shund the marke, at which it should be ment,
 Thereby thine armes seeme strong, but manhood fraile;
 So hast thou oft with guile thine honour blent;
 But litle may such guile thee now auaile,
 If wonted force and fortune do not much me faile.

v

With that he drew his flaming sword, and strooke
 At him so fiercely, that the vpper marge
 Of his seuenfolding shield away it tooke,
 And glauncing on his helmet, made a large
 And open gash therein: were not his targe,
 That broke the violence of his intent,
 The weary soule from thence it would discharge;
 Nathelesse so sore a buff to him it lent,
 That made him reele, and to his brest his beuer bent.

vi

Exceeding wroth was Guyon at that blow,
 And much ashamd, that stroke of liuing arme
 Should him dismay, and make him stoup so low,
 Though otherwise it did him litle harme:
 Tho hurling high his yron braced arme,

Fly, O Pyrochles, fly the dreadfull warre,
 That in thy selfe thy lesser parts do moue,
 Outrageous anger, and woe-working iarre,
 Direfull impatience, and hart murdring loue;
 Those, those thy foes, those warriours far remoue,
 Which thee to endlesse bale captiued lead.
 But sith in might thou didst my mercy proue,
 Of curtesie to me the cause aread,
 That thee against me drew with so impetuous dread.

xvi

Dreadlesse (said he) that shall I soone declare:
 It was complaind, that thou hadst done great tort Vnto an aged woman, poore and bare,
 And thralld her in chaines with strong effort,
 Voide of all succour and needfull comfort:
 That ill beseemes thee, such as I thee see,
 To worke such shame. Therefore I thee exhort,
 To chaunge thy will, and set Occasion free,
 And to her captiue sonne yield his first libertee.

xvii

Thereat Sir Guyon smilde, And is that all (Said he) that thee so sore displeased hath?
 Great mercy sure, for to enlarge a thrall,
 Whose freedome shall thee turne to greatest scath.
 Nath'lesse now quench thy whot emboyling wrath:
 Loe there they be; to thee I yield them free.
 Thereat he wondrous glad, out of the path
 Did lighly scape, where he them bound did see,
 And gan to breake the bands of their captiuitee.

xviii

Soone as Occasion felt her selfe vntyde,
 Before her sonne could well assoyled bee,
 She to her vse returnd, and streight defyde
 Both Guyon and Pyrochles: th'one (said shee)
 Bycause he wonne; the other because hee
 Was wonne: So matter did she make of nought,
 To stirre vp strife, and do them disagree:
 But soone as Furor was enlargd, she sought
 To kindle his quencht fire, and thousand causes wrought.

It was not long, ere she inflam'd him so,
 That he would algates with Pyrochles fight,
 And his redeemer chalengd for his foe,
 Because he had not well mainteind his right,
 But yielded had to that same straunger knight:
 Now gan Pyrochles wex as wood, as hee,
 And him affronted with impatient might:
 So both together fiers engrasped bee,
 Whiles Guyon standing by, their vncouth strife does see.

Him all that while Occasion did prouoke
 Against Pyrochles, and new matter framed
 Vpon the old, him stirring to be wroke
 Of his late wrongs, in which she oft him blamed
 For suffering such abuse, as knighthood shamed,
 And him dishabled quite. But he was wise
 Ne would with vaine occasions be inflamed;
 Yet others she more vrgent did deuise:
 Yet nothing could him to impatience entise.

Their fell contention still increased more,
 And more thereby increased Furors might,
 That he his foe has hurt, and wounded sore,
 And him in bloud and durt deformed quight.
 His mother eke, more to augment his spight,
 Now brought to him a flaming fire brond,
 Which she in Stygian lake, ay burning bright,
 Had kindled: that she gaue into his hond,
 That armd with fire, more hardly he mote him withstond.

Tho gan that villain wex so fiers and strong,
 That nothing might sustaine his furious forse;
 He cast him downe to ground, and all along
 Drew him through durt and myre without remorse,
 And fowly battered his comely corse,
 That Guyon much disdeignd so loathly sight.
 At last he was compeld to cry perforce,
 Helpe, O Sir Guyon, helpe most noble knight,
 To rid a wretched man from hands of hellish wight.

The knight was greatly moued at his plaint,
 And gan him dight to succour his distresse,
 Till that the Palmer, by his graue restraint,
 Him stayd from yielding pitifull redresse;
 And said, Deare sonne, thy causelesse ruth repress,
 Ne let thy stout hart melt in pittie vayne:
 He that his sorrow sought through wilfulnesse,
 And his foe fettred would release agayne,
 Deserues to tast his follies fruit, repented payne.

Guyon obeyd; So him away he drew
 From needlesse trouble of renewing fight
 Already fought, his voyage to pursew.
 But rash Pyrochles varlet, Atin hight,
 When late he saw his Lord in heauy plight,
 Vnder Sir Guyons puissaunt stroke to fall,
 Him deeming dead, as then he seemd in sight,
 Fled fast away, to tell his funerall
 Vnto his brother, whom Cymo-hles men did call.

xxv

He was a man of rare redoubted might,
 Famous throughout the world for warlike prayse,
 And glorious spoiles, purchast in perilous fight:
 Full many doughtie knights he in his dayes
 Had doen to death, subdewde in equall frayes,
 Whose carkases, for terroure of his name,
 Of fowles and beastes he made the piteous prayes,
 And hong their conquered armes for more defame
 On gallow trees, in honour of his dearest Dame.

xxvi

His dearest Dame is that Enchaunteresse,
 The vile Acrasia, that with vaine delightes,
 And idle pleasures in her Bowre of Blisse,
 Does charme her lovers, and the feeble sprightes
 Can call out of the bodies of fraile wightes:
 Whom then she does transforme to monstrous hewes,
 And horribly misshapes with vgly sightes,
 Captiu'd eternally in yron mewes,
 And darksom dens, where Titan his face neuer shewes.

There Atin found Cymochles sojourning,
 To serue his Lemans loue: for he, by kind,
 Was giuen all to lust and loose liuing,
 When euer his fiers hands he free mote find:
 And now he has poured out his idle mind
 In daintie delices, and lauish ioyes,
 Hauing his warlike weapons cast behind,
 And flowes in pleasures, and vaine pleasing toyes,
 Mingled emongst loose Ladies and lasciuious boyes.

And ouer him, art striuing to compaire
 With nature, did an Arber greene dispred,
 Framed of wanton Yuie, flouing faire,
 Through which the fragrant Eglantine did spred
 His pricking armes, entrayld with roses red,
 Which daintie odours round about them threw,
 And all within with flowres was garnished,
 That when myld Zephyrus emongst them blew,
 Did breath out bounteous smels, and painted colors shew.

And fast beside, there trickled softly downe
 A gentle streame, whose murmuring waue did play
 Emongst the pumy stones, and made a sowne,
 To lull him soft a sleepe, that by it lay;
 The wearie Traueiler, wandring that way,
 Therein did often quench his thirsty heat,
 And then by it his wearie limbes displaied,
 Whiles creeping slomber made him to forget
 His former paine, and wypt away his toylsom sweat.

And on the other side a pleasaunt groue
 Was shot vp high, full of the stately trec,
 That dedicated is t'Olympicke Ioue,
 And to his sonne Alcides, whenas hee
 Gaynd in Nemea goodly victoree;
 Therein the mery birds of euery sort
 Chaunted alowd their chearefull harmonie:

There he him found all carelesly displayd,
 In secret shadow from the sunny ray,
 On a sweet bed of lillies softly layd,
 Amidst a flocke of Damzels fresh and gay,
 That round about him dissolute did play
 Their wanton follies, and light meriment;
 Euery of which did loosely disaray
 Her vpper parts of meet habiliments,
 And shewd them naked, deckt with many ornaments.

xxxiii

And euery of them stroue, with most delights,
 Him to aggrate, and greatest pleasures shew;
 Some framd faire lookes, glancing like euening lights,
 Others sweet words, dropping like honny dew;
 Some bathed kisses, and did soft embrew
 The sugred licour through his melting lips:
 One boastes her beautie, and does yeeld to vew
 Her daintie limbes about her tender hips;
 Another her out boastes, and all for tryall strips.

xxxiii

He, like an Adder, lurking in the weeds,
 His wandring thought in deepe desire does steepe,
 And his fraile eye with spoyle of beautie feedes;
 Sometimes he falsely faines himselfe to sleepe,
 Whiles through their lids his wanton eies do peepe,
 To steale a snatch of amorous conceipt,
 Whereby close fire into his heart does creepe:
 So, them deceiues, deceiu'd in his deceit,
 Made drunke with drugs of deare voluptuous receipt.

Cant. VI.

A Harder lesson, to learne Continence
In ioyous pleasure, then in grievous paine:
For sweetnesse doth allure the weaker sence
So strongly, that vneathes it can refraine
From that, which feeble nature couets faine;
But grieve and wrath, that be her enemies,
And foes of life, she better can restraine;
Yet vertue vauntes in both their victories,
And Guyon in them all shewes goodly maisteries.

Whom bold Cymochles traueilling to find,
With cruell purpose bent to wreake on him
The wrath, which Atin kindled in his mind,
Came to a riuier, by whose vtmost brim
Wayting to passe, he saw whereas did swim
A long the shore, as swift as glaunce of eye,
A litle Gondelay, bedecked trim
With boughes and arbours wouen cunningly,
That like a litle forrest seemed outwardly.

And therein sate a Ladie fresh and faire,
Making sweet solace to her selfe alone;
Sometimes she sung, as loud as larke in aire,
Sometimes she laught, that nigh her breth was gone,
Yet was there not with her else any one,
That might to her moue cause of meriment:
Matter of merth enough, though there were none,
She could deuise, and thousand waies inuent,
To feede her foolish humour, and vaine iolliment.

Which when farre off Cymochles heard, and saw,
 He loudly cald to such, as were a bord,
 The little barke vnto the shore to draw,
 And him to ferrie ouer that deepe ford:
 The merry marriner vnto his word
 Soone hearkned, and her painted bote streightway
 Turnd to the shore, where that same warlike Lord
 She in receiu'd; but Atin by no way
 She would admit, albe the knight her much did pray.
 Eftsoones her shallow ship away did slide,
 More swift, then swallow sheres the liquid skie,
 Withouten oare or Pilot it to guide,
 Or winged canuas with the wind to flie,
 Only she turn'd a pin, and by and by
 It cut away vpon the yielding waue,
 Ne cared she her course for to apply:
 For it was taught the way, which she would haue,
 And both from rocks and flats it selfe could wisely saue.
 And all the way, the wanton Damzell found
 New merth, her passenger to entertaine:
 For she in pleasant purpose did abound,
 And greatly ioyed merry tales to faine,
 Of which a store-house did with her remaine,
 Yet seemed, nothing well they her became;
 For all her words she drownd with laughter vaine,
 And wanted grace in vtt'ring of the same,
 That turned all her pleasance to a scoffing game.
 And other whiles vaine toyes she would deuize
 As her fantasticke wit did most delight,
 Sometimes her head she fondly would aguize
 With gaudie girlonds, or fresh flowrets dight
 About her necke, or rings of rushes plight;
 Sometimes to doe him laugh, she would assay
 To laugh at shaking of the leaues light,
 Or to behold the water worke, and play
 About her litle frigot, therein making way.

Her light behauiour, and loose dalliaunce
 Gaue wondrous great contentment to the knight,
 That of his way he had no souenaunce,
 Nor care of vow'd reuenge, and cruell fight,
 But to weake wench did yeeld his martiall might.
 So easie was to quench his flamed mind
 With one sweet drop of sensuall delight,
 So easie is, t'appease the stormie wind
 Of malice in the calme of pleasant womankind.

viii

Diuerse discourses in their way they spent,
 Mongst which Cymochles of her questioned,
 Both what she was, and what that vsage ment,
 Which in her cot she daily practised.
 Vaine man (said she) that wouldest be reckoned
 A straunger in thy home, and ignoraunt
 Of Phedria (for so my name is red)
 Of Phedria, thine owne fellow seruauant;
 For thou to serue Acrasia thy selfe doest vaunt.

ix

In this wide Inland sea, that hight by name
 The Idle lake, my wandring ship I row,
 That knowes her port, and thither sailes by ayme,
 Ne care, ne feare I, how the wind do blow,
 Or whether swift I wend, or whether slow:
 Both slow and swift a like do serue my tourne,
 Ne swelling Neptune, ne loud thundring Ioue
 Can chaunge my cheare, or make me euer mourne;
 My litle boat can safely passe this perilous bourne.

x

Whiles thus she talked, and whiles thus she toyd,
 They were farre past the passage, which he spake,
 And come vnto an Island, waste and voyd,
 That floted in the midst of that great lake,
 There her small Gondelay her port did make,
 And that gay paire issuing on the shore Disbudded her. Their way they forward take Into the land, that lay them faire before,
 Whose pleasaunce she him shew'd, and plentifull great store.

xi

It was a chosen plot of fertile land,
 Emongst wide waues set, like a litle nest,
 As if it had by Natures cunning hand
 Bene choisely picked out from all the rest,
 And laid forth for ensample of the best:
 No daintie flowre or herbe, that growes on ground,
 No arboret with painted blossomes drest,
 And smelling sweet, but there it might be found
 To bud out faire, and her sweet smels throw all around.

xii

No tree, whose braunches did not brauely spring;
 No braunch, whereon a fine bird did not sit:
 No bird, but did her shrill notes sweetly sing;
 No song but did containe a louely dit:
 Trees, braunches, birds, and songs were framed fit,
 For to allure fraile mind to carelesse ease.
 Carelesse the man soone woxe, and his weake wit
 Was ouercome of thing, that did him please;
 So pleased, did his wrathfull purpose faire appease.

xiii

Thus when she had his eyes and senses fed
 With false delights, and fild with pleasures vaine,
 Into a shadie dale she soft him led,
 And laid him downe vpon a grassie plaine;
 And her sweet selfe without dread, or disdaine,
 She set beside, laying his head disarm'd
 In her loose lap, it softly to sustaine,
 Where soone he slumbred, fearing not be harm'd,
 The whiles with a loud lay she thus him sweetly charm'd.

xiv

Behold, O man, that toilesome paines doest take,
 The flowres, the fields, and all that pleasant growes,
 How they themselues doe thine ensample make,
 Whiles nothing enuious nature them forth throwes
 Out of her fruitfull lap; how, no man knowes,
 They spring, they bud, they blossome fresh and faire,
 And deck the world with their rich pompous showes;
 Yet no man for them taketh paines or care,
 Yet no man to them can his carefull paines compare.

 The Flowre-deluce, her louely Paramoure,
 Bid thee to them thy fruitlesse labours yield,
 And soone leaue off this toylesome wearie stoure;
 Loe loe how braue she decks her bounteous boure,
 With silken curtens and gold couerlets,
 Therein to shrowd her sumptuous Belamoure,
 Yet neither spinnes nor cardes, ne cares nor frets,
 But to her mother Nature all her care she lets.

xvi

Why then dost thou, O man, that of them all
 Art Lord, and eke of nature Soueraine,
 Wilfully make thy selfe a wretched thrall,
 And wast thy ioyous houres in needlesse paine,
 Seeking for daunger and aduentures vaine?
 What bootes it all to haue, and nothing vse?
 Who shall him rew, that swimming in the maine,
 Will die for thirst, and water doth refuse?
 Refuse such fruitlesse toile, and present pleasures chuse.

xvii

By this she had him lulled fast a sleepe,
 That of no worldly thing he care did take;
 Then she with liquors strong his eyes did steepe,
 That nothing should him hastily awake:
 So she him left, and did her selfe betake

xvi Guyon was loath to leaue his guide behind,
 Yet being entred, might not backe retyre;
 For the flit barke, obaying to her mind,
 Forth launched quickly, as she did desire,
 Ne gaue him leaue to bid that aged sire
 Adieu, but nimbly ran her wonted course
 Through the dull billowes thicke as troubled mire,
 Whom neither wind out of their seat could forse,
 Nor timely tides did driue out of their sluggish sourse.

xvii And by the way, as was her wonted guize,
 Her merry fit she freshly gan to reare,
 And did of ioy and iollitie deuize,
 Her selfe to cherish, and her guest to cheare:
 The knight was courteous, and did not forbear
 Her honest merth and pleasaunce to partake;
 But when he saw her toy, and gibe, and geare,
 And passe the bonds of modest merimake,
 Her dalliance he despisd, and follies did forsake.

xviii Yet she still followed her former stile,
 And said, and did all that mote him delight,
 Till they arriued in that pleasant Ile,
 Where sleeping late she left her other knight.
 But when as Guyon of that land had sight,
 He wist himselfe amisse, and angry said;
 Ah Dame, perdie ye haue not doen me right,
 Thus to mislead me, whiles I you obaid:
 Me litle needed from my right way to haue straid.

xix Faire Sir (quoth she) be not displeasd at all;
 Who fares on sea, may not commaund his way,
 Ne wind and weather at his pleasure call:
 The sea is wide, and easie for to stray;
 The wind vnstable, and doth neuer stay.
 But here a while ye may in safety rest,
 Till season serue new passage to assay;
 Better safe port, then be in seas distrest.
 Therewith she laught, and did her earnest end in iest.

But he halfe discontent, mote nathelesse
 Himselfe appease, and issewd forth on shore:
 The ioyes whereof, and happie fruitfulnesse,
 Such as he saw, she gan him lay before,
 And all though pleasant, yet she made much more:
 The fields did laugh, the flowres did freshly spring,
 The trees did bud, and carely blossomes bore,
 And all the quire of birds did sweetly sing,
 And told that gardins pleasures in their caroling.

xxiv

And she more sweet, then any bird on bough,
 Would oftentimes emongst them beare a part,
 And striue to passe (as she could well enough)
 Their natiue musicke by her skilfull art:
 So did she all, that might his constant hart
 Withdraw from thought of warlike enterprize,
 And drowne in dissolute delights apart,
 Where noyse of armes, or vew of martiall guize
 Might not reuiue desire of knightly exercize.

xxv

But he was wise, and warie of her will,
 And euer held his hand vpon his hart:
 Yet would not seeme so rude, and thewed ill,
 As to despise so courteous seeming part,
 That gentle Ladie did to him impart,
 But fairely tempring fond desire subdewd,
 And euer her desired to depart.

xxvi

She list not heare, but her disports poursewd,
 And euer bad him stay, till time the tide renewd.

And now by this, Cymochles howre was spent,
 That he awoke out of his idle dreme,
 And shaking off his drowzie dreriment,
 Gan him auize, how ill did him beseeme,
 In slouthfull sleepe his molten hart to steme,
 And quench the brond of his conceiued ire.
 Tho vp he started, stird with shame extreme,
 Ne staid for his Damzell to inquire,
 But marched to the strond, there passage to require.

xxvii

And in the way he with Sir Guyon met,
 Accompanyde with Phadria the faire,
 Eftsoones he gan to rage, and inly fret,
 Crying, Let be that Ladie debonaire,
 Thou recreant knight, and soone thy selfe prepaire
 To battell, if thou meane her loue to gaine:
 Loe, loe alreadie, how the fowles in aire
 Doe flocke, awaiting shortly to obtaine
 Thy carcasse for their pray, the guerdon of thy paine.

And therewithall he fiercely at him flew,
 And with importune outrage him assayld;
 Who soone prepar'd to field, his sword forth drew,
 And him with equall value counteruayld:
 Their mightie strokes their haberieons dismayld,
 And naked made each others manly spalles;
 The mortall steele despiteously entayld
 Deepe in their flesh, quite through the yron walles,
 That a large purple streame adown their giambeux falles.

Cymochles, that had neuer met before
 So puissant foe, with enuious despight
 His proud presumed force increased more,
 Disdeigning to be held so long in fight;
 Sir Guyon grudging not so much his might,
 As those vnknightly raylings, which he spoke,
 With wrathfull fire his courage kindled bright,
 Thereof deuising shortly to be wroke,
 And doubling all his powres, redoubled euery stroke.

Both of them high attonce their hands enhaunst,
 And both attonce their huge blowes downe did sway;
Cymochles sword on Guyons shield yglaunst,
 And thereof nigh one quarter sheard away;
 But Guyons angry blade so fierce did play
 On th'others helmet, which as Titan shone,
 That quite it cloue his plumed crest in tway,
 And bared all his head vnto the bone;
 Wherewith astonisht, still he stood, as senselesse stone.

Still as he stood, faire Phædria, that beheld
 That deadly daunger, soone atweene them ran;
 And at their feet her selfe most humbly feld,
 Crying with pitteous voice, and count'nance wan;
 Ah well away, most noble Lords, how can
 Your cruell eyes endure so pitteous sight,
 To shed your liues on ground? wo worth the man,
 That first did teach the cursed steele to bight
 In his owne flesh, and make way to the liuing spright.

xxxii

If euer loue of Ladie did empierce
 Your yron brestes, or pittie could find place,
 Withhold your bloudie hands from battell fierce,
 And sith for me ye fight, to me this grace
 Both yeeld, to stay your deadly strife a space.
 They stayd a while: and forth she gan proceed:
 Most wretched woman, and of wicked race,
 That am the author of this hainous deed,
 And cause of death betweene two doughtie knights doe breed.

xxxiii

But if for me ye fight, or me will serue,
 Not this rude kind of battell, nor these armes
 Are meet, the which doe men in bale to sterue,
 And dolefull sorrow heape with deadly harmes:
 Such cruell game my scarmoges disarmes:
 Another warre, and other weapons I
 Doe loue, where loue does giue his sweet alarmes,
 Without bloudshed, and where the enemy
 Does yeeld vnto his foe a pleasant victory.

xxxiv

Debatefull strife, and cruell enmitie
 The famous name of knighthood fowly shend;
 But louely peace, and gentle amitie,
 And in Amours the passing houres to spend,
 The mightie martiall hands doe most commend;
 Of loue they euer greater glory bore,
 Then of their armes: Mars is Cupidoes frend,
 And is for Venus loues renowned more,
 Then all his wars and spoiles, the which he did of yore.

Therewith she sweetly smyld. They though full bent xxxvi

To proue extremities of bloudie fight,
Yet at her speach their rages gan relent,
And calme the sea of their tempestuous spight,
Such powre haue pleasing words: such is the might

The which on the dull waues did lightly flote
And soone arriued on the shallow sand,
Where gladsome Guyon salied forth to land,
And to that Damzell thanks gaue for reward.
Vpon that shore he spied Ain stand,
There by his maister left, when late he far'd

He with Pyrochles sharp debatement made;
Streight gan he him reuile, and bitter rate,
As shepherds curre, that in darke euenings shade
Hath tracted forth some saluage beastes trade;
Vile Miscreant (said he) whither doest thou flie
The shame and death, which will thee soone inuade?

What coward hand shall doe thee next to die,
That art thus foully fled from famousemie?

With that he stiffely shooke his steelehead dart:
 But sober Guyon, hearing him so raile,
 Though somewhat moued in his mightie hart,
 Yet with strong reason maistred passion fraile,
 And passed fairely forth. He turning taile,
 Backe to the strond retyrd, and there still stayd,
 Awaiting passage, which him late did faile;
 The whiles Cymochles with that wanton mayd
 The hastie heat of his auowd reuenge delayd.

xi

Whylest there the varlet stood, he saw from farre
 An armed knight, that towards him fast ran,
 He ran on foot, as if in lucklesse warre
 His forlorne steed from him the victour wan;
 He seemed breathlesse, hartlesse, faint, and wan,
 And all his armour sprinckled was with bloud,
 And soylde with durtie gore, that no man can Discerne the hew thereof. He neuer stood,
 But bent his hastie course towards the idle flood.

xii

The varlet saw, when to the flood he came,
 How without stop or stay he fiercely lept,
 And deepe him selfe beducked in the same,
 That in the lake his loftie crest was steept,
 Ne of his safetie seemed care he kept,
 But with his raging armes he rudely flasht
 The waues about, and all his armour swept,
 That all the bloud and filth away was washt,
 Yet still he bet the water, and the billowes dasht.

xiii

Ain drew nigh, to weet what it mote bee;
 For much he wondred at that vncouth sight;
 Whom should he, but his owne deare Lord, there see,
 His owne deare Lord Pyrochles, in sad plight,
 Readie to drowne himselfe for fell despight.
 Harrow now out, and well away, he cryde,
 What dismall day hath lent this cursed light,
 To see my Lord so deadly damnifyde?
Pyrochles, O Pyrochles, what is thee betyde?

I burne, I burne, I burne, then loud he cryde,
 O how I burne with implacable fire,
 Yet nought can quench mine inly flaming syde,
 Nor sea of licour cold, nor lake of mire,
 Nothing but death can doe me to respire.
 Ah be it (said he) from Pyrochles farre
 After pursewing death once to require,
 Or think, that ought those puissant hands may marre:
 Death is for wretches borne vnder vnhappy starre.

Perdie, then is it fit for me (said he)
 That am, I weene, most wretched man aliue,
 Burning in flames, yet no flames can I see,
 And dying daily, daily yet reuiue:
 O Atin, helpe to me last death to giue.
 The varlet at his plaint was griued so sore,
 That his deepe wounded hart in two did riue,
 And his owne health remembring now no more,
 Did follow that ensample, which he blam'd afore.

Into the lake he leapt, his Lord to ayd,
 (So Loue the dread of daunger doth despise)
 And of him catching hold him strongly stayd
 From drowning. But more happie he, then wise
 Of that seas nature did him not aise.
 The waues thereof so slow and sluggish were,
 Engrost with mud, which did them foule agrise,
 That euery weightie thing they did vpbeare,
 Ne ought mote euer sinke downe to the bottome there.

Whiles thus they struggled in that idle waue,
 And stroue in vaine, the one himselfe to drowne,
 The other both from drowning for to saue,
 Lo, to that shore one in an auncient gowne,
 Whose hoarie locks great grauitie did crowne,
 Holding in hand a goodly arming sword,
 By fortune came, led with the troublous sowne:
 Where drenched deepe he found in that dull ford
 The carefull seruant, striuing with his raging Lord.

Him Ain spying, knew right well of yore,
 And loudly cald, Helpe helpe, O Archimago;
 To saue my Lord, in wretched plight forlore;
 Helpe with thy hand, or with thy counsell sage:
 Weake hands, but counsell is most strong in age.
 Him when the old man saw, he wondred sore,
 To see Pyrochles there so rudely rage:
 Yet sithens helpe, he saw, he needed more
 Then pittie, he in hast approached to the shore.

xlviii

And cald, Pyrochles, what is this, I see?
 What hellish furie hath at earst thee hent?
 Furious euer I thee knew to bee,
 Yet neuer in this strange astonishment.
 These flames, these flames (he cryde) do me torment.
 What flames (quoth he) when I thee present see,
 In daunger rather to be burnt, then brent?
 Harrow, the flames, which me consume (said hee)
 Ne can be quencht, within my secret bowels bee.

That cursed man, that cruell feend of hell,
Furor, oh Furor hath me thus bedight:
 His deadly wounds within my liuers swell,
 And his whot fire burnes in mine entrails bright,
 Kindled through his infernall brond of spight,
 Sith late with him I batteil vaine would boste;
 That now I weene Ioues dreaded thunder light
 Does scorch not halfe so sore, nor damned ghoste
 In flaming Phlegeton does not so felly roste.

Which when as Archimago heard, his griefe
 He knew right well, and him attonce disarmd:
 Then searcht his secret wounds, and made a priefe
 Of euery place, that was with brusing harmd,
 Or with the hidden fire too inly warmd.
 Which done, he balmes and herbes thereto applyde,
 And euermore with mighty spels them charmd,
 That in short space he has them qualifyde,
 And him restor'd to health, that would haue algates dyde.

Cant. VII.

*Guyon findes Mammon in a delus,
 Summing his treasure bore:
 Is by him compassed, and led downe,
 To see his secret store.*

AS Pilot well expert in perilous waue,
 That to a stedfast starre his course hath bent,
 When foggy mistes, or cloudy tempests haue
 The faithfull light of that faire lampe yblent,
 And couer'd heauen with hideous dremiment,
 Vpon his card and compas firmes his eye,
 The maisters of his long experiment,
 And to them does the steddly helme apply,
 Bidding his winged vessell fairly forward fly:

So Guyon hauing lost his trusty guide,
 Late left beyond that Tidle lake, proceedes
 Yet on his way, of none accompanide;
 And euermore himselfe with comfort feedes,
 Of his owne vertues, and prayse-worthy deedes.
 So long he yode, yet no aduenture found,
 Which fame of her shrill trompet worthy reedes:
 For still he traueild through wide wastfull ground,
 That nought but desert wilderness shew'd all around.

At last he came vnto a gloomy glade,
 Couer'd with boughes and shrubs from heauen
 Whereas he sitting found in secret shade
 An vncouth, saluage, and vnciuile wight,
 Of griesly hew, and fowle ill fauour'd sight;
 His face with smoke was tand, and eyes were beard,
 His head and beard with sout were ill bedight,
 His cole-blacke hands did seeme to haue beene seard
 In smithes fire-spitting forge, and nayles like clawes appeard.

Arg. 1 Mammon 1590, 1596 i 9 fly. 1590, 1596 iii 9 spetting 1609

His yron coate all ouergrowne with rust,
 Was vnderneath enueloped with gold,
 Whose glistring glosse darkned with filthy dust,
 Well yet appeared, to haue beene of old
 A worke of rich entayle, and curious mould,
 Wouen with antickes and wild Imagery:
 And in his lap a masse of coyne he told,
 And turned vpsidowne, to feede his eye
 And couetous desire with his huge threasury.

iv

And round about him lay on euery side
 Great heapes of gold, that neuer could be spent:
 Of which some were rude owre, not purifide
 Of Mulcibers deuouring element;
 Some others were new driuen, and distent
 Into great Ingoes, and to wedges square;
 Some in round plates withouten moniment;
 But most were stampd, and in their metall bare
 The antique shapes of kings and kesars straunge and rare.

v

Soone as he Guyon saw, in great affright
 And hast he rose, for to remoue aside
 Those pretious hils from straungers enuious sight,
 And downe them poured through an hole full wide,
 Into the hollow earth, them there to hide.
 But Guyon lightly to him leaping, stayd
 His hand, that trembled, as one terrifyde;
 And though him selfe were at the sight dismayd,
 Yet him perforce restraynd, and to him doubtfull sayd.

vi

What art thou man, (if man at all thou art)
 That here in desert hast thine habitaunce,
 And these rich heapes of wealth doest hide apart
 From the worldes eye, and from her right vsaunce?
 Thereat with staring eyes fixed askaunce,
 In great disdaine, he answerd; Hardy Elfe,
 That darest vew my direfull countenaunce,
 I read thee rash, and heedlesse of thy selfe,
 To trouble my still seate, and heapes of pretious pelfe.

iv God of the world and worldlings I me call,
 Great Mammon, greatest god below the skye,
 That of my plenty poure out vnto all,
 And vnto none my graces do enuye:
 Riches, renowme, and principality,
 Honour, estate, and all this worldes good,
 For which men swinck and sweat incessantly,
 Fro me do flow into an ample flood,
 And in the hollow earth haue their eternall brood.

v Wherefore if me thou deigne to serue and sew,
 At thy commaund lo all these mountaines bee;
 Or if to thy great mind, or greedy vew
 All these may not suffise, there shall to thee
 Ten times so much be numbred francke and free.
Mammon (said he) thy godheades vaunt is vaine,
 And idle offers of thy golden fee;
 To them, that couet such eye-glutting gaine,
 Proffer thy giftes, and fitter seruauents entertaine.

vi Me ill besits, that in der-doing armes,
 And honours suit my vowed dayes do spend,
 Vnto thy bounteous baytes, and pleasing charmes,
 With which weake men thou witchest, to attend:
 Regard of worldly mucke doth fowly blend,
 And low abase the high heroicke spright,
 That ioyes for crownes and kingdomes to contend;
 Faire shields, gay steedes, bright armes be my delight:
 Those be the riches fit for an aduent'rous knight.

vii Vaine glorious Elfe (said he) doest not thou weet,
 That money can thy wantes at will supply?
 Sheild., steeds, and armes, and all things for thee meet
 It can puruay in twinkling of an eye;
 And crownes and kingdomes to thee multiply.
 Do not I kings create, and throw the crowne
 Sometimes to him, that low in dust doth ly?
 And him that raignd, into his rowme thrust downe,
 And whom I lust, do heape with glory and renowne?

x i besits] befits 1609

All otherwise (said he) I riches read,
 And deeme them roote of all disquietnesse;
 First got with guile, and then preseru'd with dread,
 And after spent with pride and lauishnesse,
 Leauing behind them grieve and heauinesse.
 Infinite mischiefes of them do arize,
 Strife, and debate, bloudshed, and bitterness,
 Outrageous wrong, and hellish couetize,
 That noble heart as great dishonour doth despize.

xii

Ne thine be kingdomes, ne the scepters thine;
 But realmes and rulers thou doest both confound,
 And loyall truth to treason doest incline;
 Witnesse the guiltlesse bloud pourd oft on ground,
 The crowned often slaine, the slayer croud,
 The sacred Diademe in peeces rent,
 And purple robe gored with many a wound;
 Castles surprizd, great cities sackt and brent:
 So mak'st thou kings, and gaynest wrongfull gouernement.

xiii

Long were to tell the troublous stormes, that tosse
 The priuate state, and make the life vnsweet:
 Who swelling sayles in Caspian sea doth crosse,
 And in frayle wood on Adrian gulfe doth fleet,
 Doth not, I weene, so many euils meet.
 Then Mammon waxing wroth, And why then, said,
 Are mortall men so fond and vndiscreet,
 So euill thing to seeke vnto their ayd,
 And hauing not complaine, and hauing it vpbraid?

xiv

Indeede (quoth he) through fowle intemperaunce,
 Frayle men are oft captiu'd to couetise:
 But would they thinke, with how small allowaunce
 Vntroubled Nature doth her selfe suffise,
 Such superfluities they would despise,
 Which with sad cares empeach our native ioyes:
 At the well head the purest streames arise:
 But mucky filth his branching armes annoyes,
 And with vncomely weedes the gentle waue accloyes.

xv

The antique world, in his first flowring youth,
 Found no defect in his Creatours grace,
 But with glad thankes, and vnreproued truth,
 The gifts of soueraigne bountie did embrace:
 Like Angels life was then mens happy cace;
 But later ages pride, like corn-fed steed,
 Abusd her plenty, and fat swolne encrease
 To all licentious lust, and gan exceed
 The measure of her meane, and naturall first need.

Then gan a cursed hand the quiet wombe
 Of his great Grandmother with steele to wound,
 And the hid treasures in her sacred tombe,
 With Sacriledge to dig. Therein he found
 Fountaines of gold and siluer to abound,
 Of which the matter of his huge desire
 And pompous pride eftsoones he did compound;
 Then auarice gan through his veines inspire
 His greedy flames, and kindled life-deuouring fire.

Sonne (said he then) let be thy bitter scorne,
 And leaue the rudenesse of that antique age
 To them, that liu'd therein in state forlorne;
 Thou that doest liue in later times, must wage
 Thy workes for wealth, and life for gold engage.
 If then thee list my offred grace to vse,
 Take what thou please of all this surplusage;
 If thee list not, leaue haue thou to refuse:
 But thing refused, do not afterward accuse.

Me list not (said the Elfin knight) receaue Thing offred, till I know it well be got,
 Ne wote I, but thou didst these goods bereaue
 From rightfull owner by vnrighteous lot,
 Or that bloud guiltinesse or guile them blot.
 Perdy (quoth he) yet neuer eye did vew,
 Ne tounge did tell, ne hand these handled not,
 But safe I haue them kept in secret mew,
 From heauens sight, and powre of all which them pursew.

xviii 2 that om. 1596

xix 5 bloodguiltnesse 1590: bloud guiltnesse 1596

What secret place (quoth he) can safely hold
 So huge a masse, and hide from heauens eye?
 Or where hast thou thy wonne, that so much gold
 Thou canst preserue from wrong and robbery?
 Come thou (quoth he) and see. So by and by Through that thicke couert he him led, and found
 A darkesome way, which no man could descry,
 That deepe descended through the hollow ground,
 And was with dread and horreur compassed around.

xx

At length they came into a larger space,
 That stretcht it selfe into an ample plaine,
 Through which a beaten broad high way did trace,
 That streight did lead to Plutoes griesly raine:
 By that wayes side, there sate infernall Payne,
 And fast beside him sat tumultuous Strife:
 The one in hand an yron whip did straine,
 The other brandished a bloody knife,
 And both did gnash their teeth, and both did threaten life.

xxi

On thother side in one consort there sate,
 Cruell Reuenge, and rancorous Despight,
 Disloyall Treason, and hart-burning Hate,
 But gnawing Gealosie out of their sight
 Sitting alone, his bitter lips did bight,
 And trembling Feare still to and fro did fly,
 And found no place, where safe he shroud him might,
 Lamenting Sorrow did in darknesse lye,
 And Shame his vgly face did hide from liuing eye.

xxii

And ouer them sad Horreur with grim hew,
 Did alwayes sore, beating his yron wings;
 And after him Owles and Night-rauens flew,
 The hatefull messengers of heauy things,
 Of death and dolour telling sad tidings;
 Whiles sad Celeno, sitting on a clift,
 A song of bale and bitter sorrow sings,
 That hart of flint a sunder could haue rift:
 Which hauing ended, after him she flyeth swift.

All these before the gates of Pluto lay, xxiv
 By whom they passing, spake vnto them nought.
 But th'Elfin knight with wonder all the way
 Did feed his eyes, and fild his inner thought.
 At last him to a litle dore he brought,
 That to the gate of Hell, which gaped wide,
 Was next adioyning, ne them parted ought:
 Betwixt them both was but a litle stride,
 That did the house of Richesse from hell-mouth diuide.
 Before the dore sat self-consuming Care, xxv
 Day and night keeping wary watch and ward,
 For feare least Force or Fraud should vnaware
 Breake in, and spoile the treasure there in gard:
 Ne would he suffer Sleepe once thither-ward
 Approch, albe his drowsie den were next;
 For next to death is Sleepe to be compard:
 Therefore his house is vnto his annext;
 Here Sleep, there Richesse, and Hel-gate them both betwext.
 So soone as Mammon there arriu'd, the dore xxvi
 To him did open, and afforded way;
 Him followed eke Sir Guyon euermore,
 Ne darkenesse him, ne daunger might dismay.
 Soone as he entred was, the dore streight way
 Did shut, and from behind it forth there lept
 An vgly feend, more fowle then dismall day,
 The which with monstrous stalke behind him stept,
 And euer as he went, dew watch vpon him kept.
 Well hoped he, ere long that hardy guest, xxvii
 If euer couetous hand, or lustfull eye,
 Or lips he layd on thing, that likt him best,
 Or euer sleepe his eye-strings did vntye,
 Should be his pray. And therefore still on hye
 He ouer him did hold his cruell clawes,
 Threatning with greedy gripe to do him dye
 And rend in peeces with his rauinous pawes,
 If euer he transgrest the fatall Stygian lawes.

That houses forme within was rude and strong, xxviii
 Like an huge caue, hewne out of rocky clift,
 From whose rough vault the ragged breaches hong,
 Embost with massy gold of glorious gift,
 And with rich metall loaded euery rift,
 That heauy ruine they did seeme to threat;
 And ouer them Arachne high did lift
 Her cunning web, and spred her subtile net, Enwrapped in fowle smoke and clouds more blacke then let.

Both rooffe, and floore, and wals were all of gold, xxix
 But ouergrowne with dust and old decay,
 And hid in darkenesse, that none could behold
 The hew thereof: for vew of chearefull day
 Did neuer in that house it selfe display,
 But a faint shadow of vncertain light;
 Such as a lamp, whose life does fade away:
 Or as the Moone cloathed with cloudy night,
 Does shew to him, that walkes in feare and sad affright.

In all that rowme was nothing to be seene, xxx
 But huge great yron chests and coffers strong,
 All bard with double bends, that none could weene
 Them to efforce by violence or wrong;
 On euery side they placed were along.
 But all the ground with sculs was scattered,
 And dead mens bones, which round about were flong,
 Whose liues, it seemed, whilome there were shed,
 And their vile carcasses now left vnburied.

They forward passe, ne Guyon yet spoke word, xxxi
 Till that they came vnto an yron dore,
 Which to them opened of his owne accord,
 And shewd of riches such exceeding store,
 As eye of man did neuer see before;
 Ne euer could within one place be found,
 Though all the wealth, which is, or was of yore,
 Could gathered be through all the world around,
 And that about were added to that vnder ground.

The charge thereof vnto a couetous Spright
 Commaunded was, who thereby did attend,
 And warily awaited day and night,
 From other couetous feends it to defend,
 Who it to rob and ransacke did intend.
 Then Mammon turning to that warriour, said;
 Loe here the worldes blis, loe here the end,
 To which all men do ayme, rich to be made:
 Such grace now to be happy, is before thee laid.

Certes (said he) I n'll thine offred grace,
 Ne to be made so happy do intend:
 Another blis before mine eyes I place,
 Another happinesse, another end.
 To them, that list, these base regards I lend:
 But I in armes, and in atchieuements braue,
 Do rather choose my flitting houres to spend,
 And to be Lord of those, that riches haue,
 Then them to haue my selfe, and be their seruile sclaue.

Thereat the feend his gnashing teeth did grate,
 And grieu'd, so long to lacke his greedy pray;
 For well he weened, that so glorious bayte
 Would tempt his guest, to take thereof assay:
 Had he so doen, he had him snatcht away,
 More light then Culuer in the Faulcons fist.
 Eternall God thee saue from such decay.
 But whenas Mammon saw his purpose mist,
 Him to entrap vnwares another way he wist.

Thence forward he him led, and shortly brought Vnto another rowme, whose dore forthright,
 To him did open, as it had beene taught:
 Therein an hundred raunges weren pight,
 And hundred fornaces all burning bright;
 By euery fornace many feends did bide,
 Deformed creatures, horrible in sight,
 And euery feend his busie paines applide,
 To melt the golden metall, ready to be tride.

One with great bellows gathered filling aire,
 And with forst wind the fewell did inflame;
 Another did the dying bronds repaire
 With yron tounge, and sprinckled oft the same
 With liquid waues, fiers Vulkans rage to tame,
 Who maistring them, renewd his former heat;
 Some scumd the drosse, that from the metall came;
 Some stird the molten owre with ladles great;
 And euery one did swincke, and euery one did sweat.

xxxvi

But when as earthly wight they present saw,
 Glistring in armes and battailous aray,
 From their whot worke they did themselues withdraw
 To wonder at the sight: for till that day,
 They neuer creature saw, that cam that way.
 Their staring eyes sparckling with feruent fire,
 And vgly shapes did nigh the man dismay,
 That were it not for shame, he would retire,
 Till that him thus bespake their soueraigne Lord and sire.

xxxvii

Behold, thou Faeries sonne, with mortall eye,
 That liuing eye before did neuer see:
 The thing, that thou didst craue so earnestly,
 To weet, whence all the wealth late shewd by mee,
 Proceeded, lo now is reueald to thee.
 Here is the fountaine of the worldes good:
 Now therefore, if thou wilt enriched bee,
 Auise thee well, and chaunge thy wilfull mood,
 Least thou perhaps hereafter wish, and be withstood.

xxxviii

Suffise it then, thou Money God (quoth hee)
 That all thine idle offers I refuse.
 All that I need I haue; what needeth mee
 To couet more, then I haue cause to vse?
 With such vaine shewes thy worldlings vile abuse:
 But giue me leaue to follow mine emprise.

 But beare the rigour of his bold mesprise,
 And thence him forward led, him further to entise.

He brought him through a darksome narrow strait, xi
 To a broad gate, all built of beaten gold :
 The gate was open, but therein did wait
 A sturdy villein, striding stiffe and bold,
 As if that highest God defie he would ;
 In his right hand an yron club he held,
 But he himselfe was all of golden mould,
 Yet had both life and sence, and well could weld
 That cursed weapon, when his cruell foes he queld.

Disdayne he called was, and did disdain xii
 To be so cald, and who so did him call :
 Sterne was his looke, and full of stomacke vaine,
 His portance terrible, and stature tall,
 Far passing th'hight of men terrestriall ;
 Like an huge Gyant of the Titans race,
 That made him scorne all creatures great and small,
 And with his pride all others powre deface :
 More fit amongst blacke fiendes, then men to haue his place.

Soone as those glitterand armes he did espye, xiii
 That with their brightnesse made that darknesse light,
 His harmefull club he gan to hurtle hye,
 And threaten batteill to the Faery knight ;
 Who likewise gan himselfe to batteill dight,
 Till Mammon did his hasty hand withhold,
 And counseld him abstaine from perilous fight :
 For nothing might abash the villein bold,
 Ne mortall steele emperce his miscreated mould.

So hauing him with reason pacifide, xiiii
 And the fiers Carle commaunding to forbear,
 He brought him in. The rowme was large and wide,
 As it some Gyeld or solemne Temple weare :
 Many great golden pillours did vpbeare

 And euery pillour decked was full deare
 With crownes and Diademes, and titles vaine,
 Which mortall Princes wore, whiles they on earth did rayne.

 Some by close shouldring, some by flatteree;
 Others through friends, others for base regard;
 And all by wrong wayes for themselues prepard.
 Those that were vp themselues, kept others low,
 Those that were low themselues, held others hard,
 Ne suffred them to rise or greater grow,
 But euery one did striue his fellow downe to throw.

xlv

Which whenas Guyon saw, he gan inquire,
 What meant that preace about that Ladies throne,
 And what she was that did so high aspire.
 Him Mammon answered; That goodly one,
 Whom all that folke with such contention,
 Do flocke about, my deare, my daughter is;
 Honour and dignitie from her alone
 Deriued are, and all this worldes blis
 For which ye men do striue: few get, but many mis.

And faire Philotime she rightly hight,
 The fairest wight that wonneth vnder skye,
 But that this darksome neather world her light
 Doth dim with horroure and deformitie,
 Worthy of heauen and hye felicitie,
 From whence the gods haue her for enuy thrust:
 But sith thou hast found fauour in mine eye,
 Thy spouse I will her make, if that thou lust,
 That she may thee aduance for workes and merites iust.

Gramercy Mammon (said the gentle knight)
 For so great grace and offred high estate;
 But I, that am fraile flesh and earthly wight,
 Vnworthy match for such immortall mate
 My selfe well wote, and mine vnequall fate;
 And were I not, yet is my trouth yplight,
 And loue auowd to other Lady late,
 That to remoue the same I haue no might:
 To chaunge loue causelesse is reproch to warlike knight.

Mammon emmoued was with inward wrath;
 Yet forcing it to faine, him forth thence led Through griesly shadowes by a beaten path,
 Into a gardin goodly garnished
 With hearbs and fruits, whose kinds mote not be red:
 Not such, as earth out of her fruitfull woomb
 Throwes forth to men, sweet and well sauoured,
 But direfull deadly blacke both leafe and bloom,
 Fit to adorne the dead, and decke the drery toombe.

xlvi 6 my deare my, 1596 7 alone, 1590 &c. 11 Mammon 1590, 1596

There mournfull Cypresse grew in greatest store,
 And trees of bitter Gall, and Heben sad,
 Dead sleeping Poppy, and blacke Hellebore,
 Cold Coloquintida, and Tetra mad,
 Mortall Samnitis, and Cicuta bad,
 With which th'vniust Atheniens made to dy
 Wise Socrates, who thereof quaffing glad Poured out his life, and last Philosophy
 To the faire Critias his dearest Belamy.

iii

The Gardin of Proserpina this hight;
 And in the midst thereof a siluer seat,
 With a thicke Arber goodly ouer dight,
 In which she often vsd from open heat
 Her selfe to shroud, and pleasures to entreat.
 Next thereunto did grow a goodly tree,
 With braunches broad dispred and body great,
 Clothed with leaues, that none the wood mote see
 And loaden all with fruit as thicke as it might bee.

liii

Their fruit were golden apples glistring bright,
 That goodly was their glory to behold,
 On earth like neuer grew, ne liuing wight
 Like euer saw, but they from hence were sold;
 For those, which Hercules with conquest bold
 Got from great Atlas daughters, hence began,
 And planted there, did bring forth fruit of gold:
 And those with which th'Eubean young man wan
 Swift Atalanta, when through craft he her out ran.

lii v

Here also sprong that goodly golden fruit,
 With which Acontius got his louver trew,
 Whom he had long time sought with fruitlesse suit:
 Here eke that famous golden Apple grew,
 The which emongst the gods false Ate threw;
 For which th'Idean Ladies disagreed,
 Till partiall Paris dempt it Venus dew,
 And had of her, faire Helen for his meed,
 That many noble Greekes and Troians made to bleed.

The warlike Elfe much wondred at this tree,
 So faire and great, that shadowed all the ground,
 And his broad braunches, laden with rich fee,
 Did stretch themselues without the vtmost bound
 Of this great gardin, compast with a mound,
 Which ouer-hanging, they themselues did steepe,
 In a blacke flood which flow'd about it round ;
 That is the riuier of Cocytus deepe,
 In which full many soules do endlesse waile and weepe.

Which to behold, he clomb vp to the banke,
 And looking downe, saw many damned wights,
 In those sad waues, which direfull deadly stanke,
 Plonged continually of cruell Sprights,
 That with their pitteous cryes, and yelling shrights,
 They made the further shore resounden wide :
 Emongst the rest of those same ruefull sights,
 One cursed creature he by chaunce espide,
 That drenched lay full deepe, vnder the Garden side.

Deepe was he drenched to the vpmost chin,
 Yet gaped still, as coueting to drinke
 Of the cold liquor, which he waded in,
 And stretching forth his hand, did often thinke
 To reach the fruit, which grew vpon the brincke :
 But both the fruit from hand, and floud from mouth
 Did flie abacke, and made him vainely swinke :
 The whiles he steru'd with hunger and with drouth
 He daily dyde, yet neuer throughly dyen couth.

The knight him seeing labour so in vaine,
 Askt who he was, and what he ment thereby :
 Who groning deepe, thus answerd him againe ;
 Most cursed of all creatures vnder skye,
 Lo Tantalus, I here tormented lye :
 Of whom high Ioue wont whylome feasted bee,
 Lo here I now for want of food doe dye :
 But if that thou be such, as I thee see,
 Of grace I pray thee, giue to eat and drinke to mee.

lvi 1 Elfe, 1590, 1596

lvii 8 creature, 1590, 1596

Nay, nay, thou greedie Tantalus (quoth he)
 Abide the fortune of thy present fate,
 And vnto all that liue in high degree,
 Ensample be of mind intemperate,
 To teach them how to vse their present state.
 Then gan the cursed wretch aloud to cry,
 Accusing highest Ioue and gods ingrate,
 And eke blaspheming heauen bitterly,
 As authour of vniustice, there to let him dye.

lx

He lookt a little further, and espyde
 Another wretch, whose carkasse deepe was drent
 Within the riuer, which the same did hyde:
 But both his hands most filthy feculent,
 Aboue the water were on high extent,
 And faynd to wash themselues incessantly;
 Yet nothing cleaner were for such intent,
 But rather fowler seemed to the eye;
 So lost his labour vaine and idle industry.

lxi

The knight him calling, asked who he was,
 Who lifting vp his head, him answerd thus:
 I Pilate am the falsest Iudge, alas,
 And most vniust, that by vnrighteous
 And wicked doome, to Iewes despiteous
 Deliuered vp the Lord of life to die,
 And did acquite a murderer felonous;
 The whiles my hands I washt in puritie,
 The whiles my soule was soyld with foule iniquitie.

lxii

Infinite moe, tormented in like paine
 He there beheld, too long here to be told:
 Ne Mammon would there let him long remaine,
 For terrour of the tortures manifold,
 In which the damned soules he did behold,
 But roughly him bespake. Thou fearefull foole,
 Why takest not of that same fruit of gold,
 Ne sittest downe on that same siluer stoole,
 To rest thy wearie person, in the shadow coole.

All which he did, to doe him deadly fall
 In frayle intemperance through sinfull bayt;
 To which if he inclined had at all,
 That dreadfull feend, which did behind him wayt,
 Would him haue rent in thousand peeces strayt:
 But he was warie wise in all his way,
 And well perceiued his deceiptfull sleight,
 Ne suffred lust his safetie to betray;
 So goodly did beguile the Guyler of the pray.

And now he has so long remained there,
 That vitall powres gan wexe both weake and wan,
 For want of food, and sleepe, which two vpbeare,
 Like mightie pillours, this fraile life of man,
 That none without the same endure can.
 For now three dayes of men were full outwrought,
 Since he this hardie enterprize began:
 For thy great Mammon fairely he besought,

 But all so soone as his enfeebled spright
 Gan sucke this vitall aire into his brest,
 As ouercome with too exceeding might,
 The life did flit away out of her nest,
 And all his senses were with deadly fit opprest.

Cant. VIII.

*Sir Guyon laid in swotone is by Acrates sonnes desper'd,
 Whom Arthur soone buth reskew'd
 And Paynim brethren joyld.*

AND is there care in heauen? and is there loue
 In heuently spirits to these creatures bace,
 That may compassion of their euils moue?
 There is: else much more wretched were the cace
 Of men, then beasts. But O th'exceeding grace
 Of highest God, that loues his creatures so,
 And all his workes with mercy doth embrace,
 That blessed Angels, he sends to and fro,
 To serue to wicked man, to serue his wicked foe.
 How oft do they, their siluer bowers leaue,
 To come to succour vs, that succour want?
 How oft do they with golden pineons, cleaue
 The flitting skyes, like flying Pursuiuant,
 Against foule feends to aide vs militant?
 They for vs fight, they watch and dewly ward,
 And their bright Squadrons round about vs plant,
 And all for loue, and nothing for reward:
 O why should heauenly God to men haue such regard?
 During the while, that Guyon did abide
 In Mammons house, the Palmer, whom whyleare
 That wanton Mayd of passage had denide,
 By further search had passage found elsewhere,
 And being on his way, approached neare,
 Where Guyon lay in traunce, when suddenly
 He heard a voice, that called loud and cleare,
 Come hither, come hither, O come hastily;
 That all the fields resounded with the ruefull cry.

iii 2 Mamons 1590, 1596 8 Come hither, hither 1609

The Palmer lent his care vnto the noyce,
 To weet, who called so importunely:
 Againe he heard a more efforced voyce,
 That bad him come in haste. He by and by His feeble feet directed to the cry;
 Which to that shadie delue him brought at last,
 Where Mammon earst did sunne his threasury:
 There the good Guyon he found slumbring fast
 In senselesse dreame; which sight at first him sore aghast.

Beside his head there sate a faire young man,
 Of wondrous beautie, and of freshest yeares,
 Whose tender bud to blossome new began,
 And flourish faire aboue his euall pearces;
 His snowy front curled with golden heaues,
 Like Phæbus face adorn'd with sunny rayes,
 Diuinely shone, and two sharpe winged sheares,
 Decked with diuerse plumes, like painted layes,
 Were fixed at his backe, to cut his ayerie wayes.

Like as Cupido on Idæan hill,
 When hauing laid his cruell bow away,
 And mortall arrowes, wherewith he doth fill
 The world with murdrous spoiles and bloudie pray,
 With his faire mother he him dights to play,
 And with his goodly sisters, Graces three;
 The Goddesses pleased with his wanton play,
 Suffers her selfe through sleepe beguild to bee,
 The whiles the other Ladies mind their merry glee.

Whom when the Palmer saw, abasht he was Through fear and wonder, that he nought could say,
 Till him the child bespoke, Long lackt, alas,
 Hath bene thy faithfull aide in ha. assay,
 Whiles deadly fit thy pupill doth dismay;
 Behold this heauie sight, thou reuerend Sire,
 But dread of death and dolour doe away;
 For life ere long shall to her home retire,
 And he that breathlesse seemes, shal corage bold respire.

The charge, which God doth vnto me arret,
 Of his deare safetie, I to thee commend;
 Yet will I not forgoe, ne yet forget
 The care thereof my selfe vnto the end,
 But euermore him succour, and defend Against his foe and mine: watch thou I pray;
 For euill is at hand him to offend.
 So hauing said, eftsoones he gan display
 His painted nimble wings, and vanisht quite away.

The Palmer seeing his left empty place,
 And his slow eyes beguiled of their sight,
 Woxe sore affraid, and standing still a space,
 Gaz'd after him, as fowle escapt by flight;
 At last him turning to his charge behight,
 With trembling hand his troubled pulse gan try;
 Where finding life not yet dislodged quight,
 He much reioyst, and could it tenderly,
 As chicken newly hatcht, from dreaded destiny.

ix

At last he spide, where towards him did pace
 Two Paynim knights, all armd as bright as skie,
 And them beside an aged Sire did trace,
 And farre before a light-foot Page did flie,
 That breathed strife and troublous enmitie;
 Those were the two sonnes of Acrates old,
 Who meeting earst with Archimago slie,
 Foreby that idle strond, of him were told,
 That he, which earst them combatted, was Guyon bold.

x

Which to auenge on him they dearely vowd,
 Where euer that on ground they mote him fynd
 False Archimago prouokt their courage prowd,
 And stryfull Atin in their stubborne mynd
 Coles of contention and whot vengeance tynd.
 Now bene they come, whereas the Palmer sate,
 Keeping that slombred corse to him assynd;
 Well knew they both his person, sith of late
 With him in bloudie armes they rashly did debate.

xi

Whom when Pyrochles saw, inflam'd with rage,
 That sire he foule beake, Thou dotard vile,
 That with thy brutenesse shendst thy comely age,
 Abandone soone, I read, the caitiue spoile
 Of that same outcast carkasse, that erewhile
 Made it selfe famous through false trechery,
 And crownd his coward crest with knightly stile;
 Loe where he now inglorious doth lye,
 To proue he liued ill, that did thus foully dye.

To whom the Palmer fearelesse answered;
 Certes, Sir knight, ye bene too much to blame,
 Thus for to blot the honour of the dead,
 And with foule cowardize his carkasse shame,
 Whose liuing hands immortalizd his name.
 Vile is the vengeance on the ashes cold,
 And enuie base, to barke at sleeping fame:
 Was neuer wight, that treason of him told;
 Your selfe his prowesse prou'd and found him fiers and bold.

Then said Cymochles; Palmer, thou doest dote,
 Ne canst of prowesse, ne of knighthood deeme,
 Saue as thou seest or hearst. But well I wote,
 That of his puissance tryall made extreeme;
 Yet gold all is not, that doth golden seeme,
 Ne all good knights, that shake well speare and shield:
 The worth of all men by their end esteeme,
 And then due praise, or due reproch them yield;
 Bad therefore I him deeme, that thus lies d-- on field.

Good or bad (gan his brother fierce reply)
 What doe I recke, sith that he dyde entire?
 Or what doth his bad death now satisfy
 The greedy hunger of reuenging ire,
 Sith wrathfull hand wrought not her owne desire?
 Yet since no way is left to wreake my spight,
 I will him reauce of armes, the victors hire,
 And of that shield, more worthy of good knight;
 For why should a dead dog be deckt in armour bright?

Faire Sir, said then the Palmer suppliaunt,
 For knighthoods loue, do not so foule a deed,
 Ne blame your honour with so shamefull vaunt
 Of vile reuenge. To spoile the dead of weed
 Is sacrilege, and doth all sinnes exceed;
 But leaue these relicks of his liuing might,
 To decke his herce, and trap his tomb-blacke steed.
 What herce or steed (said he) should he haue dight,
 But be entombed in the rauens or the kight?

xvi

With that, rude hand vpon his shield he laid,
 And th'other brother gan his helme vnlace,
 Both fiercely bent to haue him disaraid;
 Till that they spide, where towards them did pace
 An armed knight, of bold and bounteous grace,
 Whose squire bore after him an heben launce,
 And couerd shield. Well kend him so farre space
 Th'enchauter by his armes and amenaunce,
 When vnder him he saw his Lybian steed to prounce.

xvii

And to those brethren said, Rise rise by liue,
 And vnto battell doe your selues addresse;
 For yonder comes the prowtest knight aliue,
 Prince Arthur, flowre of grace and nobillesse,
 That hath to Paynim knights wrought great distresse,
 And thousand Sar'zins foully donne to dye.
 That word so deepe did in their harts impresse,
 That both eftsoones vpstarte furiously,
 And gan themselues prepare to battell greedily.

xviii

But fierce Pyrochles, lacking his owne sword,
 The want thereof now greatly gan he plaine,
 And Archimage besought, him that ar.ord,
 Which he had brought for Braggadocchio vaine.
 So would I (said th'enchauter) glad and faine Beteeme to you this sword, you to defend,
 Or ought that else your honour might maintaine,
 But that this weapons powre I well haue kend,
 To be contrarie to the worke, which ye intend.

xix

For that same knights owne sword this is of yore,
 Which Merlin made by his almightie art
 For that his noursling, when he knighthood swore,
 Therewith to doen his foes eternall smart.
 The metall first he mixt with Medawart,
 That no enchauntment from his dint might saue;
 Then it in flames of Aetna wrought apart,
 And seuen times dipped in the bitter waue
 Of hellish Styx, which hidden vertue to it gaue.

The vertue is, that neither steele, nor stone
 The stroke thereof from entrance may defend;
 Ne euer may be vsed by his fone,
 Ne forst his rightfull owner to offend,
 Ne euer will it breake, ne euer bend.
 Wherefore Morddure it rightfully is hight.
 In vaine therefore, Pyrochles, should I lend
 The same to thee, against his lord to fight,
 For sure it would deceiue thy labour, and thy might.

Foolish old man, said then the Pagan wroth,
 That weenest words or charmes may force withstond:
 Soone shalt thou see, and then beleue for troth,
 That I can carue with this inchaunted brond
 His Lords owne flesh. Therewith out of his hond
 That vertuous steele he rudely snatcht away,
 And Guyons shield about his wrest he bond;
 So readie dight, fierce battaile to assay,
 And match his brother proud in battailous array.

By this that straunger knight in presence came,
 And goodly salued them; who nought againe
 Him answered, as courtesie became,
 But with sterne lookes, and stomachous disdaine,
 Gaue signes of grudge and discontentment vaine:
 Then turning to the Palmer, he gan spy
 Where at his feete, with sorrowfull demaine
 And deadly hew, an armed corse did lye,
 In whose dead face he red great magnanimity.

Said he then to the Palmer, Reuerend syre,
 What great misfortune hath betidd this knight?
 Or did his life her fatall date expyre,
 Or did he fall by treason, or by fight?
 How euer, sure I rew his pitteous plight.
 Not one, nor other, (said the Palmer graue)
 Hath 'im befallne, but cloudes of deadly night
 A while his heauie eylids couer'd haue,
 And all his senses drowned in deepe senselesse waue.

xxiv

Which, those his cruell foes, that stand hereby,
 Making aduantage, to reuenge their spight,
 Would him disarme, and treaten shamefully,
 Vnworthy vsage of redoubted knight.
 But you, faire Sir, whose honorable sight
 Doth promise hope of helpe, and timely grace,
 Mote I beseech to succour his sad plight,
 And by your powre protect his feeble cace.
 First praise of knighthood is, foule outrage to deface.

xxv

Palmer, (said he) no knight so rude, I weene,
 As to doen outrage to a sleeping ghost:
 Ne was there euer noble courage seene,
 That in aduantage would his puissance bost:
 Honour is least, where oddes appeareth most.
 May be, that better reason will asswage
 The rash reuengers heat. Words well dispost
 Haue secret powre, t'appease inflamed rage:
 If not, leaue vnto me thy knights last patronage.

xxvi

Tho turning to those brethren, thus bespoke,
 Ye warlike payre, whose valorous great might
 It seemes, iust wrongs to vengeance doe prouoke,
 To wreake your wrath on this dead seeming knight,
 Mote ought allay the storme of your despight,
 And settle patience in so furious heat?
 Not to debate the chalenge of your right,
 But for this carkasse pardon I entreat,
 Whom fortune hath alreadie laid in lowest seat.

To whom Cymochles said; For what art thou,
 That mak'st thy selfe his dayes-man, to prolong
 The vengeance prest? Or who shall let me now,
 On this vile bodie from to wreake my wrong,
 And make his carkasse as the outcast dong?
 Why should not that dead carrion satisfie
 The guilt, which if he liued had thus long,
 His life for due reuenge should deare abie?
 The trespassse still doth liue, albe the person die.

Indeed (then said the Prince) the euill donne
 Dyes not, when breath the bodie first doth leaue,
 But from the grandsyre to the Nephewes sonne,
 And all his seed the case doth often cleaue,
 Till vengeance vtterly the guilt bereaue:
 So streightly God doth iudge. But gentle kni-
 That doth against the dead his hand vpreare,
 His honour staines with rancour and despight,
 And great disparagment makes to his former might.

Pyrochles gan reply the second time,
 And to him said, Now felon sure I read,
 How that thou art partaker of his crime:
 Therefore by Termagaunt thou shalt be dead.
 With that his hand, more sad then lomp of lead,
 Vplifting high, he weened with Morddure,
 His owne good sword Morddure, to cleaue his head.
 The faithfull steele such treason no'uld endure,
 But swaruing from the marke, his Lords life did assure.

Yet was the force so furious and so fell,
 That horse and man it made to reele aside;
 Nath'lesse the Prince would not forsake his sell:
 For well of yore he learned had to ride,
 But full of anger fiercly to him cride;
 False traitor miscreant, thou broken hast
 The law of armes, to strike foe vndefide.
 But thou thy treasons fruit, I hope, shalt taste
 Right sowre, and feele the law, the which thou hast defast.

xxix 7 vpreare] vpreaue MS. corr. in Malone 615. But cf. II iii 28,
 l. 7 and note there.

With that his balefull speare he fiercely bent xxxii
 Against the Pagans brest, and therewith thought
 His cursed life out of her lodge haue rent:
 But ere the point arriued, where it ought,
 That seuen-fold shield, which he from Guyon brought He cast betwene to ward the bitter stound:
 Through all those foldes the steelehead passage wrought
 And through his shoulder pierst; wherwith to ground
 He groueling fell, all gored in his gushing wound.

Which when his brother saw, fraught with great griefe xxxiii
 And wrath, he to him leaped furiously,
 And fowly said, By Mahoune, cursed thiefe,
 That direfull stroke thou dearely shalt aby.
 Then hurling vp his harmefull blade on hye,
 Smote him so hugely on his haughtie crest,
 That from his saddle forced him to fly:
 Else mote it needes downe to his manly brest
 Haue cleft his head in twaine, and life thence dispossess.

Now was the Prince in daungerous distresse, xxxiv
 Wanting his sword, when he on foot should fight:
 His single speare could doe him small redresse, Against two foes of so exceeding might,
 The least of which was match for any knight.
 And now the other, whom he earst did daunt,
 Had reard himselfe againe to cruell fight,
 Three times more furious, and more puissaunt,
 Vnmindfull of his wound, of his fate ignoraunt.

So both attonce him charge on either side, xxxv
 With hideous strokes, and importable powre,
 That forced him his ground to trauerse wide,
 And wisely watch to ward that deadly stowre:
 For in his shield, as thicke as stormie showre,
 Their strokes did raine, yet did he neuer quaile,
 Ne backward shrink, but as a stedfast towre,
 Whom foe with double battry doth assaile,
 Them on her bulwarke beares, and bids them nought auaille.

 xxxv 5 in] on 1609

2 Pagons 1590: corr. F. E.

So stoutly he withstood their strong assay,
 Till that at last, when he aduantage spyde,
 His poinant speare he thrust with puissant sway
 At proud Cymochles, whiles his shield was wyde,
 That through his thigh the mortall steele did gryde:
 He swaruing with the force, within his flesh
 Did breake the launce, and let the head abyde:
 Out of the wound the red bloud flowed fresh,
 That vnderneath his feet soone made a purple plesh.

Horribly then he gan to rage, and rayle,
 Cursing his Gods, and himselfe damning deepe:
 Als when his brother saw the red bloud rayle
 Adowne so fast, and all his armour steepe,
 For very felnesse lowd he gan to weepe,
 And said, Caytiue, cursse on thy cruell hond,
 That twise hath sped; yet shall it not thee keepe
 From the third brunt of this my fatall brond:
 Loe where the dreadfull Death behind thy backe doth stond.

With that he strooke, and th'other strooke withall,
 That nothing seem'd mote beare so monstrous might:
 The one vpon his couered shield did fall,
 And glauncing downe would not his owner byte:
 But th'other did vpon his troncheon smyte,
 Which hewing quite a sunder, further way
 It made, and on his hacqueton did lyte,
 The which diuiding with importune sway,
 It seizd in his right side, and there the dint did stay.

Wyde was the wound, and a large lukewarme flood,
 Red as the Rose, thence gushed grieuously;
 That when the Paynim spyde the streaming blood,
 Gaue him great hart, and hope of victory.
 On th'other side, in huge perplexity,
 The Prince now stood, hauing his weapon broke;
 Nought could he hurt, but still at ward did ly:
 Yet with his troncheon he so rudely stroke
Cymochles twise, that twise him forst his foot reuoke.

Whom when the Palmer saw in such distresse, xi
 Sir Guyons sword he lightly to him raught,
 And said; Faire Son, great God thy right hand blesse,
 To vse that sword so wisely as it ought.
 Glad was the knight, and with fresh courage fraught,
 When as againe he armed felt his hond;
 Then like a Lion, which hath long time saught
 His robbed whelpes, and at the last them fond Emongst the shepheard swaynes, then wexeth wood and yond.
 So fierce he laid about him, and dealt blowes xii
 On either side, that neither mayle could hold,
 Ne shield defend the thunder of his throwes:
 Now to Pyrochles many strokes he told;
 Eft to Cymochles twise so many fold:
 Then backe againe turning his busie hond,
 Them both attonce compeld with courage bold,
 To yield wide way to his hart-thrilling brond;
 And though they both stood stiffe, yet could not both withstond.
 As saluage Bull, whom two fierce mastiues bayt, xlii
 When rancour doth with rage him once engore,
 Forgets with warie ward them to awayt,
 But with his dreadfull hornes them driues afore,
 Or flings aloft, or treads downe in the flore,
 Breathing out wrath, and bellowing disdaine,
 That all the forrest quakes to heare him rore:
 So rag'd Prince Arthur twixt his foemen twaine,

 Whereon the Faery Queenes pourtract was writ,
 His hand relented, and the stroke forbore,
 And his deare hart the picture gan adore,
 Which oft the Paynim sau'd from deadly stowre.
 But him henceforth the same can saue no more;
 For now arriued is his fatall howre,
 That no'te auoyded be by earthly skill or powre.

For when Cymochles saw the fowle reproch,
 Which them appeached, prickt with guilty shame,
 And inward grieve, he fiercely gan approach,
 Resolu'd to put away that loathly blame,
 Or dye with honour and desert of fame;
 And on the hauberk stroke the Prince so sore,
 That quite disparted all the linked frame,
 And pierced to the skin, but bit no more,
 Yet made him twise to reele, that neuer moou'd afore.

Whereat renfierst with wrath and sharpe regret,
 He stroke so hugely with his borrowd blade,
 That it empierst the Pagans burganet,
 And cleauing the hard steele, did deepe inuade
 Into his head, and cruell passage made Quite through his braine. He tombling downe on ground, Breathd out his ghost, which to th'infernall shade
 Fast flying, there eternall torment found,
 For all the sinnes, wherewith his lewd life did abound.

Which when his german saw, the stony feare
 Ran to his hart, and all his sence dismayd,
 Ne thenceforth life ne courage did appeare,
 But as a man, whom hellish feends haue frayd,
 Long trembling still he stood: at last thus sayd;
 Traytour what hast thou doen? how euer may Thy cursed hand so cruelly haue swayd
 Against that knight: Harrow and well away,
 After so wicked deed why liu'st thou lenger day?

With that all desperate as loathing light,
 And with reuenge desiring soone to dye,
 Assembling all his force and vtmost might,
 With his owne sword he fierce at him did flye,
 And strooke, and foynd, and lasht outrageously, Withouten reason or regard. Well knew
 The Prince, with patience and sufferaunce sly
 So hasty heat soone cooled to subdew:
 Tho when this breathlesse woxe, that batteil gan renew.

As when a windy tempest bloweth hye,
 That nothing may withstand his stormy stowre,
 The cloudes, as things affrayd, before him flye;
 But all so soone as his outrageous powre
 Is layd, they fiercely then begin to shoure,
 And as in scorne of his spent stormy spight,
 Now all attonce their malice forth do poure;
 So did Prince Arthur beare himselfe in fight,
 And suffred rash Pyrochles wast his idle might.

xlvi

At last when as the Sarazin perceiu'd,
 How that straunge sword refusd, to serue his need,
 But when he stroke most strong, the dint deceiu'd,
 He slong it from him, and deuoyd of dread,
 Vpon him lightly leaping without heed,
 Twixt his two mighty armes engrasped fast,
 Thinking to ouerthrow and downe him tred:
 But him in strength and skill the Prince surpast,
 And through his nimble sleight did vnder him down cast.

xlii

Nought booted it the Paynim then to striue;
 For as a Bittur in the Eagles claw,
 That may not hope by flight to scape alieu,
 Still waites for death with dread and trembling aw;
 So he now subiect to the victours law,
 Did not once moue, nor vpward cast his eye,
 For vile disdaine and rancour, which did gnaw
 His hart in twaine with sad melancholy,
 As one that loathed life, and yet despid to dye.

i

But full of Princely bounty and great mind,
 The Conquerour nought cared him to slay,
 But casting wrongs and all reuenge behind,
 More glory thought to giue life, then decay,
 And said, Paynim, this is thy dismall day;
 Yet if thou wilt renounce thy miscreaunce,
 And my trew liegeman yield thy selfe for ay,
 Life will I graunt thee for thy valiaunce,
 And all thy wrongs will wipe out of my souenaunce.

xlvi 8 Prince Arthur] Sir Guyon 1590, 1596: corr. 1609

Foole (said the Pagan) I thy gift defye,
 But vse thy fortune, as it doth befall,
 And say, that I not ouercome do dye,
 But in despight of life, for death do call.
 Wroth was the Prince, and sory yet withall,
 That he so wilfully refused grace;
 Yet sith his fate so cruelly did fall,
 His shining Helmet he gan soone vnlace,
 And left his headlesse body bleeding all the place.

By this Sir Cayon from his traunce awakt,
 Life hauing maistered her sencelesse foe;
 And looking vp, when as his shield he lakt,
 And sword saw not, he wexed wondrous woe:
 But when the Palmer, whom he long ygoe
 Had lost, he by him spide, right glad he grew,
 And said, Deare sir, whom wandring to and fro
 I long haue lakt, I ioy thy face to vew;
 Firme is thy faith, when daunger neuer fro me drew.

But read what wicked hand hath robbed mee
 Of my good sword and shield? The Palmer glad,
 With so fresh hew vprising him to see,
 Him answered; Faire sonne, be no whit sad
 For want of weapons, they shall soone be had.
 So gan he to discourse the whole debate,
 Which that straunge knight for him sustained had,
 And those two Sarazins confounded late,
 Whose carcasses on ground were horribly prostrate.

Which when he heard, and saw the tokens trew,
 His hart with great affection was embayd,
 And to the Prince bowing with reuerence dew,
 As to the Patrone of his life, thus sayd:
 My Lord, my liege, by whose most gracious ayd
 I liue this day, and see my foes subdewd,
 What may suffise, to be for meede repayd
 Of so great graces, as ye haue me shewd,
 But to be ever bound

 Good turnes be counted, as a seruile bond,

 Are not all knights by oath bound, to withstond
 Oppressours powre by armes and puissant hond?
 Suffise, that I haue done my dew in place.

Cant. IX.

OF all Gods workes, which do this world adorne,
 There is no one more faire and excellent,
 Then is mans body both for powre and forme,
 Whiles it is kept in sober gouernment;
 But none then it, more fowle and indecent,
 Distempred through misrule and passions bace:
 It growes a Monster, and incontinent
 Doth loose his dignitie and natiue grace.
 Behold, who list, both one and other in this place.

After the Paynim brethren conquer'd were,
 The Briton Prince recou'ring his stolne sword,
 And Guyon his lost shield, they both yfere
 Forth passed on their way in faire accord,
 Til' him the Prince with gentle court did bord;
 Sir knight, mote I of you this curt'sie read,
 To weet why on your shield so goodly scord
 Beare ye the picture of that Ladies head?
 Full liuely is the semblaunt, though the substance dead.

11

Arg. 4 fight 1596, 1609 i 5 incedent 1590: corr. F. E.

Faire Sir (said he) if in that picture dead
Such life ye read, and vertue in vaine shew,
What mote ye weene, if the trew liuely-head
Of that most glorious visage ye did vew?
But if the beautie of her mind ye knew,
That is her bountie, and imperiall powre,
Thousand times fairer then her mortall hew,
O how great wonder would your thoughts deuoure,
And infinite desire into your spirite poure!

She is the mighty Queene of Faerie,
Whose faire retrait I in my shield do beare;
She is the flowre of grace and chastitie,
Throughout the world renowned far and neare,
My liege, my liege, my Soueraigne, my deare,
Whose glory shineth as the morning starre,
And with her light the earth enlumines cleare;
Far reach her mercies, and her prayses farre,
As well in state of peace, as puissaunce in warre

Thrise happy mar., (said then the Briton knight)
Whom gracious lot, and thy great valiaunce
Haue made thee souldier of that Princesse bright,
Which with her bounty and glad countenance
Doth blesse her seruants, and them high aduaunce.
How may straunge knight hope euer to aspire,
By faithfull seruice, and meet amenance,
Vnto such blisse? sufficient were that hire
For losse of thousand liues, to dye at her desire.

Said Uyon, Noble Lord, what meed so great,
Or grace of earthly Prince so soueraigne,
But by your wondrous worth and warlike feat
Ye well may hope, and easely attaine?
But were your will, her sold to entertaine,
And numbred be mongst knights of Maydenhed,
Great guerdon, well I wote, should you remaine,
And in her fauour high be reckoned,
As Arthegall, and Sophy now beene honored.

 Walkt round about the world, and I no lesse,
 Sith of that Goddesse I haue sought the sight,
 Yet no where can her find: such happinesse
 Heauen doth to me enuy, and fortune fauourlesse.

vii

Fortune, the foe of famous cheuisaunce
 Seldome (said Guyon) yields to vertue aide,
 But in her way throwes mischief and mischaunce,
 Whereby her course is stopt, and passage staid.
 But you, faire Sir, be not herewith dismaid,
 But constant keepe the way, in which ye stand;
 Which were it not, that I am else delaid
 With hard aduventure, which I haue in hand,
 I labour would to guide you through all Faery land.

viii

Gramercy Sir (said he) but mote I weete,
 What straunge aduventure do ye now pursew?
 Perhaps my succour, or aduizement meete
 Mote stead you much your purpose to subdew.
 Then gan Sir Guyon all the story shew
 Of false Acrasia, and her wicked wiles,
 Which to auenge, the Palmer him forth drew
 From Faery court. So talked they, the whiles
 They wasted had much way, and measurd many miles.

 And from their sweaty Coursers did auale,
 They found the gates fast barred long ere night,
 And euery loup fast lockt, as fearing foes despight.

 Was to them doen, their entrance to forstall,
 Till that the Squire gan nigher to approach;
 And wind his horne vnder the castle wall,
 That with the noise it shooke, as it would fall:
 Eftsoones forth looked from the highest spire
 The watch, and lowd vnto the knights did call,
 To weete, what they so rudely did require.

Who gently answered, They entrance did desire.

Fly fly, good knights, (said he) fly fast away
 If that your liues ye loue, as meete ye should;
 Fly fast, and saue your selues from neare decay,
 Here may ye not haue entraunce, though we would:
 We would and would againe, if that we could;
 But thousand enemies about vs raue,
 And with long siege vs in this castle hould:
 Seuen yeares this wize they vs besieged haue,

And many good knights slaine, that haue vs sought to saue.

Thus as he spoke, loe with outrageous cry
 A thousand villeins round about them swarmd
 Out of the rockes and caues adioyning nye,
 Vile caytiue wretches, ragged, rude, deformed,
 All threatning death, all in straunge manner armd,
 Some with vnweldy clubs, some with long speares,
 Some rusty kniues, some staues in fire warmd.
 Sterne was their looke, like wild amazed steares,
 Staring with hollow eyes, and stiffe vpstanding heares.

Fiersly at first those knights they did assaile,
 And droue them to recoile: but when againe
 They gaue fresh charge, their forces gan to faile,
 Vnhable their encounter to sustaine;
 For with such puissaunce and impetuous maine
 Those Champions broke on them, that forst them fly,
 Like scattered Sheepe, whenas the Shepherds swaine

A while they fled, but soone returnd againe xv
 With greater fury, then before was found;
 And euermore their cruell Capitaine
 Sought with his raskall routs t'enclose them round,
 And ouerrun to tread them to the ground.
 But soone the knights with their bright-burning blades
 Broke their rude troupes, and orders did confound, Hewing and slashing at their idle shades;
 For though they bodies seeme, yet substance from them fades.

As when a swarme of Gnats at euentide xvi
 Out of the fennes of Allan do arise,
 Their murmuring small trompets sounden wide,
 Whiles in the aire their clustring army flies,
 That as a cloud doth seeme to dim the skies;
 Ne man nor beast may rest, or take repast,
 For their sharpe wounds, and noyous iniuries,
 Till the fierce Northerne wind with blustering blast
 Doth blow them quite away, and in the Ocean cast.

Thus when they had that troublous rout disperst, xvii
 Vnto the castle gate they come againe,
 And entraunce crau'd, which was denied erst.
 Now when report of that their perilous paine,
 And combrous conflict, which they did sustaine,
 Came to the Ladies eare, which there did dwell,
 She forth issewed with a goodly traine
 Of Squires and Ladies equipaged well,
 And entertained them right fairely, as befell.

Alma she called was, a virgin bright; xviii
 That had not yet felt Cupides wanton rage,
 Yet was she woo'd of many a gentle knight,
 And many a Lord of noble parentage,
 That sought with her to lincke in marriage:
 For she was faire, as faire mote euer bee,

 Yet full of grace and goodly modestee,
 That euen heauen reioyced her sweete face to see.

In robe of lilly white she was arayd,

 And borne of two faire Damsels, which were taught
 That seruice well. Her yellow golden heare
 Was trimly wouen, and in tresses wrought,
 Ne other tyre she on her head did weare,
 But crowned with a garland of sweete Rosiere.

Goodly she entertaing those noble knights,
 And brought them vp into her castle hall;
 Where gentle court and gracious delight
 She to them made, with mildnesse virginall,
 Shewing her selfe both wise and liberall:
 There when they rested had a season dew,
 They her besought of fauour speciall,
 Of that faire Castle to affoord them vew;
 She graunted, and them leading forth, the same did shew.

First she them led vp to the Castle wall,
 That was so high, as foe might not it clime,
 And all so faire, and fensible withall,
 Not built of bricke, ne yet of stone and lime,
 But of thing like to that Egyptian slime,
 Whereof king Nine whilome built Babell towre;
 But O great pittie, that no lenger time
 So goodly workemanship should not endure:
 Soone it must turne to earth; no earthly thing is sure.

The frame thereof seemd partly circulare,
 And part triangulare, O worke diuine;
 Those two the first and last proportions are,
 The one imperfect, mortall, fœminine;
 Th'other immortall, perfect, masculine,
 And twixt them both a quadrate was the base,
 Proportioned equally by seuen and nine;
 Nine was the circle set in heauens place,
 All which compacted made a goodly diapase.

Therein two gates were placed seemly well:

xxiii

The one before, by which all in did pas,
Did th'other far in workmanship excell;
For not of wood, nor of enduring bras,
But of more worthy substance fram'd it was;
Doubly disparted, it did locke and close,
That when it locked, none might thorough pas,
And when it opened, no man might it close,
Still open to their friends, and closed to their foes.

Of hewen stone the porch was fairely wrought,
Stone more of valew, and more smooth and fine,
Then let or Marble far from Ireland brought;
Ouer the which was cast a wandring vine,
Enchaced with a wanton yuie twine.
And ouer it a faire Portcullis hong,
Which to the gate directly did incline,
With comely compasse, and compacture strong,
Neither vnseemely short, nor yet exceeding long.

xxiv

Within the Barbican a Porter sate,

xxv

Day and night duely keeping watch and ward,
Nor wight, nor word mote passe out of the gate,
But in good order, and with dew regard;
Vtterers of secrets he from thence delard,
Bablers of folly, and blazers of crime.
His larumbell might lowd and wide be hard,
When cause requird, but neuer out of time;
Early and late it rong, at euening and prime.

And round about the porch on euery side

xxvi

Twise sixteen warders sat, all armed bright
In glistring steele, and strongly fortifide:
Tall yeomen seemed they, and of great might,
And were enraunged ready, still for fight.
By them as Alma passed with her guestes,
They did obeysaunce, as beseemed right,
And then againe returned to their restes:
The Porter eke to her did lout with humble gestes.

Thence she them brought into a stately Hall,
 Wherein were many tables faire dispred,
 And ready dight with drapets festiuall,
 Against the viaundes should be ministred.
 At th'upper end there sate, yclad in red
 Downe to the ground, a comely personage,
 That in his hand a white rod menaged,
 He Steward was hight Diet; rype of age,
 And in demeanure sober, and in counsell sage.

And through the Hall there walked to and fro
 A iolly yeoman, Marshall of the same,
 Whose name was Appetite; he did bestow
 Both gwestes and meate, when euer in they came,
 And knew them how to order without blame,
 As him the Steward bad. They both attone
 Did dewty to their Lady, as became;
 Who passing by, forth led her gwestes anone
 Into the kitchin rowme, ne spard for nicenesse none.

It was a vault ybuilt for great dispence,
 With many raunges reard along the wall;
 And one great chimney, whose long tonnell thence The smoke forth threw. And in the midst of all
 There placed was a caudron wide and tall,
 Vpon a mighty furnace, burning whot,
 More whot, then Aer, or flaming Mongiball:
 For day and night it brent, ne ceased not,
 So long as any thing it in the caudron got.

But to delay the heat, least by mischaunce
 It might breake out, and set the whole on fire,
 There added was by goodly ordinaunce,
 An huge great paire of bellows, which did styre
 Continually, and cooling breath inspyre.
 About the Caudron many Cookes accoyld,
 With hookes and ladles, as need did require;
 The whiles the viandes in the vessell boyld
 They did about their businesse sweat, and sorely toyl.

xxix 3 thence, 1590 &c.

The maister Cooke was cald Concoction,
 A carefull man, and full of comely guise:
 The kitchin Clerke, that hight Digestion,
 Did order all th'Achates in seemely wise,
 And set them forth, as well he could deuise.
 The rest had seuerall offices assind,
 Some to remoue the scum, as it did rise;
 Others to beare the same away did mind;
 And others it to vse according to his kind.

xxxii

But all the liquour, which was fowle and wast,
 Not good nor seruiceable else for ought,
 They in another great round vessell plast,
 Till by a conduit pipe it thence were brought:
 And all the rest, that noyous was, and nought,
 By secret wayes, that none might it espy,
 Was close conuaid, and to the back-gate brought,
 That cleped was Port Esquiline, whereby
 It was auoided quite, and throwne out priuily.

xxxiii

Which goodly order, and great workmans skill
 Whenas those knights beheld, with rare delight,
 And gazing wonder they their minds did fill;
 For neuer had they seene so straunge a sight.
 Thence backe againe faire Alma led them right,
 And soone into a goodly Parlour brought,
 That was with royall arras richly dight,
 In which was nothing pourtrahed, nor wrought,
 Not wrought, nor pourtrahed, but easie to be thought.

xxxiii

And in the midst thereof vpon the floure,
 A louely beuy of faire Ladies sate,
 Courtred of many a iolly Paramoure,
 The which them did in modest wise amate,
 And eachone sought his Lady to aggrate:
 And eke emongst them litle Cupid playd

Diuerse delights they found them selues to please;
 Some song in sweet consort, some laught for ioy,
 Some plaid with strawes, some idly sat at ease;
 But other some could not abide to toy,
 All pleasaunce was to them grieve and annoy:
 This frownd, that faund, the third for shame did blush,
 Another seemed enuious, or coy,
 Another in her teeth did gnaw a rush:
 But at these straungers presence euerie one did hush.

Soone as the gracious Alma came in place,
 They all attonce out of their seates arose,
 And to her homage made, with humble grace:
 Whom when the knights beheld, they gan dispose Themselues to court, and each a Damsell chose:
 The Prince by chaunce did on a Lady light,
 That was right faire and fresh as morning rose,
 But somewhat sad, and solemne eke in sight,
 As if some pensiue thought constrained her gentle spright.

In a long purple pall, whose skirt with gold
 Was fretted all about, she was arayd;
 And in her hand a Poplar braunch did hold:
 To whom the Prince in curteous manner said;
 Gentle Madame, why beene ye thus dismaid,
 And your faire beautie do with sadnesse spill?
 Liues any, that you hath thus ill apaid?
 Or doen you loue, or doen you lacke your will?
 What euer be the cause, it sure beseemes you ill.

 And in your selfe do not the same aduise?

Thereat the Elfe did blush in priuitee,

 Thus they awhile with court and goodly game,
 Themselves did solace each one with his Dame,
 Till that great Ladie thence away them sought,
 To vew her castles other wondrous frame.
 Vp to a stately Turret she them brought,
 Ascending by ten steps of Alablaster wrought.

That Turrets frame most admirable was,
 Like highest heauen compassed around,

 Nor that proud towre of Troy, though richly guilt,
 From which young Hectors bloud by cruell Greekes was spilt.

The rooffe hereof was arched ouer head,
 And deckt with flowers and herbars daintily;
 Two goodly Beacons, set in watches stead,
 Therein gaue light, and flam'd continually:
 For they of liuing fire most subtilly

This parts great workmanship, and wondrous powre,
That all this other worlds worke doth excell,
And likest is vnto that heauenly towre,
That God hath built for his owne blessed bowre.
Therein were diuerse roomes, and diuerse stages,
But three the chieftest, and of greatest powre,
In which there dwelt three honorable sages,
The wisest men, I weene, that liued in their ages.

Not he, whom Greece, the Nourse of all good arts,

xlviii

By Phabus doome, the wisest thought aliue,
Might be compar'd to these by many parts:
Nor that sage Pylian syre, which did suruiue
Three ages, such as mortall men contriue,
By whose aduise old Priams cittie fell,
With these in praise of pollicies mote striue.

These three in these three roomes did sundry dwell,
And counselled faire Alma, how to gouerne well.

The first of them could things to come foresee:

xlix

The next could of things present best aduize;
The third things past could keepe in memoree,
So that no time, nor reason could arize,
But that the same could one of these comprize.
For thy the first did in the forepart sit,
That nought mote hinder his quicke preiudize:
He had a sharpe foresight, and working wit,
That neuer idle was, ne once could rest a whit.

His chamber was disappointed all within,

l

With sundry colours, in the which were writ
Infinite shapes of things dispersed thin;
Some such as in the world were neuer yit,
Ne can deuized be of mortall wit;
Some daily seene, and knowen by their names,
Such as in idle fantasies doe flit:

Infernall Hags, Centaurs, feendes, Hippodames, Apes, Lions, Ægles, Owles, fooles, louers, children, Dames.

And all the chamber filled was with flyes,
 Which buzzed all about, and made such sound,
 That they encombred all mens eares and eyes,
 Like many swarmes of Bees assembled round,
 After their hiues with honny do abound:
 All those were idle thoughts and fantasies,
 Deuices, dreames, opinions vnsound,
 Shewes, visions, sooth-sayes, and prophesies;
 And all that fained is, as leasings, tales, and lies.

ii

xlviii

Emongst them all sate he, which wonned there,
 That hight Phantastes by his nature trew;
 A man of yeares yet fresh, as mote appere,
 Of swarth complexion, and of crabbed hew,
 That him full of melancholy did shew;
 Bent hollow beetle browes, sharpe staring eyes,
 That mad or foolish seemd: one by his vew
 Mote deeme him borne with ill disposed skyes,
 When oblique Saturne sate in the house of agonyes.

iii

xlix

Whom Alma hauing shewed to her gwestes,
 Thence brought them to the second roome, whose wals
 Were painted faire with memorable gestic,
 Of famous Wisards, and with picturals
 Of Magistrates, of courts, of tribunals,
 Of commen wealthes, of states, of pollicy
 Of lawes, of iudgements, and of decretals;
 All artes, all science, all Philosophy,
 And all that in the world was aye thought wictily.

lii

l

Of those that roome was full, and them among
 There sate a man of ripe and perfect age,
 Who did them meditate all his life long,
 That through continuall practise and vsage,
 He now was growne right wise, and wondrous sage.
 Great pleasur had those stranger knights, to see
 His goodly reason, and graue personage,
 That his disciples both desir'd to bee;
 But Alma thence them led to th'hindmost roome of three.

That chamber seemed ruinous and old,
 And therefore was removed farre behind,
 Yet were the wals, that id the same vphold,
 Right firme and strong, though somewhat they declind;
 And therein sate an old oldman, halfe blind,
 And all decrepit in his feeble corse,
 Yet liuely vigour rested in his mind,
 And recompenst him with a better scorse:
 Weake body well is chang'd for minds redoubled forse.

Iv

This man of infinite remembrance was,
 And things foregone through many ages held,
 Which he recorded still, as they did pas,
 Ne suffred them to perish through long eld,
 As all things else, the which this world doth weld,
 But laid them vp in his immortall scrine,
 Where they for euer incorrupted dweld:
 The warres he well remembred of king Nine,
 Of old Assaracus, and Inachus diuine.

Ivi

The yeares of Nestor nothing were to his,
 Ne yet Mathusalem, though longest liu'd;
 For he remembred both their infancies:
 Ne wonder then, if that he were depriu'd
 Of natue strength now, that he them suruiu'd.
 His chamber all was hangd about with rolles,
 And old records from auncient times deriu'd,
 Some made in books, some in long parchment scrolles,
 That were all worme-eaten, and full of canker holes.

Ivii

Amidst them all he in a chaire was set,
 Tossing and turning them withouten end;
 But for he was vnhabie them to fet,
 A litle boy did on him still attend,
 To reach, when euer he for ought did send;
 And oft when things were lost, or laid amis,
 That boy them sought, and vnto him did lend.
 Therefore he Anamnestes cleped is,
 And that old man Eumnestes, by their propertis.

Iviii

The knights there entring, did him reuerence dew
 And wondred at his endlesse exercise,
 Then as they gan his Librarie to vew,
 And antique Registers for to auise,
 There chaunced to the Princes hand to rize,
 An auncient booke, hight Briton monuments,
 That of this lands first conquest did deuize,
 And old diuision into Regiments,
 Till it reduced was to one mans governments.

Sir Guyon chaunst eke on another booke,
 That hight Antiquitie of Faerie lond,
 In which when as he greedily did looke,
 Th'off-spring of Elues and Faries there he fond,
 As it deliuered was from hond to hond:
 Whereat they burning both with feruent fire,
 Their countries auncestry to vnderstand,
 Crau'd leaue of Alma, and that aged sire,
 To read those bookes; who gladly graunted their desire.

Cant. X.

*A chronicle of Briton kings, from Brute to Vthers rayne.
 And rolles of Elfin Emperours, till time of Gloriane.*

Who now shall giue vnto me words and sound,
 Equall vnto this haughtie enterprise?
 Or who shall lend me wings, with which from ground
 My lowly verse may loftily arise,
 And lift it selfe vnto the highest skies?
 More ample spirit, then hitherto was wount,
 Here needes me, whiles the famous auncestries
 Of my most dreaded Soueraigne I recount,
 By which all earthly Princes she doth farre surmount.

lx 2 lond. 1596 3 looke; 1596, 1609

Ne vnder Sunne, that shines so wide and faire,
 Whence all that liues, does borrow life and light,
 Liues ought, that to her linage may compaire,
 Which though from earth it be deriued right,
 Yet doth it selfe stretch forth to heauens hight,
 And all the world with wonder ouerspred;
 A labour huge, exceeding farre my might:
 How shall fraile pen, with feare disparaged,
 Conceiue such soueraine glory, and great bountihed?

Argument worthy of Mæonian quill,
 Or rather worthy of great Phæbus rote,
 Whereon the ruines of great Ossa hill,
 And triumphes of Phlegrean Ioue he wrote,
 That all the Gods admird his loftie note.
 But if some relish of that heavenly lay
 His learned daughters would to me report,
 To decke my song withall, I would assay,
 Thy name, O soueraine Queene, to blazon farre away.

Thy name O soueraine Queene, thy realme and race,
 From this renowmed Prince deriued arre,
 Who mightily vpheld that royall mace,
 Which now thou bear'st, to thee descended farre
 From mightie kings and conquerours in warre,
 Thy fathers and great Grandfathers of old,
 Whose noble deedes aboue the Northerne starre
 Immortall fame for euer hath enrold;
 As in that old mans booke they were in order told.

The land, which warlike Britons now possesse,
 And therein haue their mightie empire raysd,
 In antique times was saluage wildernesse,
 Vnpeopled, vnmanurd, vnprou'd, vnpraysd,
 Ne was it Island then, ne was it payzd
 Amid the Ocean waues, ne was it sought
 Of marchants farre, for profits therein praysd,
 But was all desolate, and of some thought
 By sea to haue bene from the Celticke mayn-land brought.

ii Ne did it then deserue a name to haue,
 Till that the venturous Mariner that way
 Learning his ship from those white rocks to saue,
 Which all along the Southerne sea-coast lay,
 Threatning vnheedie wrecke and rash decay,
 For safeties sake that same his sea-marke made,
 And namd it Albion. But later day
 Finding in it fit ports for fishers trade,
 Gan more the same frequent, and further to inuade.
 iii But farre in land a saluage nation dwelt,
 Of hideous Giants, and halfe beastly men,
 That neuer tasted grace, nor goodnesse felt,
 But like wild beasts lurking in loathsome den,
 And flying fast as Roebucke through the fen,
 All naked without shame, or care of cold,
 By hunting and by spoiling liued then;
 Of stature huge, and eke of courage bold,
 That sonnes of men amazd their sternnesse to behold.
 iv But whence they sprong, or how they were begot, Vneath is to assure; vneath to wene
 That monstrous error, which doth some assot,
 That Dioclesians fiftie daughters shene
 Into this land by chaunce haue driuen bene,
 Where companing with feends and filthy Sprights,
 Through vaine illusion of their lust vnclene,
 They brought forth Giants and such dreadfull wights,
 As farre exceeded men in their immeasurd might.
 v They held this land, and with their filthinesse
 Polluted this same gentle soyle long time:
 That their owne mother loathd their beastlinesse,
 And gan abhorre her broods vnkindly crime,
 All were they borne of her owne natue slime,
 Vntill that Brutus anciently deriu'd
 From royall stocke of old Assaracs line,
 Driuen by fatall error, here arriu'd,
 And them of their vniust possession depriu'd.

But ere he had established his throne,
 And spred his empire to the vtmost shore,
 He fought great battels with his saluage fone;
 In which he them defeated euermore,
 And many Giants left on groning flore;
 That well can witnesse yet vnto this day
 The westerne Hogh, besprincled with the gore
 Of mightie Goemot, whom in stout fray
Corineus conquered, and cruelly did slay.

And eke that ample Pit, yet farre renound,
 For the large leape, which Debon did compell
Coulin to make, being eight lugs of grownd;
 Into the which returning backe, he fell,
 But those three monstrous stones doe most excell
 Which that huge sonne of hideous Albion,
 Whose father Hercules in Fraunce did quell,
 Great Godmer threw, in fierce contention,
 At bold Canutus; but of him was slaine anon.

In meed of these great conquests by them got,
Corineus had that Prouince vtmost west,
 To him assigned for his worthy lot,
 Which of his name and memorable gest
 He called Cornewaile, yet so called best:
 And Debons shayre was, that is Deuonshyre:
 But Canute had his portion from the rest,
 The which he cald Canutium, for his hyre;
 Now Cantium, which Kent we commenly inquire.

Thus Brute this Realme vnto his rule subdewd,
 And raigned long in great felicitie,
 Lou'd of his friends, and of his foes eschewd,
 He left three sonnes, his famous progeny,
 Borne of faire Ingene of Italy;
 Mongst whom he parted his imperiall state,
 And Lochrine left chiefe Lord of Britany.
 At last ripe age bad him surrender late
 His life, and long good fortune vnto finall fate.

Lochrine was left the soueraine Lord of all;
 But Albanact had all the Northrene part,
 Which of himselfe Albania he did call;
 And Camber did possesse the Westerne quart,
 Which Seuerne now from Logris doth depart:
 And each his portion peaceably enioyd,
 Ne was there outward breach, nor grudge in hart,
 That once their quiet gouernment annoyd,
 But each his paines to others profit still employd.

xiv

Vntill a nation straung, with visage swart,
 And courage fierce, that all men did affray,
 Which through the world then swarmd in euery part,
 And ouerflow'd all countries farre away,
 Like Noyes great flood, with their importune sway,
 This land inuaded with like violence,
 And did themselues through all the North display:
 Vntill that Lochrine for his Realmes defence,
 Did head against them make, and strong munificence.

xv

He them encountred, a confused rout,
 Foreby the Riuer, that whylome was hight
 The auncient Abus, where with courage stout
 He them defeated in victorious fight,
 And chaste so fiercely after fearfull flight,
 That forst their Chieftaine, for his safeties sake,
 (Their Chieftaine Humber named was aright)
 Vnto the mightie streame him to betake,
 Where he an end of battell, and of life did make.

xvi

The king returned proud of victorie,
 And insolent wox through vnwonted ease,
 That shortly he forgot the ieopardie,
 Which in his land he lately did appease,
 And fell to vaine voluptuous disease:
 He lou'd faire Ladie Estrild, lewdly lou'd,
 Whose wanton pleasures him too much did please,
 That quite his hart from Guendolene remou'd,
 From Guendolene his wife, though alwaies faithfull prou'd.

xviii

Would not endure to be so vile disdaind,
 But gathering force, and courage valorous,
 Encountred him in battell well ordaind,
 In which him vanquisht she to fly constraind:
 But she so fast pursewd, that him she tooke,
 And threw in bands, where he till death remaind;
 Als his faire Leman, flying through a brooke,
 She ouerhent, nought moued with her piteous looke.

But both her selfe, and eke her daughter deare,
 Begotten by her kingly Paramoure,
 The faire Sabrina almost dead with feare,
 She there attached, farre from all succoure;
 The one she slew in that impatient stoure,
 But the sad virgin innocent of all,
 Adowne the rolling riuer she did poure,
 Which of her name now Seuerne men do call:
 Such was the end, that to disloyall loue did fall.

xix

Then for her sonne, which she to Locrin bore,
Madan was young, vnmeet the rule to sway,
 In her owne hand the crowne she kept in store,
 Till ryper yeares he raught, and stronger stay:
 During which time her powre she did display
 Through all this realme, the glorie of her sex,
 And first taught men a woman to obay:
 But when her sonne to mans estate did wex,
 She it surrendred, ne her selfe would lenger vex.

xx

Tho Madan raignd, vnworthie of his race:
 For with all shame that sacred throne he fild:
 Next Memprise, as vnworthy of that place,
 In which being consorted with Manild,
 For thirst of single kingdome him he kild.
 But Ebranck salued both their infamies
 With noble deedes, and warreyd on Brunchild
 In Henault, where yet of his victories
 Braue monuments remaine, which yet that land enuies.

An happie man in his first dayes he was,
 And happie father of faire progeny:
 For all so many weekes as the yeare has,
 So many children he did multiply;
 Of which were twentie sonnes, which did apply
 Their minds to praise, and cheualrous desire:
 Those germans did subdew all Germany,
 Of whom it hight; but in the end their Sire
 With foule repulse from Fraunce was forced to retire.

Which blot his sonne succeeding in his seat,
 The second Brute, the second both in name,
 And eke in semblance of his puissance great,
 Right well recur'd, and did away that blame
 With recompence of euerlasting fame.
 He with his victour sword first opened
 The Jewels of wide Fraunce, a forlorne Dame,
 And taught her first how to be conquered;
 Since which, with sundrie spoiles she hath beene ransacked.

 Next Huddibras his realme did not encrease,
 But taught the land from wearie warres to cease.

 Which seeth with secret fire eternally,
 And in their entrails, full of quicke Brimston,
 Nourish the flames, which they are warm'd vpon,
 That to their people wealth they forth do well,
 And health to euery forreine nation:
 Yet he at last contending to excell
 The reach of men, through flight into fond mischief fell.
 Next him king Leyr in happie peace long rained,
 But had no issue male him to succeed,
 But three faire daughters, which were well vptrained,
 In all that seemed fit for kingly seed:
 Mongst whom his realme he equally decreed
 To haue diuided. Tho when feeble age
 Nigh to his vtmost date he saw proceed,
 He cald his daughters; and with speeches sage Inquyrd, which of them most did loue her parentage.
 The eldest Gonorill gan to protest,
 That she much more then her owne life him lou'd:
 And Regan greater loue to him profest,
 Then all the world, when euer it were proou'd;
 But Cordeill said she lou'd him, as behoou'd:
 Whose simple answer, wanting colours faire
 To paint it forth, him to displeasance moou'd,
 That in his crowne he counted her no haire,
 But twixt the other twaine his kingdome whole did shaire.
 So wedded th'one to Maglan king of Scots,
 And th'other to the king of Cambria,
 And twixt them shayrd his realme by equall lots:
 But without dowre the wise Cordelia
 Was sent to Aganip of Celtica.
 Their aged Syre, thus eased of his crowne,
 A priuate life led in Albania,
 With Gonorill, long had in great renowne,

But true it is, that when the oyle is spent,
 The light goes out, and weeke is throwne away;
 So when he had resigned his regiment,
 His daughter gan despise his drouping day,
 And wearie waxe of his continuall stay.
 Tho to his daughter Regan he repayrd,
 Who him at first well vsed euery way;
 But when of his departure she despayrd,
 Her bountie she abated, and his cheare empayrd.

The wretched man gan then auise too late,
 That loue is not, where most it is profest,
 Too cruelly tryde in his extreamest state;
 At last resolu'd likewise to proue the rest,
 He to Cordelia him selfe address,
 Who with entire affection him receau'd,
 As for her Syre and king her seemed best;
 And after all an army strong she leau'd,
 To war on those, which him had of his realme bereau'd.

So to his crowne she him restor'd againe,
 In which he dyde, made ripe for death by eld,
 And after wild, it should to her remaine:
 Who peaceably the same long time did weld:
 And all mens harts in dew obedience held:
 Till that her sisters children, woxen strong
 Through proud ambition, against her rebeld,
 And ouercommen kept in prison long,
 Till wearie of that wretched life, her selfe she hong.

Then gan the bloudie brethren both to raine:
 But fierce Cundah gan shortly to enuie
 His brother Morgan, prickt with proud disdaine,
 To haue a pere in part of soueraintie,
 And kindling coles of cruell enmitie,
 Raisd warre, and him in battell ouerthrew:
 Whence as he to those woodie hils did flie,
 Which hight of him Glamorgan, there him slew:
 Then did he raigne alone, when he none equall knew.

 In whose sad time bloud did from heauen raine:
 Next great Gurgustus, then faire Cecily
 In constant peace their kingdomes did containe,
 After whom Lago, and Kinmarke did raine,
 And Gorbogud, till farre in yeares he grew:
 Then his ambitious sonnes vnto them twaine
 Arraught the rule, and from their father drew,
 Stout Ferrex and sterne Porrex him in prison threw.

xxxiv

But O, the greedy thirst of royall crowne,
 That knowes no kinred, nor regards no right,
 Stird Porrex vp to put his brother downe;
 Who vnto him assembling forreine might,
 Made warre on him, and fell him selfe in fight:
 Whose death t'auenge, his mother mercillesse,
 Most mercillesse of women, Wyden hight,

 And with most cruell hand him murdered pittillesse.

 Thenceforth this Realme was into factions rent,
 Whilest each of Brutus boasted to be borne,
 That in the end was left no moniment
 Of Brutus, nor of Britons glory auncient.

Then vp arose a man of matchlesse might,
 And wondrous wit to menage high affaires,
 Who stird with pittie of the stressed plight
 Of this sad Realme, cut into sundry shaires
 By such, as claymd themselues Brutes rightfull haire, Gathered the Princes of the people loose,
 To taken counsell of their common cares;
 Who with his wisdom won, him streight did choose

 By which he freed the Traueilers high way,
 The Churches part, and Ploughmans portion,
 Restraining stealth, and strong extortion;

 And goodly well long time it gouerned,
 Till the prowde Romanes him disquieted,
 And warlike Cæsar, tempted with the name
 Of this sweet Island, neuer conquered,
 And enuyng the Britons blazed fame, (O hideous hunger of dominion) hither came.

xlii

Yet twice they were repulsed backe againe,
 And twice renforst, backe to their ships to fly,
 The whiles with bloud they all the shore did staine,
 And the gray Ocean into purple dy:
 Ne had they footing found at last perdie,
 Had not Androgeus, false to natiue soyle,
 And enuious of Vncles soueraintie,
 Betrayd his contrey vnto forreine spoyle:
 Nought else, but treason, from the first this land did foyle.

xliii

So by him Cæsar got the victory,
 Through great bloudshed, and many a sad assay,
 In which him selfe was charged heauily
 Of hardy Nennius, whom he yet did slay,
 But lost his sword, yet to be seene this day.
 Thenceforth this land was tributarie made
 T'ambitious Rome, and did their rule obay,
 Till Arthur all that reckoning defrayd;
 Yet oft the Briton kings against them strongly swayd.

Next him Tenantius raigned, then Kimbeline,
 What time th'eternall Lord in fleshly slime
 Enwombed was, from wretched Adams line
 To purge away the guilt of sinfull crime:
 O ioyous memorie of happy time,
 That heauenly grace so plenteou. ly displayd;
 (O too high ditty for my simple rime.)
 Soone after this the Romanes him warrayd;
 For that their tribute he refusd to let be payd.

Good Claudius, that next was Emperour,
 An army brought, and with him battell fought,
 In which the king was by a Treachetour
 Disguised slaine, ere any thereof thought:
 Yet ceased not the bloody fight for ought;
 For Aruirage his brothers place supplide,
 Both in his armes, and crowne, and by that draught
 Did driue the Romanes to the weaker side,
 That they to peace agreed. So all was pacifide.

Was neuer king more highly magnifide,
 Nor dred of Romanes, then was Aruirage,
 For which the Emperour to him allide
 His daughter Genuiss' in marriage:
 Yet shortly he renounst the vassalage
 Of Rome againe, who hither hastily sent Vespasian, that with great spoile and rage
 Forwasted all, till Genuissa gent
 Perswaded him to ceasse, and her Lord to relent.

He dyde; and him succeeded Marius,
 Who ioyd his dayes in great tranquillity,
 Then Coyll, and after him good Lucius,
 That first receiued Christianitie,
 The sacred pledge of Christes Euangely;
 Yet true it is, that long before that day
 Hither came Ioseph of Arimathy,
 Who brought with him the holy grayle, (they say)
 And preacht the truth, but since it greatly did decay.

1 This good king shortly without issew dide,
 Whereof great trouble in the kingdome grew,
 That did her selfe in sundry parts diuide,
 And with her pcwre her owne selfe ouerthrew,
 Whilest Romanes dayly did the weake subdew:
 Which seeing stout Bunduca, vp arose,
 And taking armes, the Britons to her drew;
 With whom she marched streight against her foes,
 And them vnwares besides the Seuerne did enclose.

 Not with so good successe, as she deseru'd;
 By reason that the Captaines on her side,
 Corrupted by Paulinus, from her sweru'd:
 Yet such, as were through former flight preseru'd,
 Gathering againe, her Host she did renew,
 And with fresh courage on the victour seru'd:
 But being all defeated, saue a few,
 Rather then fly, or be captiu'd her selfe she slew.

iii O famous moniment of womens prayse,
 Matchable either to Semiramis,
 Whom antique history so high doth raise,
 Or to Hypsiphil' or to Thomiris:
 Her Host two hundred thousand numbred is;
 Who whiles good fortune fauoured her might,
 Triumphed oft against her enimis;
 And yet though ouercome in haplesse fight,
 She triumphed on death, in enemies despight.

 Fought with Scuerus, and him ouerthrew;
 Yet in the chace was slaine of them, that fled:
 So made them victours, whom he did subdew.
 Then gan Carausius tirannize anew,
 And gainst the Romanes bent their proper powre,
 But him Allectus treacherously slew,
 And took on him the robe of Emperoure:
 Nath'lesse the same enioyed but short happy howre:

For Asclepiodate him ouercame,
 And left inglorious on the vanquisht playne,
 Without or robe, or rag, to hide his shame.
 Then afterwards he in his stead did rayne;
 But shortly was by Coyll in battell slaine:
 Who after long debate, since Lucies time,
 Was of the Britons first crownd Sou. raine:
 Then gan this Realme renewe her passed prime:
 He of his name Coylchester built of stone and lime.

Which when the Romanes heard, they hither sent Constantius, a man of mickle might,
 With whom king Coyll made an agreement,
 And to him gaue for wife his daughter bright,
 Faire Helena, the fairest liuing wight;
 Who in all godly thewes, and goodly prayse
 Did far excell, but was most famous hight
 For skill in Musicke of all in her dayes, Aswell in curious instruments, as cunning layes.

Of whom he did great Constantine beget,
 Who afterward was Emperour of Rome;
 To which whiles absent he his mind did set,
Octavius here lept into his roome,
 And it vsurped by vnrighteous doome:
 But he his title iustifide by might,
 Slaying Traherne, and hauing ouercome
 The Romane legion in dreadfull fight:
 So settled he his kingdome, and confirmd his right.

But war' ting issew male, his daughter deare
 He gaue in wedlocke to Maximian,
 And him with her made of his kingdome heyre,
 Who soone by meanes thereof the Empire wan,
 Till murdred by the friends of Gratian;
 Then gan the Hunnes and Picts inuade this land,
 During the raigne of Maximinian;
 Who dying left none heire them to withstand,
 But that they ouerran all parts with easie hand.

lxi i deare, 1590, 1596

The weary Britons, whose war-hable youth
 Was by Maximian lately led away,
 With wretched miseries, and woefull ruth,
 Were to those Pagans made an open pray,
 And dayly spectacle of sad decay :
 Whom Romane warres, which now soure hundred yeares,
 And more had wasted, could no w^t it dismay ;
 Till by consent of Commons and of Peares,
 They crownd the second Constantine with ioyous teares,

lxii

Who hauing oft in battell vanquished
 Those spoilefull Picts, and swarming Easterlings,
 Long time in peace his Realme established,
 Yet oft annoyd with sundry bordragings
 Of neighbour Scots, and forrein Scatterlings,
 With which the world did in those dayes abound :
 Which to outbarre, with painefull pyonings
 From sea to sea he heapt a mightie mound,
 Which from Alcluid to Panwelt did that border bound.

lxiii

Three sonnes he dying left, all vnder age ;
 By meanes whereof, their vncle Vortigere
 Vsurpt the crowne, during their pupillage ;
 Which th'Infants tutors gathering to feare,
 Them closely into Armorick did beare :
 For dread of whom, and for those Picts annoyes,
 He sent to Germanie, straunge aid to reare,
 From whence eftsoones arriued here three hoyes
 Of Saxons, whom he for his safetie employes.

lxiv

Two brethren were their Capitains, which hight
Hengist and Horsus, well approu'd in warre,
 And both of them men of renowned might ;
 Who making vantage of their ciuill iarre,
 And of those forreiners, which came from farre,
 Grew great, and got large portions of land,
 That in the Realme e e long they stronger arre,
 Then they which sought at first their helping hand,
 And Vortiger enforst the kingdome to aband.

But by the helpe of Vortimere his sonne,
 He is againe vnto his rule restord,
 And Hengist seeming sad, for that was donne,
 Receiued is to grace and new accord,
 Through his faire daughters face, and flattring word;
 Soone after which, three hundred Lordes he slew
 Of British bloud, all sitting at his bord;
 Whose dolefull moniments who list to rew,
 Th'eternall markes of treason may at Stonheng vew.

lxvi

By this the sonnes of Constantine, which fled,
Ambrose and Vther did ripe years attaine,
 And here arriuing, strongly challenged
 The crowne, which Vortiger did long detain:
 Who flying from his guilt, by them was slaine,
 And Hengist eke soone brought to shamefull death.
 Thenceforth Aurelius peaceably did rayne,
 Till that through poyson stopped was his breath;
 So now entombed lyes at Stoneheng by the heath.

After him Vther, which Pendragon hight,
 Succeding There abruptly it did end,
 Without full point, or other Censure right,
 As if the rest some wicked hand did rend,
 Or th'Authour selfe could not at least attend
 To finish it: that so vntimely breach
 The Prince him selfe halfe seemeth to offend,
 Yet secret pleasure did offence empeach,
 And wonder of antiquitie long stopt his speach.

lxviii

At last quite raiisht with delight, to heare
 The royall Ofspring of his natie land,
 Cryde out, Deare countrey, O how dearely deare
 Ought thy remembraunce, and perpetuall band
 Be to thy foster Childe, that from thy hand
 Did commun breath and nouriture receaue?
 How brutish is it not to vnderstand,
 How much to her we owe, that all vs gaue,
 That gaue vnto vs all, what euer good we haue.

lxvii 2 Ambrise 1596, 1609

lxviii 7 seemed 1590

But Guyon all this while his booke did read,
 Ne yet has ended: for it was a great
 And ample volume, that doth far exceed My leasure, so long leaues here to repeat:
 It told, how first Promethews did create
 A man, of many partes from beasts deriued,
 And then stole fire from heauen, to animate
 His worke, for which he was by Ioue depriued
 Of life him selfe, and hart-strings of an Ægle riued.

That man so made, he called Elfe, to weete
 Quick, the first authour of all Elfin kind:
 Who wandering through the world with wearie feet,
 Did in the gardins of Adonis find
 A goodly creature, whom he deemd in mind
 To be no earthly wight, but either Spright,
 Or Angell, th'authour of all woman kind;
 Therefor a Fay he her according hight,
 Of whom all Faeryes spring, and fetch their lignage right.

Of these a mightie people shortly grew,
 And puisaunt kings, which all the world warrayd,
 And to them selues all Nations did subdew:
 The first and eldest, which that scepter swayd,
 Was Elfin; him all India obeyd,
 And all that now America men call:
 Next him was noble Elfinan, who layd
Cleopolis foundation first of all:
 But Elfline enclosd it with a golden wall.

His sonne was Elfinell, who ouercame
 The wicked Gobbelines in bloudy field:
 But Elfant was of most renowmed fame,
 Who all of Christall did Panthea build:
 Then Elfar, who two brethren gyants kild,
 'The one of which had two heads, th'other three:
 Then Elfinor, who was in Magick skild;
 He built by art vpon the glassy See
 A bridge of bras, whose sound heauens thunder seem'd to bee.

He left three sonnes, the which in order raynd,
 And all their Offspring, in their dew descents, Euen seuen hundred Princes, which maintaynd
 With mightie deedes their sundry gouernments;
 That were too long their infinite contents
 Here to record, ne much materiall:
 Yet should they be most famous moniments,
 And braue ensample, both of martiall,
 And ciuill rule to kings and states imperiall.

xxxiv

After all these Elfcleas did sayne,
 The wise Elfcleas in great Maiestie,
 Who mightily that scepter did sustayne,
 And with rich spoile: and famous victorie,
 Did high aduaunce the crowne of Faery.
 He left two sonnes, of which faire Elferon
 The eldest brother did vntimely dy;
 Whose emptie place the mightie Oberon
 Doubly supplide, in spousall, and dominion.

xxxv

Great was his power and glorie ouer all,
 Which him before, that sacred seate did fill,
 That yet remains his wide memoriall:
 He dying left the fairest Tanaquill,
 Him to succede therein, by his last will:
 Fairer and nobler liueth none this howre,
 Ne like in grace, ne like in learned skill;
 Therefore they Glorian call that glorious flowre,
 Long mayst thou Glorian liue, in glory and great powre.

xxxvi

Beguild thus with delight of nouelties,
 And naturall desire of countreys state,
 So long they red in those antiquities,
 That how the time was fled, they quite forgate,
 Till gentle Alma seeing it so late,
 Perforce their studies broke, and them besought
 To thinke, how supper did them long awaite.
 So halfe vnwilling from their bookes them brought,
 And fairely feasted, as so noble knights she ought.

Cant. XI.

WHat warre so cruell, or what siege so sore,
As that, which strong affections do apply
Against the fort of reason euermore
To bring the soule into captiuitie:
Their force is fiercer through infirmitie
Of the fraile flesh, relenting to their rage,
And exercise most bitter tyranny
Vpon the parts, brought into their bondage:
No wretchednesse is like to sinfull vellenage.
But in a body, which doth freely yeeld
His partes to reasons rule obedient,
And letteth her that ought the scepter weeld,
All happy peace and goodly gouernment
Is settled there in sure establishment;
There Alma like a virgin Queene most bright,
Doth flourish in all beautie excellent:
And to her guesstes doth bounteous banket dight,
Attempted goodly well for health and for delight.
Early before the Morne with cremosin ray,
The windowes of bright heauen opened had,
Through which into the world the dawning day
Might looke, that maketh euery creature glad,
Vprose Sir Guyon, in bright armour clad,
And to his purposd iourney him prepar'd:
With him the Palmer eke in habit sad,
Him selfe addrest to that aduenture hard:
So to the riuers side they both together far'd.

ii 9 and delight 1596

X 2

Where them awaited ready at the ford
The Ferriman, as Alma had behight,
With his well rigged boate: They go aboard,
And he eftsoones gan launch his barke forthright.
Ere long they rowed were quite out of sight,
And fast the land behind them fled away.
But let them pas, whiles wind and weather right
Do serue their turnes: here I a while must stay,
To see a cruell fight doen by the Prince this day.

For all so soone, as Guyon thence was gon
Vpon his voyage with his trustie guide,
That wicked band of villeins fresh begon
That castle to assaile on euery side,
And lay strong siege about it far and wide.
So huge and infinite their numbers were,
That all the land they vnder them did hide;
So fowle and vgly, that exceeding feare
Their visages imprest, when they approched neare.

Them in twelue troupes their Captain did dispart
And round about in fittest steades did place,
Where each might best offend his proper part,
And his contrary obiect most deface,
As euery one seem'd meetest in that cace.
Seuen of the same against the Castle gate,
In strong entrenchments he did closely place,
Which with incessaunt force and endlesse hate,
They battred day and night, and entraunce did awate.

The other fife, fife sundry wayes he set,
Against the fife great Bulwarkes of that pile,
And vnto each a Bulwarke did arret,
T'assayle with open force or hidden guile,
In hope thereof to win victorious spoile.
They all that charge did feruently apply,
With greedie malice and importune toyle,
And planted there their huge artillery,
With which they dayly made most dreadfull battery.

The first troupe was a monstrous rablement
 Of fowle misshapen wights, of which some were Headed like Owles, with beκες vncomely bent,
 Others like Dogs, others like Gryphons dreare,
 And some had wings, and some had clawes to teare,
 And euery one of them had Lynces eyes,
 And euery one did bow and arrowes beare:
 All those were lawlesse lustes, corrupt enuies,
 And couetous aspectes, all cruell enimies.

viii

Those same against the bulwarke of the Sight
 Did lay strong siege, and battailous assault,
 Ne once did yield it respite day nor night,
 But soone as Titan gan his head exault,
 And soone againe as he his light with hault,
 Their wicked engins they against it bent:
 That is each thing, by which the eyes may fault,
 But two then all more huge and violent,
 Beautie, and money, they that Bulwarke sorely rent.

ix

The second Bulwarke was the Hearing sence, Gainst which the second troupe dessignment makes;
 Deformed creatures, in straunge difference,
 Some hauing heads like Harts, some like to Snakes,
 Some like wild Bores late roud out of the brakes;
 Slaunderous reproches, and fowle infamies,
 Leasings, backbyttings, and vaine-glorious crakes,
 Bad counsels, prayses, and false flatteries.
 All those against that fort did bend their batteries.

x

Likewise that same third Fort, that is the Smell
 Of that third troupe was cruelly assayd:
 Whose hideous shapes were like to feends of hell,
 Some like to hounds, some like to Apes, dismayd,
 Some like to Puttockes, all in plumes arayd:
 All shap't according their conditions,
 For by those vgly formes weren pourtrayd,
 Foolish delights and fond abusions,
 Which do that sence besiege with light illusions.

xi

viii 3 beakes 1609 ix 9 they against that Bulwarke lent 1590
 x 2 assignment 1590 xi 4 mismayd conj. Jortin

And that fourth band, which cruell battry bent,
 Against the fourth Bulwarke, that is the Tast,
 Was as the rest, a grysie rablement,
 Some mouth'd like greedy Oystriges, some fast
 Like loathly Toades, some fashioned in the wast
 Like swine; for so deformd is luxury,
 Surfeat, misdiet, and vnthrifitie wast,
 Vaine feasts, and idle superfluity:

xii

All those this sences Fort assaile incessantly.

But the fift troupe most horrible of hew,
 And fierce of force, was dreadfull to report :
 For some like Snailes, some did like spyders shew,
 And some like vgly Vrchins thicke and short :
 Cruelly they assayled that fift Fort,
 Armed with darts of sensuall delight,
 With stings of carnall lust, and strong effort
 Of feeling pleasures, with which day and night Against that same fift bulwarke they continued fight.

xiii

Thus these twelue troupes with dreadfull puissance
 Against that Castle restlesse siege did lay,
 And euermore their hideous Ordinance
 Vpon the Bulwarkes cruelly did play,
 That now it gan to threaten neare decay:
 And euermore their wicked Capitaine
 Prouoked them the breaches to assay,
 Somtimes with threats, somtimes with hope of gaine,
 Which by the ransack of that peece they should attaine.

xiv

On th'other side, th'assieged Castles ward
 Their stedfast stonds did mightily maintaine,
 And many bold repulse, and many hard
 Atchieuement wrought with perill and with paine,
 That goodly frame from ruine to sustaine:
 And those two brethren Giants did defend
 The walles so stoutly with their sturdie maine,
 That neuer entrance any durst pretend,
 But they to direfull death their groning ghosts did send.

The noble virgin, Ladie of the place,
Was much dismayed with that dreadfull sight:
For neuer was she in so euill cace,
Till that the Prince seeing her wofull plight,
Gan her recomfort from so sad affright,
Offering his seruice, and his dearest life
For her defence, against that Carle to fight,
Which was their chiefe and th'author of that strife:
She him remerced as the Patrone of her life.

xvi

Eftsoones himselfe in glitterand armes he dight,
And his well proued weapons to him hent;
So taking courteous conge he behight,
Those gates to be vnbar'd, and forth he went.
Faire mote he thee, the prowest and most gent,
That euer brandished bright steele on hye:
Whom soone as that vnruly rablement,
With his gay Squire issuing did espy,
They reard a most outrageous dreadfull yelling cry.

xvii

And therewith all attonce at him let fly
Their fluttring arrowes, thicke as flakes of snow,
And round about him flocke impetuously,
Like a great water flood, that tomling low
From the high mountaines, threats to ouerflow
With suddein fury all the fertile plaine,
And the sad husbandmans long hope doth throw
A downe the streame, and all his vowes make vaine,
Nor bounds nor banks his headlong ruine may sustaine.

xviii

Vpon his shield their heaped hayle he bore,
And with his sword disperst the raskall flockes,
Which fled a sunder, and him fell before,
As withered leaues drop from their dried stockes,
When the wroth Western wind does reauue their locks;
And vnder neath him his courageous steed,
The fierce Spumador trode them downe like docks,
The fierce Spumador borne of heauenly seed:
Such as Laomedon of Phæbus race did breed.

xix

Which suddaine horroure and confused cry,
 When as their Captaine heard, in haste he yode,
 The cause to weet, and fault to remedy;
 Vpon a Tygre swift and fierce he rode,
 That as the winde ran vnderneath his lode,
 Whiles his long legs nigh raught vnto the ground;
 Full large he was of limbe, and shoulders brode,
 But of such subtile substance and vnsound,
 That like a ghost he seem'd, whose graue-clothes were vnbound.

xx

And in his hand a bended bow was seene,
 And many arrowes vnder his right side,
 All deadly daungerous, all cruell keene,
 Headed with flint, and feathers bloudie dide,
 Such as the Indians in their quiuers hide;
 Those could he well direct and streight as line,
 And bid them strike the marke, which he had eyde,
 Ne was their salue, ne was their medicine,
 That mote recure their wounds: so inly they did tine.

xxi

As pale and wan as ashes was his looke,
 His bodie leane and meagre as a rake,
 And skin all withered like a dryed rooke,
 Thereto as cold and drery as a Snake,
 That seem'd to tremble euermore, and quake:
 All in a canuas thin he was bedight,
 And girded with a belt of twisted brake,
 Vpon his head he wore an Helmet light,
 Made of a dead mans skull, that seem'd a ghastly sight.

xxii

Maleger was his name, and after him,
 There follow'd fast at hand two wicked Hags,
 With hoarie lockes all loose, and visage grim;
 Their feet vnshod, their bodies wrapt in rags,
 And both as swift on foot, as chased Stags;
 And yet the one her other legge had lame,
 Which with a staffe, all full of litle snags
 She did support, and Impotence her name:
 But th'other was Impatience, arm'd with raging flame.

xxiii

Soone as the Carle from farre the Prince espyde, Glistring in armes and warlike ornament,
 His Beast he felly prickt on either syde,
 And his mischieuous bow full readie bent,
 With which at him a cruell shaft he sent:
 But he was warie, and it warded well
 Vpon his shield, that it no further went,
 But to the ground the idle quarrell fell:
 Then he another and another did expell.

Which to preuent, the Prince his mortall speare
 Soone to him raught, and fierce at him did ride,
 To be auenged of that shot whyleare:
 But he was not so hardie to abide
 That bitter stownd, but turning quicke aside
 His light-foot beast, fled fast away for feare:
 Whom to pursue, the Infant after hide,
 So fast as his good Courser could him beare,
 But labour lost it was, to weene approch him neare.

For as the winged wind his Tigre fled,
 That vew of eye could scarce him ouertake,
 Ne scarce his feet on ground were seene to tred;
 Through hils and dales he speedie way did make,
 Ne hedge ne ditch his readie passage brake,
 And in his flight the villein turn'd his face,
 (As wonts the Tartar by the Caspian lake,
 When as the Russian him in fight does chace)
 Vnto his Tygres taile, and shot at him apace.

Apace he shot, and yet he fled apace,
 Still as the greedy knight nigh to him drew,
 And oftentimes he would relent his pace,
 That him his foe more fiercely should pursew:
 Who when his vncouth manner he did vew,
 He gan auize to follow him no more,
 But keepe his standing, and his shaftes eschew,
 Vntill he quite had spent his perlous store,
 And then assayle him fresh, ere he could shift for more.

But that lame Hag, still as abroad he strew
 His wicked arrowes, gathered them againe,
 And to him brought, fresh battell to renew:
 Which he espying, cast her to restraine
 From yielding succour to that cursed Swaine,
 And her attaching, thought her hands to tye;
 But soone as him dismounted on the plaine,
 That other Hag did farre away espy
 Binding her sister, she to him ran hastily.

xxviii

And catching hold of him, as downe he lent,
 Him backward ouerthrew, and downe him stayd
 With their rude hands and griesly graplement,
 Till that the villein comming to their ayd,
 Vpon him fell, and lode vpon him layd;
 Full litle wanted, but he had him slaine,
 And of the battell balefull end had made,
 Had not his gentle Squire beheld his paine,
 And commen to his reskew, ere his bitter bane.

xxix

So greatest and most glorious thing on ground
 May often need the helpe of weaker hand;
 So feeble is mans state, and life vnsound,
 That in assurance it may neuer stand,
 Till it dissolued be from earthly band.
 Proofoe be thou Prince, the prowtest man aliue,
 And noblest borne of all in Britayne land;
 Yet thee fierce Fortune did so nearely driue,
 That had not grace thee blest, thou shouldest not suruiue.

xxx

The Squire arriuing, fiercely in his armes
 Snatcht first the one, and then the other Iade,
 His chiefest lets and authors of his harmes,
 And them perforce withheld with threatned blade,
 Least that his Lord they should behind inuade;
 The whiles the Prince prickt with reprochfull shame,
 As one awakt out of long slombring shade,
 Reuiuing thought of glorie and of fame,
 Vnited all his powres to purge himselfe from blame.

Like as a fire, the which in hollow caue
 Hath long bene vnderkept, and downe suppress,
 With murmurous disdain doth inly raue,
 And grudge, in so streight prison to be prest,
 At last breakes forth with furious vnrest,
 And striues to mount vnto his natie seat;
 All that did earst it hinder and molest,
 It now deuoures with flames and scorching heat,
 And carries into smoake with rage and horror great.

So mightily the Briton Prince him rouzd
 Out of his hold, and broke his caitiue bands,
 And as a Beare whom angry cures haue touzd,
 Hauing off-shakt them, and escapt their hands,
 Becomes more fell, and all that him withstands
 Treads downe and ouerthrowes. Now had the Carle
 Alighted from his Tigre, and his hands
 Discharged of his bow and deadly quar'le,
 To seize vpon his foe flat lying on the marle.

Which now him turnd to disauantage deare;
 For neither can he fly, nor other harme,
 But trust vnto his strength and manhood meare,
 Sith now he is farre from his monstrous swarme,
 And of his weapons did himselfe disarme.
 The knight yet wrothfull for his late disgrace,
 Fiercely aduaunst his valorous right arme,
 And him so sore smote with his yron mace,
 That groueling to the ground he fell, and fild his place.

Well weened he, that field was then his owne,
 And all his labour brought to happie end,
 When suddein vp the villein ouerthrowne,
 Out of his swowne arose, fresh to contend,
 And gan himselfe to second battell bend,
 As hurt he had not bene. Thereby there lay
 An huge great stone, which stood vpon one end,
 And had not bene remoued many a day;
 Some land-marke seem'd to be, or signe of sundry way.

The same he snatcht, and with exceeding sway
Threw at his foe, who was right well aware
To shunne the engin of his meant decay;
It booted not to thinke that throw to beare,
But ground he gaue, and lightly leapt areare:
Eft fierce returning, as a Faulcon faire
That once hath failed of her souse full neare, Remounts againe into the open aire,
And vnto better fortune doth her selfe prepaire.

xxxvi

So braue returning, with his brandisht blade,
He to the Carle himselfe againe addrest,
And strooke at him so sternely, that he made
An open passage through his riuen brest,
That halfe the steele behind his back did rest;
Which drawing backe, he looked euermore
When the hart bloud should gush out of his chest,
Or his dead corse should fall vpon the flore;
But his dead corse vpon the flore fell nathemore.

xxxvii

Ne drop of bloud appeared shed to bee,
All were the wounde so wide and wonderous,
That through his carkasse one might plainly see:
Halfe in a maze with horror hideous,
And halfe in rage, to be deluded thus,
Againe through both the sides he strooke him quight,
That made his spright to grone full piteous:
Yet nathemore forth fled his groning spright,
But freshly as at first, prepard himselfe to fight.

xxxviii

Thereat he smitten was with great affright,
And trembling terror did his hart apall,
Ne wist he, what to thinke of that same sight,
Ne what to say, ne what to doe at all;
He doubted, least it were some magicall
Illusion, that did beguile his sense,
Or wandring ghost, that wanted funerall,
Or aerie spirit vnder false pretence,
Or hellish feend raysd vp through diuelish science.

xxxix

His wonder farre exceeded reasons reach,
 That he began to doubt his dazeled sight,
 And oft of error did himselfe appeach:
 Flesh without bloud, a person without spright,
 Wounds without hurt, a bodie without might,
 That could doe harme, yet could not harmed bee,
 That could not die, yet seem'd a mortall wight,
 That was most strong in most infirmittee;
 Like did he neuer heare, like did he neuer see.

xi

A while he stood in this astonishment,
 Yet would he not for all his great dismay
 Giue ouer to effect his first intent,
 And th'vtmost meanes of victorie assay,
 Or th'vtmost issew of his owne decay.
 His owne good sword Morddure, that neuer fayld
 At need, till now, he lightly threw away,
 And his bright shield, that nought him now auayld,
 And with his naked hands him forcibly assayld.

xii

Twixt his two mightie armes him vp he snatcht,
 And crusht his carkasse so against his brest,
 That the disdainfull soule he thence dispatcht,
 And th'idle breath all vtterly exprest:
 Tho when he felt him dead, a downe he kest
 The lumpish corse vnto the senselesse grownd;
 Adowne he kest it with so puissant wrest,
 That backe againe it did aloft rebownd,
 And gaue against his mother earth a gronefull sownd.

xiii

As when Ioues harnesse-bearing Bird from hie
 Stoupes at a flying heron with proud disdaine,
 The stone-dead quarrey fals so forcible,
 That it rebounds against the lowly plaine,
 A second fall redoubling backe againe.
 Then thought the Prince all perill sure was past,
 And that he victor onely did remaine;
 No sooner thought, then that the Carle as fast
 Gan heap huge strokes on him, as ere he downe was cast.

xliii

Nigh his wits end then woxe th'amazed knight, xliiv
 And thought his labour lost and trauell vaine,
 Against this lifelesse shadow so to fight:
 Yet life he saw, and felt his mightie maine,
 That whiles he marueild still, did still him paine:
 For thy he gan some other wayes aduize,
 How to take life from that dead-liuing swaine,
 Whom still he marked freshly to arize
 From th'earth, and from her wombe new spirits to reprize.
 He then remembred well, that had bene sayd, xlv
 How th'Earth his mother was, and first him bore;
 She eke so often, as his life decayd,
 Did life with vsury to him restore,
 And rayd him vp much stronger then before,
 So soone as he vnto her wombe did fall;
 Therefore to ground he would him cast no more,
 Ne him commit to graue terrestriall,
 But beare him farre from hope of succour vsuall.
 Tho vp he caught him twixt his puissant hands, xlvi
 And hauing scruzd out of his carrion corse
 The lothfull life, now loosd from sinfull bands,
 Vpon his shoulders carried him perforce
 Aboue three furlongs, taking his full course,
 Vntill he came vnto a standing lake;
 Him thereinto he threw without remorse,
 Ne stird, till hope of life did him forsake;
 So end of that Charles dayes, and his owne paines did make.
 Which when those wicked Hags from farre did spy, xlvii
 Like two mad dogs they ran about the lands,
 And th'one of them with dreadfull yelling cry,
 Throwing away her broken chaines and bands,
 And hauing quencht her burning fier brands,
 Hedlong her selfe did cast into that lake;
 But Impotence with her owne wilfull hands,
 One of Malegers cursed darts did take,
 So riu'd her trembling hart, and wicked end did make.

Thus now alone he conquerour remaines;
 Tho comming to his Squire, that kept his steed,
 Thought to haue mounted, but his feeble vaines
 Him faild thereto, and serued no: his need,
 Through losse of blood, which from his wounds did bleed,
 That he began to faint, and life decay:
 But his good Squire him helping vp with speed,
 With stedfast hand vpon his horse did stay,
 And led him to the Castle by the beaten way.

Where many Groomes and Squiers readie were,
 To take him from his steed full tenderly,
 And eke the fairest Alma met him there
 With balme and wine and costly spicery,
 To comfort him in his infirmity;
 Eftsoones she caused him vp to be conuayd,
 And of his armes despoyled easily,
 In sumptuous bed she made him to be layd,
 And all the while his wounds were dressing, by him stayd.

Cant. XII.

Guyon, by Palmers Adurance, passing through perils great,
 Doth ouerthrow the Bower of blisse, and Acrasie defeat.

Now gins this goodly frame of Temperance
 Fairely to rise, and her adorned hed
 To pricke of highest praise forth to aduance,
 Formerly grounded, and fast setteled
 On firme foundation of true bountihed;
 And this braue knight, that for that vertue fights,
 Now comes to point of that same perilous sted,
 Where Pleasure dwelles in sensuall delights,
 Mongst thousand dangers, and ten thousand magick mights.

Two dayes now in that sea he sayled has,
Ne euer land beheld, ne liuing wight,
Ne ought saue perill, still as he did pas:
Tho when appeared the third Morrow bright,
Vpon the waues to spred her trembling light,
An hideous roaring farre away they heard,
That all their senses filled with affright,
And streight they saw the raging surges reard
Vp to the skyes, that them of drowning made affeard.

Said then the Boteman, Palmer stere aright,
And keepe an euen course; for yonder way
We needes must passe (God do vs well acquight,) iii
That is the Gulfe of Greedinesse, they say,
That deepe engorgeth all this worldes pray:
Which hauing swallowd vp excessiuely,
He soone in vomit vp againe doth lay,
And belcheth forth his superfluity,
That all the seas for feare do seeme away to fly.

On th'other side an hideous Rocke is pight, iv
Of mightie Magnes stone, whose craggie clift
Depending from on high, dreadfull to sight,
Ouer the waues his rugged armes doth lift,
And threatneth downe to throw his ragged rift
On who so commeth nigh; yet nigh it drawes
All passengers, that none from it can shift:
For whiles they fly that Gulfes deuouring iawes,
They on this rock are rent, and sunck in heiplesse wawes.

Forward they passe, and strongly he them rowes, v
Vntill they nigh vnto that Gulfe arriue,
Where streame more violent and greedy growes:
Then he with all his puissance doth striue
To strike his oares, and mightily doth driue
The hollow vessell through the threatfull waue,
Which gaping wide, to swallow them aliue,
In th'huge abysses of his engulping graue,
Doth rore at them in vaine, and with great terror raue.

They passing by, that griesly mouth did see,
 Sucking the seas into his entralles deepe,
 That seem'd more horrible then hell to bee,
 Or that darke dreadfull hole of Tartare steepe,
 Through which the damned ghosts doen often creepe
 Backe to the world, bad liuers to torment:
 But nought that falles into this direfull deepe,
 Ne that approacheth nigh the wide descent,
 May backe returne, but is condemned to be drent.

On th'other side, they saw that perilous Rocke, Threatning it selfe on them to ruinate,
 On whose sharpe clifts the ribs of vessels broke,
 And shiuered ships, which had bene wrecked late,
 Yet stuck, with carkasses exanimate
 Of such, as hauing all their subetance spent
 In wanton ioyes, and lustes intemperate,
 Did afterwards make shipwracke violent,
 Both of their life, and fame for euer fowly blent.

For thy, this hight The Rocke of vile Reproch,
 A daungerous and detestable place,
 To which nor fish nor fowle did once approach,
 But yelling Meawes, with Seagulles hoarse and bace,
 And Cormoyrants, with birds of rauinous race,
 Which still sate waiting on that wastfull clift,
 For spoyle of wretches, whose vnhappie cace,
 After lost credite and consumed thrift,
 At last them driuen hath to this despairefull drift.

The Palmer seeing them in safetie past,
 Thus said; Behold th'ensamples in our sights,
 Of lustfull luxurie and thirldesse wast:
 What now is left of miserable wights,
 Which spent their looser daies in lewd delights,
 But shame and sad reproch, here to be red,
 By these rent reliques, speaking their ill plights?
 Let all that liue, hereby be counselled,
 To shunne Rocke of Reproch, and it as death to dred.

So forth they rowed, and that Ferryman
 With his stiffe oares did brush the sea so strong,
 That the hoare waters from his frigot ran,
 And the light bubbles daunced all along,
 Whiles the salt brine out of the billowes sprong.
 At last farre off they many Islands spy,
 On euery side floting the floods emong:
 Then said the knight, Loe I the land descry,
 Therefore old Syre thy course do thereunto apply.

x

That may not be, said then the Ferryman
 Least we vnweeting hap to be fordonne:
 For those same Islands, seeming now and than,
 Are not firme lande, nor any certein wonne,
 But straggling plots, which to and fro do ronne
 In the wide waters: therefore are they hight
 The wandring Islands. Therefore doe them shonne;
 For they haue oft drawne many a wandring wight
 Into most deadly daunger and distressed plight.

xi

Yet well they seeme to him, that farre doth vew,
 Both faire and fruitfull, and the ground dispred
 With grassie Greene of delectable hew,
 And the tall trees with leaues apparelled,
 Are deckt with blossomes dyde in white and red,
 That mote the passengers thereto allure;
 But whosoeuer once hath fastened
 His foot thereon, may neuer it recure,
 But wandreth euer more vncertain and vnsure.

xii

As th'Isle of Delos whylome men report
 Amid th' Aegean sea long time did stray,
 Ne made for shipping any certaine port,
 Till that Latona traueiling that way,
 Flying from *Iuno*s wrath and hard assay,
 Of her faire twins was there deliuered,
 Which afterwards did rule the night and day;
 Thenceforth it firmly was established,
 And for Apolloes honor highly herried.

xiii

x They to him hearken, as beseemeth meete,
 And passe on forward: so their way does ly,
 That one of those same Islands, which doe fleet
 In the wide sea, they needes must passen by,
 Which seemd so sweet and pleasant to the eye,
 That it would tempt a man to touchen there:
 Vpon the banck they sitting did espy
 A daintie damzell, dressing of her heare,
 By whom a litle skippet floting did appeare.

xi She them espying, loud to them can call,
 Bidding them nigher draw vnto the shore;
 For she had cause to busie them withall;
 And therewith loudly laught: But nathemore
 Would they once turne, but kept on as afore:
 Which when she saw, she left her lockes vndight,
 And running to her boat withouten ore
 From the departing land it launched light,
 And after them did driue with all her power and might.

xii Whom ouertaking, she in merry sort
 Them gan to bord, and purpose diuersly,
 Now faining dalliance and wanton sport,
 Now throwing forth lewd words immodestly;
 Till that the Palmer gan full bitterly
 Her to rebuke, for being loose and light:
 Which not abiding, but more scornefully
 Scoffing at him, that did her iustly wite,
 She turnd her bote about, and from them rowed quite.

xiii That was the wanton Phedria, which late
 Did ferry him ouer the Idle lake:
 Whom nought regarding, they kept on their gate,
 And all her vaine allurements did forsake,
 When them the wary Boateman thus bespake;
 Here now behoueth vs well to auyse,
 And of our safetie good heede to take;
 For here before a perlous passage lyes,
 Where many Mermayds haunt, making false melodies.

But by the way, there is a great Quicksand,
 And a whirlepoole of hidden ieopardy,
 Therefore, Sir Palmer, keepe an euen hand;
 For twixt them both the narrow way doth ly.
 Scarse had he said, when hard at hand they spy
 That quicksand nigh with water couered;
 But by the checked waue they did descry
 It plaine, and by the sea discoloured:
 It called was the quicksand of Vnthriftyhed.

xviii

They passing by, a goodly Ship did see,
 Laden from far with precious merchandize,
 And brauely furnished, as ship might bee,
 Which through great disauenture, or mesprize,
 Her selfe had runne into that hazardize;
 Whose mariners and merchants with much toyle,
 Labour'd in vaine, to haue recur'd their prize,
 And the rich wares to saue from pitteous spoyle,
 But neither toyle nor trauell might her backe recoyle.

xix

On th'other side they see that perilous Poole,
 That called was the Whirlepoole of decay,
 In which full many had with haplesse doole
 Beene suncke, of whom no memorie did stay:
 Whose circled waters rapt with whirling sway,
 Like to a restlesse wheele, still running round,
 Did couet, as they passed by that way,
 To draw their boate within the vtmost bound
 Of his wide Labyrinth, and then to haue them dround.

xx

But th'heedfull Boateman strongly forth did stretch
 His brawnie armes, and all his body straine,
 That th'vtmost sandy breach they shortly fetch,
 Whiles the dred daunger does behind remaine.
 Suddaine they see from midst of all the Maine,
 The surging waters like a mountaine rise,
 And the great sea puft vp with proud disdaine,
 To swell aboue the measure of his guise,
 As threatning to deuoure all, that his powre despise.

Most vgly shapes, and horrible aspects,
 Such as Dame Nature selfe mote feare to see,
 Or shame, that euer should so fowle defects

 All dreadfull pourtraicts of deformitee:
 Spring-headed Hydraes, and sea-shouldring Whales,
 Great whirlpooles, which all fishes make to flee,
 Bright Scolopendraes, arm'd with siluer scales,
 Mighly Monoceroses, with immeasured tayles.

 The griesly Wasserman, that makes his game
 The flying ships with swiftnesse to pursew,
 The horrible Sea-satyre, that doth shew
 His fearefull face in time of greatest storme,
 Huge Ziffius, whom Mariners eschew
 No lesse, then rockes, (as trauellers informe,)
 And greedy Rosmarines with visages deforme.

All these, and thousand thousands many more,
 And more deformed Monsters thousand fold,
 With dreadfull noise, and hollow rombling rore,
 Came rushing in the fomy waues enrold,
 Which seem'd to fly for feare, them to behold:
 Ne wonder, if these did the knight appall;
 For all that here on earth we dreadfull hold,
 Be but as bugs to fearen babes withall,
 Compared to the creatures in the seas entrall.

Feare nought, (then said the Palmer well auiz'd;) xxvi
 For these same Monsters are not these in deed,
 But are into these fearefull shapes disguiz'd
 By that same wicked witch, to worke vs dreed,
 And draw from on this iourney to proceede.
 Tho lifting vp his vertuous staffe on hye,
 He smote the sea, which calmed was with speed,
 And all that dreadfull Armie fast gan flye
 Into great Tethys bosome, where they hidden lye.

Quit from that daunger, forth their course they kept, xxvii
 And as they went, they heard a ruefull cry
 Of one, that wayld and pittifully wept,
 Tnat through the sea the resounding plaints did fly:
 At last they in an Island did espy
 A seemely Maiden, sitting by the shore,
 That with great sorrow and sad agony,
 Seemed some great misfortune to deplore,
 And lowd to them for succour called euermore.

Which Guyon hearing, streight his Palmer bad, xxviii
 To stere the boate towards that dolefull Mayd,
 That he might know, and ease her sorrow sad:
 Who him auizing better, to him sayd;
 Faire Sir, be not displeasd, if disobayd:
 For ill it were to hearken to her cry;
 For she is inly nothing ill apayd,
 But onely womanish fine forgery,
 Your stubborne hart t'affect with fraile infirmity.

To which when she your courage hath inclind xxix
 Through foolish pittty, then her guilefull bayt
 She will embosome deeper in your mind,
 And for your ruine at the last awayt.
 The knight was ruled, and the Boateman strayt
 Held on his course with stayed stedfastnesse,
 Ne euer shruncke, ne euer sought to bayt
 His tyred armes for toylesome wearinesse,
 But with his oares did sweepe the watry wildernesse.

And now they nigh approched to the sted,
 Where as those Mermayds dwelt: it was a still
 And calmy bay, on th'one side sheltered
 With the brode shadow of an hoarie hill,
 On th'other side an high rocke toured still,
 That twixt them both a pleasaunt port they made,
 And did like an halfe Theatre fulfill:
 There those fise sisters had continuall trade,
 And vsd to bath themselues in that deceitfull shade.

They were faire Ladies, till they fondly striu'd
 With th'Heliconian maides for maistry;
 Of whom they ouer-comen, were depriu'd
 Of their proud beautie, and th'one moyity
 Transform'd to fish, for their bold surquedry,
 But th'vpper halfe their hew retained still,
 And their sweet skill in wonted melody;
 Which euer after they abusd to ill,
 T'allure weake trauellers, whom gotten they did kill.

So now to Guyon, as he passed by,
 Their pleasaunt tunes they sweetly thus applide;
 O thou faire sonne of gentle Faery,
 That art in mighty armes most magnifide
 Aboue all knights, that euer battell tride,
 O turne thy rudder hither-ward a while:
 Here may thy storme-bet vessell safely ride;
 This is the Port of rest from troublous toyle,
 The worlds sweet In, from paine and wearisome turmoyle.

With that the rolling sea resounding soft,
 In his big base them fitly answered,
 And on the rocke the waues breaking aloft,
 A solemne Meane vnto them measured,
 The whiles sweet Zephirus lowd whistled
 His treble, a straunge kinde of harmony;
 Which Guyons senses softly tickled,
 That he the boateman bad row easily,
 And let him heare some part of their rare melody.

But him the Palmer from that vanity,
 With temperate aduice discoursell'd,
 That they it past, and shortly gan descry
 The land, to which their course they leueled;
 When suddainly a grosse fog ouer spred
 With his dull vapour all that desert has,
 And heauens chearefull face enuveloped,
 That all things one, and one as nothing was,
 And this great Vniuerse seemd one confused mas.

Thereat they greatly were dismayd, ne wist
 How to direct their way in darkenesse wide,
 But feard to wander in that wastfull mist,
 For tombling into mischiefe vnespide.
 Worse is the daunger hidden, then describe.
 Suddainly an innumerable flight
 Of harmefull fowles about them fluttering, cride,
 And with their wicked wings them oft did smight,
 And sore annoyed, groping in that griesly night.

xxxv

Euen all the nation of vnfortunate
 And fatall birds about them flocked were,
 Such as by nature men abhorre and hate,
 The ill-faste Owle, deaths dreadfull messengere,
 The hoars Night-rauen, trump of dolefull drere,
 The lether-winged Bat, dayes enemy,
 The ruefull Strich, still waiting on the bere,
 The Whistler shrill, that who so heares, doth dy,
 The hellish Harpies, prophets of sad destiny.

xxxvi

All those, and all that else does horroure breed,
 About them flew, and fild their sayles with feare:
 Yet stayd they not, but forward did proceed,
 Whiles th'one did row, and th'other stifly steare;
 Till that at last the weather gan to cleare,
 And the faire land it selfe did plainly show.
 Said then the Palmer, Lo where does appeare
 The sacred soile, where all our perils grow;
 Therefore, Sir knight, your ready armes about you throw.

xxxvii

He hearkned, and his armes about him tooke,
 The whiles the nimble boate so well her sped,
 That with her crooked keele the land she strooke,
 Then forth the noble Guyon sallied,
 And his sage Palmer, that him gouerned;
 But th'other by his boate behind did stay.
 They marched fairly forth, of nought ydred,
 Both firmly armd for euery hard assay,
 With constancy and care, gainst daunger and dismay.

Ere long they heard an hideous bellowing
 Of many beasts, that roard outrageously,
 As if that hungers point, or Venus sting
 Had them enraged with fell surquedry;
 Yet nought they feard, but past on hardily,
 Vntill they came in vew of those wild beasts:
 Who all attonce, gaping full greedily,
 And rearing fiercely their vpstarting crests,
 Ran towards, to deuoure those vnexpected guests.

But soone as they approcht with deadly threat,
 The Palmer ouer them his staffe vpheld,
 His mighty staffe, that could all charmes defeat:
 Eftsoones their stubborne courages were queld,
 And high aduaunced crests downe meekely feld,
 In stead of fraying, they them selues did feare,
 And trembled, as them passing they beheld:
 Such wondrous powre did in that staffe appeare,
 All monsters to subdew to him, that did it beare.

Of that same wood it fram'd was cunningly,
 Of which Caduceus whilome was made,
Caduceus the rod of Mercury,
 With which he wonts the Stygian realmes inuade,
 Through ghastly horror, and eternall shade;
 Th' infernall feends with it he can asswage,
 And Orcus tame, whom nothing can perswade,
 And rule the Furies, when they most do rage:
 Such vertue in his staffe had eke this Palmer sage.

Thence passing forth, they shortly do arriue,
 Whereas the Bowre of Blisse was situate;
 A place pickt out by choice of best aliue,
 That natures worke by art can imitate:
 In which what euer in this worldly state
 Is sweet, and pleasing vnto liuing sense,
 Or that may dayntiest fantasie aggrate,
 Was poured forth with plentifull dispence,
 And made there to abound with lauish affluence.

xiii

Goodly it was enclosed round about,
 Aswell their entred guesstes to keepe within,
 As those vnruely beasts to hold without;
 Yet was the fence thereof but weake and thin;
 Nought feard their force, that fortilage to win,
 But wisdomes powre, and temperaunces might,
 By which the mightiest things efforced bin:
 And eke the gate was wrought of substaunce light,
 Rather for pleasure, then for battery or fight.

xiii

Yt framed was of precious yuory,
 That seemd a worke of admirable wit;
 And therein all the famous history
 Of Iason and Medea was ywrit;
 Her mighty charmes, her furious louing fit,
 His goodly conquest of the golden fleece,
 His falsed faith, and loue too lightly flit,
 The wondred Argo, which in venturous peece
 First through the Euxine seas bore all the flowr of Greece.

xlii

Ye might haue seene the frothy billowes fry

 Or yuory into the waues were sent;
 And other where the snowy substaunce sprent
 With vermell, like the boyes bloud therein shed,

All this, and more might in that goodly gate
 Be red; that euer open stood to all,
 Which thither came: but in the Porch there sate
 A comely personage of stature tall,
 And semblaunce pleasing, more then naturall,

 Did wisely make, and good Agdistes call:
 But this same was to that quite contrary,
 The foe of life, that good enuyes to all,
 That secretly doth vs procure to fall,
 Through guilefull semblaunts, which he makes vs see.
 He of this Gardin had the gouernall,
 And Pleasures porter was deuizd to bee,
 Holding a staffe in hand for more formaltee.

With diuerse flowres he daintily was deckt,
 And strowed round about, and by his side
 A mighty Mazer bowle of wine was set,
 As if it had to him bene sacrifice;
 Wherewith all new-come guests he gratifide:
 So did he eke Sir Guyon passing by:
 But he his idle curtesie defide,
 And ouerthrew his bowle disdainfully;
 And broke his staffe, with which he charmed semblants sly.

xliv

Thus being entred, they behold around
 A large and spacious plaine, on euery side
 Strowed with pleasauns, whose faire grassy ground
 Mantled with greene, and goodly beautifide
 With all the ornaments of Floraes pride,
 Wherewith her mother Art, as halfe in scorne
 Of niggard Nature, like a pompous bride
 Did decke her, and too lauishly adorne,
 When forth from virgin bowre she comes in th'early morne.

Thereto the Heauens alwayes louiall,
 Lookt on them louely, still in stedfast state,
 Ne suffred storme nor frost on them to fall,
 Their tender buds or leaues to violate,
 Nor scorching heat, nor cold intemperate
 T'afflict the creatures, which therein did dwell,
 But the milde aire with season moderate
 Gently attemptred, and disposd so well,
 That still it breathed forth sweet spirit and wholesome smell.

More sweet and wholesome, then the pleasaunt hill
 Of Rhodope, on which the Nimphe, that bore
 A gyaunt babe, her selfe for grieve did kill;
 Or the Thessalian Tempe, where of yore
 Faire Daphne Phæbus hart with loue did gore;
 Or Iaa, where the Gods lou'd to repaire,
 When euer they their heauenly bowres forlore;
 Or sweet Parnasse, the haunt of Muses faire;
 Or Eden selfe, if ought with Eden mote compaire.

Much wondred Guyon at the faire aspect
 Of that sweet place, yet suffred no delight
 To sincke into his sence, nor mind affect,
 But passed forth, and lookt still forward right, Bridling his will, and maistering his might:
 Till that he came vnto another gate;
 No gate, but like one, being goodly dight
 With boughes and braunches, which did broad dilate
 Their clasping armes, in wanton wreathings intricate.

li 1 Therewith 1590 lii 9 Of Eden, if ought 1596: Or Eden, if that ought 1609

So fashioned a Porch with rare deuice,
 Archt ouer head with an embracing vine,
 Whose bounches hanging downe, seemed to entice
 All passers by, to tast their lushious wine,
 And did themselues into their hands incline,
 As freely offering to be gathered :
 Some deepe empurpled as the Hyacint,
 Some as the Rubine, laughing sweetly red,
 Some like faire Emeraudes, not yet well ripened.

lv

And them amongst, some were of burnisht gold,
 So made by art, to beautifie the rest,
 Which did themselues emongst the leaues enfold,
 As lurking from the vew of couetous guest,
 That the weake bowes, with so rich load opprest,
 Did bow adowne, as ouer-burdened.
 Vnder that Porch a comely dame did rest,
 Clad in faire weedes, but fowle disordered,
 And garments loose, that seemd vnmeet for womanhed.

lv

In her left hand a Cup of gold she held,
 And with her right the riper fruit did reach,
 Whose sappy liquor, that with fulnesse sweld,
 Into her cup she scruzd, with daintie breach
 Of her fine fingers, without fowle empeach,
 That so faire wine-presse made the wine more sweet :
 Thereof she vsd to giue to drinke to each,
 Whom passing by she happened to meet :
 It was her guise, all Straungers goodly so to greet.

lvi

So she to Guyon offred it to tast ;
 Who taking it out of her tender hond,
 The cup to ground did violently cast,
 That all in peeces it was broken fond,
 And with the liquor stained all the lond :
 Whereat Excesse exceedingly was wroth,
 Yet no'te the same amend, ne yet withstond,
 But suffered him to passe, all were she loth ;
 Who nought regarding her displeasure forward goth.

lvii

There the most daintie Paradise on ground,
 It selfe doth offer to his sober eye,
 In which all pleasures plenteously abound,
 And none does others happinesse enuye:
 The painted flowres, the trees vps shooting hye,
 The dales for shade, the hilles for breathing space,
 The trembling groues, the Christall running by;
 And that, which all faire workes doth most aggrace,
 The art, which all that wrought, appeared in no place.

lviii

One would haue thought, (so cunningly, the rude,
 And scorned parts were mingled with the fine,)
 That nature had for wantonnesse ensude
 Art, and that Art at nature did repine;
 So striuing each th'other to vndermine,
 Each did the others worke more beautifie;
 So differing both in willes, agreed in fine:
 So all agreed through sweete diuersitie,
 This Gardin to adorne with all varietie.

lix

And in the midst of all, a fountaine stood,
 Of richest substaunce, that on earth might bee,
 So pure and shiny, that the siluer flood
 Through euery channell running one might see;
 Most goodly it with curious imageree
 Was ouer-wrought, and shapes of naked boyes,
 Of which some seemd with liuely iollitee,
 To fly about, playing their wanton toyes,
 Whilest others did them selues embay in liquid ioyes.

lx

And ouer all, of purest gold was spred,
 A trayle of yuie in his natiue hew:
 For the rich mettall was so coloured,
 That wight, who did not well auis'd it vew,
 Would surely deeme it to be yuie trew:
 Low his lasciuious armes adown did creepe,
 That themselues dipping in the siluer dew,
 Their fleecy flowres they tenderly did steepe,
 Which drops of Christall seemd for wantones to weepe.

Infinit streames continually did well
 Out of this fountaine, sweet and faire to see,
 The which into an ample lauer fell,
 And shortly grew to so great quantitie,
 That like a little lake it seemd to bee;
 Whose depth exceeded not three cubits hight,
 That through the waues one might the bottom see,
 All pau'd beneath with Iaspar shining bright,
 That seemd the fountaine in that sea did sayle vpriight.

And all the margent round about was set,
 With shady Laurell trees, thence to defend
 The sunny beames, which on the billowes bet,
 And those which therein bathed, mote offend.
 As Guyon hapned by the same to wend,
 Two naked Damzelles he therein espyde,
 Which therein bathing, seemed to contend,
 And wrestle wantonly, ne car'd to hyde,
 Their dainty parts from vew of any, which them eyde.

Sometimes the one would lift the other quight
 About the waters, and then downe againe
 Her plong, as ouer maistered by might,
 Where both awhile would couered remaine,
 And each the other from to rise restraine;
 The whiles their snowy limbes, as through a vele,
 So through the Christall waues appeared plaine:
 Then suddainly both would themselues vnhele,
 And th'amarous sweet spoiles to greedy eyes reuele.

As that faire Starre, the messenger of mor
 His dewy face out of the sea doth reare:
 Or as the Cyprian goddessse, newly borne
 Of th'Oceans fruitfull froth, did first appeare:
 Such seemed they, and so their yellow heare
 Christalline humour dropped downe apace.
 Whom such when Guyon saw, he drew him neare,
 And somewhat gan relent his earnest pace,
 His stubborne brest gan secret pleasaunce to embrace.

The wanton Maidens him espying, stood
 Gazing a while at his vnwonted guise;
 Then th'one her selfe low ducked in the flood,
 Abasht, that her a straunger did a vise:
 But th'other rather higher did arise,
 And her two lilly paps aloft displayd,
 And all, that might his melting hart entise
 To her delights, she vnto him bewrayd:
 The rest hid vnderneath, him more desirous made.

lxvi

With that, the other likewise vp arose,
 And her faire lockes, which formerly were bownd
 Vp in one knot, she low adowne did lose:
 Which flowing long and thick, her cloth'd arownd,
 And th'yuorie in golden mantle gownd:
 So that faire spectacle from him was reft,
 Yet that, which reft it, no lesse faire was fownd:
 So hid in lockes and waues from lookers theft,
 Nought but her louely face she for his looking left.

lxvii

Withall she laughed, and she blusht withall,
 That blushing to her laughter gaue more grace,
 And laughter to her blushing, as did fall:
 Now when they spide the knight to slacke his pace,
 Them to behold, and in his sparkling face
 The secret signes of kindled lust appeare,
 Their wanton meriments they did encrease,
 And to him beckned, to approach more neare,
 And shewd him many sights, that courage cold could reare.

lxviii

On which when gazing him the Palmer saw,
 He much rebukt those wandring eyes of his,
 And counseld well, him forward thence did draw.
 Now are they come nigh to the Bowre of blis
 Of her fond fauorites so nam'd amis:
 When thus the Palmer; Now Sir, well auise;
 For here the end of all our trauell is:
 Here wonnes Acrasia, whom we must surprise,
 Else she will slip away, and all our drift despise.

lxix

lxvi
 Eftsoones they heard a most melodious sound,
 Of all that mote delight a daintie eare,
 Such as attonce might not on liuing ground,
 Saue in this Paradise, be heard elsewhere:
 Right hard it was, for wight, which did it heare,
 To read, what manner musicke that mote bee:
 For all that pleasing is to liuing eare,
 Was there consorted in one harmonie,
 Birdes, voyces, instruments, windes, waters, all agree.

lxx

lxvii
 The ioyous birdes shrouded in chearefull shade,
 Their notes vnto the voyce attempted sweet;
 Th'Angelicall soft trembling voyces made
 To th'instruments diuine response meet:
 The siluer sounding instruments did meet
 With the base murmure of the waters fall:
 The waters fall with difference discreet,
 Now soft, now loud, vnto the wind did call:
 The gentle warbling wind low answered to all.

lxxi

lxviii
 There, whence that Musick seemed heard to bee,
 Was the faire Witch her selfe now solacing,
 With a new Louer, whom through sorcerie
 And witchcraft, she from farre did thither bring:
 There she had him now layd a slombering,
 In secret shade, after long wanton ioyes:
 Whilst round about them pleasauntly did sing
 Many faire Ladies, and lasciuious boyes,
 That euer mixt their song with light licentious toyes.

lxxii

lxix
 And all that while, right ouer him she hong,
 With her false eyes fast fixed in his sight,
 As seeking medicine, whence she was stong,
 Or greedily depasturing delight:
 And oft inclining downe with kisses light,
 For feare of waking him, his lips bedewd,
 And through his humid eyes did sucke his spright,
 Quite molten into lust and pleasure lewd;
 Wherewith she sighed soft, as if his case she rewd.

lxxiii

lxxiii i that] the 1609

The whiles some one did chaunt this louely lay;
 Ah see, who so faire thing doest faine to see,
 In springing flowre the image of thy day;
 Ah see the Virgin Rose, how sweetly shee
 Doth first peepe forth with bashfull modestee,
 That fairer seemes, the lesse ye see her may;
 Lo see soone after, how more bold and free
 Her bared bosome she doth broad display;
 Loe see soone after, how she fades, and falles away.

lxxiv

So passeth, in the passing of a day,
 Of mortall life the leafe, the bud, the flowre,
 Ne more doth flourish after first decay,
 That earst was sought to decke both bed and bowre,
 Of many a Ladie, and many a Paramowre:
 Gather therefore the Rose, whilst yet is prime,
 For soone comes age, that will her pride deflowre:
 Gather the Rose of loue, whilst yet is time,
 Whilst louing thou mayst loued be with equall crime.

lxxv

He ceast, and then gan all the quire of birdes
 Their diuerse notes t'attune vnto his lay,
 As in approuance of his pleasing words.
 The constant paire heard all, that he did say,
 Yet swarued not, but kept their forward way,
 Through many couert groues, and thickets close,
 In which they creeping did at last display
 That wanton Ladie, with her louer lose,
 Whose sleepe head she in her lap did soft dispose.

lxxvi

Vpon a bed of Roses she was layd,
 As faint through heat, or dight to pleasant sin,
 And was arayd, or rather disarayd,
 All in a vele of silke and siluer thin,
 That hid no whit her alabaster skin,
 But rather shewd more white, if more might bee:
 More subtile web Arachne cannot spin,
 Nor the fine nets, which oft we wouen see
 Of scorched dew, do not in th'aire more lightly flee.

lxxvii

Her snowy brest was bare to readie spoyle
 Of hungry eies, which n'ote therewith be fild,
 And yet through languour of her late sweet toyle,
 Few drops, more cleare then Nectar, forth distild,
 That like pure Orient perles adowne it trild,
 And her faire eyes sweet smyling in delight,
 Moystened their fierie beames, with which she thrild
 Fraile harts, yet quenched not; like starry light
 Which sparkling on the silent waues, does seeme more bright.

The young man sleeping by her, seemd to bee
 Some goodly swayne of honorable place,
 That certes it great pittie was to see Him his nobilitie so foule deface;
 A sweet regard, and amiable grace,
 Mixed with manly sternnesse did appeare
 Yet sleeping, in his well proportiond face,
 And on his tender lips the downy heare
 Did now but freshly spring, and silken blossomes beare.

His warlike armes, the idle instruments
 Of sleeping praise, were hong vpon a tree,
 And his braue shield, full of old monuments,
 Was fowly ra'st, that none the signes might see;
 Ne for them, ne for honour cared hee,
 Ne ought, that did to his aduancement tend,
 But in lewd loues, and wastfull luxuree,
 His dayes, his goods, his bodie he did spend:
 O horrible enchantment, that him so did blend.

The noble Elfe, and carefull Palmer drew
 So nigh them, minding nought, but lustfull game,
 That suddein forth they on them rusht, and threw
 A subtile net, which onely for the same
 The skilfull Palmer formallly did frame.
 So held them vnder fast, the whiles the rest
 Fled all away for feare of fowler shame.
 The faire Enchauntresse, so vnwares opprest, Tryde all her arts, and all her sleights, thence out to wrest.

lxxxix 4 the] that 1590

And eke her louer stroue: but all in vaine;
 For that same net so cunningly was wound,
 That neither guile, nor force might it distraine.
 They tooke them both, and both them strongly bound
 In captiue bandes, which there they readie found:
 But her in chaines of adamant he tyde;
 For nothing else might keepe her safe and sound;
 But Verdant (so he hight) he soone vntyde,
 And counsell sage in steed thereof to him applyde.

lxxxii

But all those pleasant bowres and Pallace braue, Guyon broke downe, with rigour pittillesse;
 Ne ought their goodly workmanship might saue
 Them from the tempest of his wrathfulnesse,
 But that their blisse he turn'd to balefulnesse:
 Their groues he feld, their gardins did deface,
 Their arbers spoyle, their Cabinets suppresses,
 Their banket houses burne, their buildings race,
 And of the fairest late, now made the fowlest place.

lxxxiii

Then led they her away, and eke that knight
 They with them led, both sorrowfull and sad:
 The way they came, the same retourn'd they right, Till they arriued, where they lately had Charm'd those wild-beasts, that rag'd with furie mad.
 Which now awaking, fierce at them gan fly,
 As in their mistresse reskew, whom they lad;
 But them the Palmer soone did pacify.

lxxxiv

Then Guyon askt, what meant those beastes, which there did ly.
 Said he, These seeming beastes are men indeed,
 Whom this Enchauntresse hath transformed thus,
 Whylome her louers, which her lusts did feed,
 Now turned into figures hideous,
 According to their mindes like monstrous.
 Sad end (quoth he) of life intemperate,
 And mournfull meed of ioyes delicious:
 But Palmer, if it mote thee so aggrate,
 Let them returned be vnto their former state.

lxxxv

Streight way he with his vertuous staffe them strooke, lxxxvi

And streight of beasts they comely men became ;

Yet being men they did vnmanly looke,

And stared ghastly, some for inward shame,

And some for wrath, to see their captiue Dame :

But one aboute the rest in speciall,

That had an hog beene late, hight Grille by name,

Repined greatly, and did him miscall,

That had from hoggish forme him brought to naturall.

Said Guyon, See the mind of beastly man, lxxxvii

That hath so soone forgot the excellence

Of his creation, when he life began,

That now he chooseth, with vile difference,

To be a beast, and lacke intelligence.

To whom the Palmer thus, The donghill kind

Delights in filth and foule incontinence :

Let Grill be Grill, and haue his hoggish mind,

But let vs hence depart, whilest wether serues and wind.

THE LEGEND OF BRITOMARTIS.
OR
Of Chastitie.

IT falls me here to write of Chastity,
That fairest vertue, farre aboue the rest;
For which what needs me fetch from Faery
Forreine ensamples, it to haue exprest?
Sith it is shrined in my Soueraines brest,
And form'd so liuely in each perfect part,
That to all Ladies, which haue it profest,
Need but behold the pourtraict of her hart,
If pourtrayd it might be by any liuing art.
But liuing art may not least part expresse,
Nor life-resembling pencill it can paint,
All were it Zeuxis or Praxiteles:
His dædale hand would faile, and greatly faint,
And her perfections with his error taint:
Ne Poets wit, that passeth Painter farre
In picturing the parts of beautie daint,
So hard a workmanship aduenture darre,
For fear through want of words her excellence to marre.

Proem i 2 That The 1590

How then shall I, Apprentice of the skill,
 That whylome in diuine wits did raine,
 Presume so high to stretch mine humble quill?
 Yet now my lucklesse lot doth me constraine
 Hereto perforce. But O dred Soueraine
 Thus farre forth pardon, sith that choicest wit
 Cannot your glorious pourtraict figure plaine
 That I in colourd shewes may shadow it,
 And antique praises vnto present persons fit.

But if in liuing colours, and right hew,
 Your selfe you couet to see pictured,
 Who can it doe more liuely, or more trew,
 Then that sweet verse, with Nectar sprinckeled,
 In which a gracious seruant pictured
 His Cynthia, his heauens fairest light?
 That with his melting sweetnesse rauished,
 And with the wonder of her beames bright,
 My senses lulled are in slomber of delight.

But let that same delitious Poet lend
 A little leaue vnto a rusticke Muse
 To sing his mistresse prayse, and let him mend,
 If ought amis her liking may abuse:
 Ne let his fairest Cynthia refuse,
 In mirrours more then one her selfe to see,
 But either Gloriana let her chuse,
 Or in Belphebe fashioned to bee:
 In th'one her rule, in th'other her rare chastitee.

iv 2 Thy selfe thou 1590

Cant. I.

Guyon encountreth Britomart, faire Florimell is chased:
Ducasses traines and Malecastaes champions are defaced.

THe famous Briton Prince and Faerie knight,
After long wayes and perillous paines endured,
Hauing their wearie limbes to perfect plight
Restord, and sory wounds right well recured,
Of the faire Alma greatly were procured,
To make there lenger sojourne and abode;
But when thereto they might not be allured,
From seeking praise, and deeds of armes abroad,
They courteous conge tooke, and forth together yode.

But the captiu'd Acrasia he sent,
Because of trauell long, a nigher way,
With a strong gard, all reskew to preuent,
And her to Faerie court safe to conuay,
That her for witnesse of his hard assay,
Vnto his Faerie Queene he might present:
But he him selfe betooke another way,
To make more triall of his hardiment,
And seeke aduentures, as he with Prince Arthur went.

Long so they trauelled through wastefull wayes,
Where daungers dwelt, and perils most did wonne,
To hunt for glorie and renowned praise;
Full many Countries they did ouerronne,
From the vprising to the setting Sunne,
And many hard aduentures did atchieue;
Of all the which they honour euer wonne,
Seeking the weake oppressed to relieue,
And to recouer right for such, as wrong did grieve.

Arg. 3 Malecastaes] Materastnes 1590 &c.: corr. F. E.

At last as through an open plaine they yode,
 They spide a knight, that towards pricked faire,
 And him beside an aged Squire there rode,
 That seem'd to couch vnder his shield three-square,
 As if that age bad him that burden spare,
 And yield it those, that stouter could it wield:
 He them espying, gan himselfe prepare,
 And on his arme addresse his goodly shield
 That bore a Lion passant in a golden field.

Which seeing good Sir Guyon, deare besought
 The Prince of grace, to let him runne that turne.
 He graunted: then the Faery quickly raught
 His poinant speare, and sharpely gan to spurne
 His fomy steed, whose fierie feete did burne
 The verdant grasse, as he thereon did tread;
 Ne did the other backe his foot returne,
 But fiercely forward came withouten dread,
 And bent his dreadfull speare against the others head.

They bene ymet, and both their points arriued,
 But Guyon droue so furious and fell,
 That seem'd both shield and plate it would haue riued;
 Nathelesse it bore his foe not from his sell,
 But made him stagger, as he were not well:
 But Guyon selfe, ere well he was aware,
 Nigh a speares length behind his crouper fell,
 Yet in his fall so well him selfe he bare,
 That mischieuous mischance his life and limbes did spare.

Great shame and sorrow of that fall he tooke;
 For neuer yet, sith warlike armes he bore,
 And shiuering speare in bloudie field first shooke,
 He found himselfe dishonored so sore.
 Ah gentlest knight, that euer armour bore,
 Let not thee grieue dismounted to haue beene,
 And brought to ground, that neuer wast before;
 For not thy fault, but secret powre vnseene,
 That speare enchanted was, which layd thee on the greene.

But weenedst thou what wight thee ouerthrew,
Much greater griefe and shamefuller regret
For thy hard fortune then thou wouldst renew,
That of a single damzell thou wert met
On equall plaine, and there so hard beset; Euen the famous Britomart it was,
Whom straunge aduenture did from Britaine fet,
To seeke her loue (loue farre sought alas,)
Whose image she had scene in Venus looking glas.

Full of disdainfull wrath, he fierce vprose,
For to reuenge that foule reprochfull shame,
And snatching his bright sword began to close
With her on foot, and stoutly forward came;
Die rather would he, then endure that same.
Which when his Palmer saw, he gan to feare
His toward perill and vntoward blame,
Which by that new rencounter he should reare:
For death sate on the point of that enchaunted speare.

And hasting towards him gan faire perswade,
Not to prouoke misfortune, nor to weene
His speares default to mend with cruell blade;
For by his mightie Science he had scene
The secret vertue of that weapon keene,
That mortall puissance mote not withstond:
Nothing on earth mote alwaies happie beene.
Great hazard were it, and aduenture fond,
To loose long gotten honour with one euill hond.

By such good meanes he him discourselled,
From prosecuting his reuenging rage;
And eke the Prince like treaty handeled,
His wrathfull will with reason to asswage,
And laid the blame, not to his carriage,
But to his starting steed, that swaru'd asyde,
And to the ill purueyance of his page,
That had his furnitures not firmly tyde:
So is his angry courage fairely pacifyde.

Thus reconcilment was betweene them knit,
 Through goodly temperance, and affection chaste,
 And either vowd with all their power and wit,
 To let not others honour be defaste,
 Of friend or foe, who euer it embaste,
 Ne armes to beare against the others syde:
 In which accord the Prince was also plaste,
 And with that golden chaine of concord tyde.
 So goodly all agreed, they forth yfere did ryde.

O goodly vsage of those antique times,
 In which the sword was seruant vnto right;
 When not for malice and contentious crimes,
 But all for praise, and prooffe of manly might,
 The martiall brood accustomed to fight:
 Then honour was the meed of victorie,
 And yet the vanquished had no despight:
 Let later age that noble vse enuie,
 Vile rancour to auoid, and cruell surquedrie.

Long they thus trauelled in friendly wise,
 Through countries waste, and eke well edifyde,
 Seeking aduentures hard, to exercise
 Their puissance, whylome full dernely tryde:
 At length they came into a forrest wyde,
 Whose hideous horror and sad trembling sound
 Full griesly seem'd: Therein they long did ryde,
 Yet tract of liuing creatures none they found,
 Saue Beares, Lions, and Buls, which romed them around.

All suddenly out of the thickest brush,
 Vpon a milk-white Palfrey all alone,
 A goodly Ladie did foreby them rush,
 Whose face did seeme as cleare as Christall stone,
 And eke through feare as white as whales bone:
 Her garments all were wrought of beaten gold,
 And all her steed with tinsell trappings shone,
 Which fled so fast, that nothing mote him hold,
 And scarce them leasure gaue, her passing to behold.

MICROCOPY RESOLUTION TEST CHART

(ANSI and ISO TEST CHART No. 2)

Still as she fled, her eye she backward threw,
 As fearing euill, that pursewd her fast;
 And her faire yellow locks behind her flew,
 Loosely disperst with puffe of euery blast:
 All as a blazing starre doth farre outcast
 His hearie beames, and flaming lockes dispreed,
 At sight whereof the people stand aghast:
 But the sage wisard telles, as he has red,
 That it importunes death and dolefull drieried.

xvi

So as they gazed after her a while,
 Lo where a griesly Foster forth did rush,
 Breathing out beastly lust her to defile:
 His tyreling iade he fiercely forth did push,
 Through thicke and thin, both ouer banke and bush
 In hope her to attaine by hooke or crooke,
 That from his gorie sides the bloud did gush:
 Large were his limbes, and terrible his looke,
 And in his clownish hand a sharp bore speare he shooke.

xvii

Which outrage when those gentle knights did see,
 Full of great enuie and fell gealosy,
 They stayd not to auise, who first should bee,
 But all spurd after fast, as they mote fly,
 To reskew her from shamefull villany.
 The Prince and Guyon equally byliue
 Her selfe pursewd, in hope to win thereby
 Most goodly meede, the fairest Dame aliue:
 But after the foule foster Timias did striue.

xviii

The whiles faire Britomart, whose constant mind,
 Would not so lightly follow Beauties chace,
 Ne reckt of Ladies Loue, did stay behind,
 And them awayted there a certaine space,
 To weet if they would turne backe to that place:
 But when she saw them gone, she forward went,
 As lay her iourney, through that perlous Pace,
 With stedfast courage and stout hardiment;
 Ne euill thing she fear'd, ne euill thing she ment.

xix

xvi

At last as nigh out of the wood she came,
A stately Castle farre away she spyde,
To which her steps directly she did frame.
That Castle was most goodly edifyde,
And plaste for pleasure nigh that forrest syde:
But faire before the gate a spacious plaine,
Mantled with greene, it selfe did spredden wyde,
On which she saw sixe knights, that did darraigne
Fierce battell against one, with cruell might and maine.

xvii

Mainly they all attonce vpon him laid,
And sore beset on euery side around,
That nigh he breathlesse grew, yet nought dismaid,
Ne euer to them yielded foot of ground
All had he lost much bloud through many a wound,
But stoutly dealt his blowes, and euery way
To which he turned in his wrathfull stound,
Made them recoile, and fly from dred decay,
That none of all the sixe before, him durst assay.

ke.

xviii

Like dastard Cures, that hauing at a bay
The saluage beast embost in wearie chace,
Dare not aduenture on the stubborne pray,
Ne byte before, but rome from place to place,
To get a snatch, when turned is his face.
In such distresse and doubtfull ieopardy,
When Britomart him saw, she ran a pace
Vnto his reskew, and with earnest cry,
Bad those same sixe forbear that single enemy.

xix

But to her cry they list not lenden eare,
Ne ought the more their mightie strokes surceasse,
But gathering him round about more neare,
Their direfull rancour rather did encrease;
Till that she rushing through the thickest preasse,
Perforce disparted their compacted gyre,
And soone compeld to hearken vnto peace:
Tho gan she myldly of them to inquire
The cause of their dissention and outrageous yre.

xx

xxiii

Whereto that single knight did answere frame;
 These sixe would me enforce by oddes of might,
 To chaunge my lief, and loue another Dame,
 That death me liefer were, then such despight,
 So vnto wrong to yield my wrested right:
 For I loue one, the truest one on ground,
 Ne list me chaunge; she th' Errant Damzell hight,
 For whose deare sake full many a bitter stownd,
 I haue endur'd, and tasted many a bloody wound.

xxiv

Certes (said she) then bene ye sixe to blame,
 To weene your wrong by force to iustifie:
 For knight to leaue his Ladie were great shame,
 That faithfull is, and better were to die.
 All losse is lesse, and lesse the infamie,
 Then losse of loue to him, that lones but one;
 Ne may loue be compeld by maisterie;
 For soone as maisterie comes, sweet loue alone
 Taketh his nimble wings, and soone away is gone.

xxv

Then spake one of those sixe, There dwelleth here
 Within this castle wall a Ladie faire,
 Whose soueraine beautie hath no liuing pere,
 Thereto so bounteous and so debonaire,
 That neuer any mote with her compaire.
 She hath ordaind this law, which we approue,
 That euery knight, which doth this way repaire,
 In case he haue no Ladie, nor no loue,
 Shall doe vnto her seruice neuer to remoue.

xxvi

But if he haue a Ladie or a Loue,
 Then must he her forgoe with foule defame,
 Or else with vs by dint of sword approue,
 That she is fairer, then our fairest Dame,
 As did this knight, before ye hither came.
 Perdie (said Britomart) the choise is hard:
 But what reward had he, that ouercame?
 He should aduanced be to high regard,
 (Said they) and haue our Ladies loue for his reward.

xxvii

Therefore a read Sir, if thou haue a loue.

xxviii

Loue haue I sure, (quoth she) but Lady none;
Yet will I not fro mine owne loue remoue,
Ne to your Lady will I seruice done,
But wreake your wrongs wrought to this knight alone,
And proue his cause. With that her mortall speare
She mightily auentred towards one,

And downe him smot, ere well aware he weare,
Then to the next she rode, and downe the next did beare.

Ne did she stay, till three on ground she layd,
That none of them himselfe could reare againe;
The fourth was by that other knight dismayd,
All were he wearie of his former paine,
That now there do but two of six remaine;
Which two did yield, before she did them smight.
Ah (said she then) now may ye all see plaine,
That truth is strong, and trew loue most of might,
That for his trusty seruants doth so strongly fight.

Too well we see, (said they) and proue too well
Our faulty weaknesse, and your matchlesse might:
For thy, faire Sir, yours be the Damozell,
Which by her owne law to your lot doth light,
And we your liege men faith vnto you plight.
So vnderneath her feet their swords they mard,
And after her besought, well as they might,
To enter in, and reape the dew reward:
She graunted, and then in they all together far'd.

Long were it to describe the goodly frame,
And stately port of Castle Ioyeous,
(For so that Castle hight by commune name)
Where they were entertained with courteous
And comely glee of many gracious
Faire Ladies, and of many a gentle knight,
Who through a Chamber long and spacious,
Eftsoones them brought vnto their Ladies sight,
That of them cleeped was the Lady of delight.

But for to tell the sumptuous aray xxxii
 Of that great chamber, should be labour lost:
 For liuing wit, I weene, cannot display
 The royall riches and exceeding cost,
 Of euery pillour and of euery post;
 Which all of purest bullion framed were,
 And with great pearles and pretious stones embost,
 That the bright glisten of their beames cleare
 Did sparckle forth great light, and glorious did appeare.
 These straunger knights through passing, forth were led xxxiii
 Into an inner rowme, whose royaltee
 And rich purueyance might vneath be red;
 Mote Princes place besee me so deckt to bee.
 Which stately manner when as they did see,
 The image of superfluous riotize,
 Exceeding much the state of meane degree,
 They greatly wondred, whence so sumptuous guize
 Might be maintaynd, and each gan diuersely deuize.
 The wals were round about apparelled xxxiv
 With costly clothes of Arras and of Toure,
 In which with cunning hand was pourtrahed
 The loue of Venus and her Paramoure
 The faire Adonis, turned to a flowre,
 A worke of rare deuice, and wondrous wit.
 First did it shew the bitter balefull stowre,
 Which her assayd with many a feruent fit,
 When first her tender hart was with his beautie smit.
 Then with what sleights and sweet allurements she xxxv
 Entyst the Boy, as well that art she knew,
 And wooed him her Paramoure to be;
 Now making girlonds of each flowre that grew,
 To crowne his golden lockes with honour dew;
 Now leading him into a secret shade
 From his Beauperes, and from bright heauens vew,
 Where him to sleepe she gently would perswade,
 Or bathe him in a fountaine by some couert glade.

And whilst he slept, she ouer him would spread
 Her mantle, colour'd like the starry skyes,
 And her soft arme lay vnderneath his hed,
 And with ambrosiall kisses bathe his eyes;
 And whilst he bath'd, with her two crafty spyas,
 She secretly would search each daintie lim,
 And throw into the well sweet Rosemaryes,
 And fragrant violets, and Pances trim,
 And euer with sweet Nectar she did sprinkle him.

xxxvi

So did she steale his heedelesse hart away,
 And ioyd his loue in secret vnespyde.
 But for she saw him bent to cruell play,
 To hunt the saluage beast in forrest wyde,
 Dreadfull of daunger, that mote him betyde,
 She oft and oft aduiz'd him to refraine
 From chase of greater beasts, whose brutish pryde
 Mote breede him scath vnwares: but all in vaine;
 For who can shun the chaunce, that dest'ny doth ordaine?

xxxvii

Lo, where beyond he lyeth languishing,
 Deadly engored of a great wild Bore,
 And by his side the Goddesse groueling
 Makes for him endlesse mone, and euermore
 With her soft garment wipes away the gore,
 Which staines his snowy skin with hatefull hew:
 But when she saw no helpe might him restore,
 Him to a dainty flowre she did transmew,
 Which in that cloth was wrought, as if it liuely grew.

xxxviii

So was that chamber clad in goodly wize,
 And round about it many beds were dight,
 As whilome was the antique worldes guize,
 Some for vntimely ease, some for delight,
 As pleased them to vse, that vse it might:
 And all was full of Damzels, and of Squires,
 Dauncing and reueling both day and night,
 And swimming deepe in sensuall desires,
 And Cupid still emongst them kindled lustfull fires.

And all the while sweet Musicke did diuide xi
 Her looser notes with Lydian harmony;
 And all the while sweet birdes thereto applide
 Their daintie layes and dulcet melody,
 Ay caroling of loue and iollity,
 That wonder was to heare their trim consort.
 Which when those knights beheld, with scornefull eye,
 They sdeigned such lasciuious disport,
 And loath'd the loose demeanure of that wanton sort.

Thence they were brought to that great Ladies vew, xii
 Whom they found sitting on a sumptuous bed,
 That glistred all with gold and glorious shew,
 As the proud Persian Queenes accustomed:
 She seemd a woman of great bountihed,
 And of rare beautie, sauing that askaunce
 Her wanton eyes, ill signes of womanhed,
 Did roll too lightly, and too often glaunce,
 Without regard of grace, or comely amenaunce.

Long worke it were, and needlesse to deuize xiii
 Their goodly entertainment and great glee:
 She caused them be led in curteous wize
 Into a bowre, disarmed for to bee,
 And cheared well with wine and spiceree:
 The Redcrosse Knight was soone disarmed there,
 But the braue Mayd would not disarmed bee,
 But onely vented vp her vmbriere,
 And so did let her goodly visage to appere.

As when faire Cynthia, in darkesome night, xiiii
 Is in a noyous cloud enueloped,
 Where she may find the substaunce thin and light,
 Breakes forth her siluer beames, and her bright hed
 Discouers to the world discomfited;
 Of the poore traueller, that went astray,
 With thousand blessings she is heried;
 Such was the beautie and the shining ray,
 With which faire Britomart gaue light vnto the day.

And eke those six, which lately with her fought,
 Now were disarmd, and did them selfe present
 Vnto her vew, and company vnsoght;
 For they all seemed curteous and gent,
 And all sixe brethren, borne of one parent,
 Which had them traynd in all ciuillitee,
 And goodly taught to tilt and turnament;
 Now were they liegemen to this Lady free,
 And her knights seruice ought, to hold of her in fee.

xli

The first of them by name Gardante hight,
 A iolly person, and of comely vew;
 The second was Parlante, a bold knight,
 And next to him Iocante did ensew;
Basciante did him selfe most curteous shew;
 But fierce Bacchante seemd too fell and keene;
 And yet in armes Noctante greater grew:
 All were faire knights, and goodly well beseene,
 But to faire Britomart they all but shadowes beene.

xlii

xlii

For she was full of amiable grace,
 And manly terrour mixed therewithall,
 That as the one stird vp affections bace,
 So th'other did mens rash desires apall,
 And hold them backe, that would in error fall;
 As he, that hath espide a vermeill Rose,
 To which sharpe thornes and breres the way forstall,
 Dare not for dread his hardy hand expose,
 But wishing it far off, his idle wish doth lose.

 Like sparkes of fire, which fall in slender flex,
 That shortly brent into extreme desire,

Eftsoones she grew to great impatience
 And into termes of open outrage brust,
 That plaine discouered her incontinence,
 Ne reckt she, who her meaning did mistrust;
 For she was giuen all to fleshly lust,
 And poured forth in sensuall delight,
 That all regard of shame she had discust,
 And meet respect of honour put to flight:
 So shamelesse beauty soone becomes a loathly sight.

xlvi

Faire Ladies, that to loue captiued arre,
 And chaste desires do nourish in your mind,
 Let not her fault your sweet affections marre,
 Ne blot the bounty of all womankind;
 'Mongst thousands good one wanton Dame to find:
 Emongst the Roses grow some wicked weeds;
 For this was not to loue, but lust inclind;
 For loue does alwayes bring forth bounteous deeds,
 And in each gentle hart desire of honour breeds.

xlii

Nought so of loue this looser Dame did skill,
 But as a coale to kindle fleshly flame,
 Giuing the bridle to her wanton will,
 And treading vnder foote her honest name:
 Such loue is hate, and such desire is shame.
 Still did she roue at her with crafty glaunce
 Of her false eyes, that at her hart did ayme,
 And told her meaning in her countenance;
 But Britomart dissembled it with ignoraunce.

i

Supper was shortly dight and downe they sat,
 Where they were serued with all sumptuous fare,
 Whiles fruitfull Ceres, and Lyæus fat
 Poured out their plenty, without spight or spare:
 Nought wanted there, that dainty was and rare;
 And aye the cups their bancks did ouerflow,
 And aye betweene the cups, she did prepare
 Way to her loue, and secret darts did throw;
 But Britomart would not such guilfull message know.

ii

xlvi 2 burst 1609 9 loathly 1596, 1609 sight, 1596

So when they slaked had the feruent heat
 Of appetite with meates of euery sort,
 The Lady did faire Briomart entreat,
 Her to disarme, and with delightfull sport
 To loose her warlike limbs and strong effort,
 But when she mote not thereunto be wonne,
 (For she her sexe vnder that straunge purport Did vse to hide, and plaine apparaunce shonne :)
 In plainer wise to tell her grieuance she begonne.

And all attonce discouered her desire
 With sighes, and sobs, and plaints, and piteous griefe,
 The outward sparkes of her in burning fire;
 Which spent in vaine, at last she told her brieft,
 That but if she did lend her short reliefe,
 And do her comfort, she mote algates dye.
 But the chaste damzell, that had neuer priefe
 Of such malengine and fine forgerie,
 Did easily belecue her strong extremitie.

Full easie was for her to haue beliefe,
 Who by self-feeling of her feeble sexe,
 And by long triall of the inward griefe,
 Wherewith imperious loue her hart did vexe,
 Could iudge what paines do louing harts perplexe.
 Who meanes no guile, be guiled soonest shall,
 And to faire semblaunce doth light faith annexe;
 The bird, that knowes not the false fowlers call,
 Into his hidden net full easily doth fall.

For though he would not in discourteise wise,
 Scoffe the faire offer of good will profest;
 For great rebuke it is, loue to despise,
 Or rudely sdeigne a gentle harts request;
 But with faire countenance, as beseemed best,
 Her entertaynd; nath'lesse she inly deemd
 Her loue too light, to wooe a wandring guest:
 Which she misconstruing, thereby esteemd
 That from like inward fire that outward smoke had steemd.

liv 6 beguiled 1596 be 'guiled 1609

Therewith a while she her flit fancy fed, lvi
 Till she mote winne fit time for her desire,
 But yet her wound still inward freshly bled,
 And through her bones the false instilled fire
 Did spread it selfe, and venime close inspire.
 Tho were the tables tak'n all away,
 And euery knight, and euery gentle Squire
 Gan choose his dame with Bascioman gay,
 With whom he meant to make his sport and courtly play.
 Some fell to daunce, some fell to hazardry, lvii
 Some to make loue, some to make meriment,
 As diuerse wits to diuers things apply;
 And all the while faire *Malecast*a bent
 Her crafty engins to her close intent.
 By this th'eternall lampes, wherewith high Ioue
 Doth light the lower world, were halfe yspent,
 And the moist daughters of huge Atlas stroue
 Into the Ocean deepe to driue their weary droue.
 High time it seemed then for euery wight lviii
 Them to betake vnto their kindly rest;
 Eftsoones long waxen torches weren light,
 Vnto their bowres to guiden euery guest:
 Tho when the Britonesse saw all the rest
 Auoided quite, she gan her selfe despoile,
 And safe commit to her soft fethered nest,
 Where through long watch, and late dayes weary toile,
 She soundly slept, and carefull thoughts did quite assoile.
 Now whenas all the world in silence deepe lix
 Yshrowled was, and euery mortall wight
 Was drowned in the depth of deadly sleepe,
 Faire *Malecast*a, whose engrieued spright
 Could find no rest in such perplexed plight,
 Lightly arose out of her wearie bed,
 And vnder the olacke vele of guilty Night,
 Her with a scarlot mantle couered,
 That was with Ermines faire enuveloped.

Then panting soft, and trembling euerie ioynt,
 Her fearfull feete towards the bowre she moued;
 Where she for secret purpose did appoynt
 To lodge the warlike mayd vnwisely loued,
 And to her bed approching, first she prooued,
 Whether she slept or wakt, with her soft hand
 She softly felt, if any member mooued,
 And lent her wary eare to vnderstand,
 If any puffe of breath, or signe of sence she fond.

Which whenas none she fond, with easie shift,
 For feare least her vnwares she should abrayd,
 Th'embroderd quilt she lightly vp did lift,
 And by her side her selfe she softly layd
 Of euery finest fingers touch affrayd;
 Ne any noise she made, ne word she spake,
 But inly sigh'd. At last the royall Mayd
 Out of her quiet slomber did awake,
 And chaungd her weery side, the better ease to take.

Where feeling one close couched by her side,
 She lightly lept out of her filed bed,
 And to her weapon ran, in minde to gride
 The loathed leachour. But the Dame halfe ded
 Through suddein feare and ghastly drierihed,
 Did shrieke alowd, that through the house it rong,
 And the whole family therewith adred,
 Rashly out of their rouzed couches sprong,
 And to the troubled chamber all in armes did throng.

And those six Knights that Ladies Champions,
 And eke the Redcrosse knight ran to the stow, Halfe armd and halfe vnarmd, with them attons:
 Where when confusedly they came, they fownd
 Their Lady lying on the senselesse ground;
 On th'other side, they saw the warlike Mayd
 All in her snow-white smocke, with locks vnbownd, Threatning the point of her auenging blade,
 That with so troublous terrour they were all dismayde.

About their Lady first they flockt arownd,
 Whom hauing laid in comfortable couch,
 Shortly they reard out of her frosen swownd;
 And afterwards they gan with fowle reproch
 To stirre vp strife, and troublous contecke broch:
 But by ensample of the last dayes losse,
 None of them rashly durst to her approach,
 Ne in so glorious spoile themselves embosse;
 Her succourd eke the Champion of the bloody Crosse.

lxiv

But one of those sixe knights, Gardante hight, Drew out a deadly bow and arrow keene,
 Which forth he sent with felonous despight,
 And fell intent against the virgin sheene:
 The mortall steele stayd not, till it was seene
 To gore her side, yet was the wound not deepe,
 But lightly rased her soft silken skin,
 That drops of purple blood thereout did weepe,
 Which did her lilly smock with staines of vermeil steepe.

lxv

Wherewith enrag'd she fiercely at them flew,
 And with her flaming sword about her layd,
 That none of them foule mischief could eschew,
 But with her dreadfull strokes were all dismayd:
 Here, there, and euery where about her swayd
 Her wrathfull steele, that none mote it abide;
 And eke the Redcrosse knight gaue her good aid,
 Ay ioyning foot to foot, and side to side,
 That in short space their foes they haue quite terrifide.

lxvi

Tho whenas all were put to shamefull flight,
 The noble Britomartis her arayd,
 And her bright armes about her body dight:
 For nothing would she lenger there be stayd,
 Where so loose life, and so vngentle trade
 Was vsd of Knights and Ladies seeming gent:
 So earely ere the grosse Earthes gryesy shade
 Was all disperst out of the firmament,
 They tooke their steeds, and forth vpon their iourney went.

Cant. II.

*The Redcrosse knight to Britomart describeth Artegall:
The wondrous myrrbour, by which she in loue with him did fall.*

HERE haue I cause, in men iust blame to find,
That in their proper prayse too partiall bee,
And not indifferent to woman kind,
To whom no share in armes and cheualrie
They do impart, ne maken memorie
Of their braue gestes and prowesse martiall;
Scarse do they spare to one or two or three,
Rowme in their writs; yet the same writing small Does all their deeds deface, and dims their glories all.

But by record of antique times I find,
That women wont in warres to beare most sway,
And to all great exploits them selues inclind:
Of which they still the girlond bore away,
Till enuious Men fearing their rules decay,
Gan coyne streight lawes to curb their liberty;
Yet sith they warlike armes haue layd away,
They haue exceld in artes and pollicy,
That now we foolish men that prayse gin eke t'enuy.

Of warlike puissaunce in ages spent,
Be thou faire Britomart, whose prayse I write,
But of all wisdom be thou precedent,
O soueraigne Queene, whose prayse I would endite, Endite I would as dewtie doth excite;
But ah my rimes too rude and rugged arre,
When in so high an obiect they do lite,
And striuing, fit to make, I feare do marre:
Thy selfe thy prayses tell, and make them knownen farre.

ii 2 women 1590 7 away: 1596

She trauellling with Guyon by the way,
 Of sundry things faire purpose gan to find,
 T'abridg their iourney long, and lingring day;
 Mongst which it fell into that Faeries mind,
 To aske this Briton Mayd, what vncouth wind,
 Brought her into those parts, and what inquest
 Made her dissemble her disguised kind:
 Faire Lady she him seemd, like Lady drest,
 But fairest knight aliue, when armed was her brest.

Thereat she sighing softly, had no powre
 To speake a while, ne ready answeere make,
 But with hart-thrilling throbs and bitter stowre,
 As if she had a feuer fit, did quake,
 And euery daintie limbe with horroure shake;
 And euer and anone the rosy red,
 Flasht through her face, as it had been a flake
 Of lightning, through bright heauen fulmined;
 At last the passion past she thus him answered.

Faire Sir, I let you weete, that from the howre
 I taken was from nourses tender pap,
 I haue beene trained vp in warlike stowre,
 To tossen speare and shield, and to affrap
 The warlike ryder to his most mishap;
 Sithence I loathed haue my life to lead,
 As Ladies wont, in pleasures wanton lap,
 To finger the fine needle and nyce thread;
 Me leuer were with point of foemans speare be dead.

All my delight on deedes of armes is set,
 To hunt out perils and aduentures hard,
 By sea, by land, where so they may be met,
 Onely for honour and for high regard,
 Without respect of richesse or reward.
 For such intent into these parts I came,
 Withouten compasse, or withouten card,
 Far fro my natie soyle, that is by name
 The greater Britaine, here to seeke for prayse and fame.

iv

Fame blazed hath, that here in Faery lond
 Do many famous Knightes and Ladies wonne,
 And many straunge aduentures to be fond,
 Of which great worth and worship may be wonne;
 Which I to proue, this voyage haue begonne.
 But mote I weet of you, right curteous knight,
 Tydings of one, that hath vnto me donne
 Late foule dishonour and reprochfull spight,
 The which I seeke to wreake, and Arthegall he hight.

viii

v

The word gone out, she backe againe would call,
 As her repenting so to haue missayd,
 But that he it vp-taking ere the fall,
 Her shortly answered; Faire martiall Mayd
 Certes ye misauised beene, t'vpbrayd
 A gentle knight with so vnknightly blame:
 For weet ye well of all, that euer playd
 At tilt or tourney, or like warlike game,
 The noble Arthegall hath euer borne the name.

ix

vi

For thy great wonder were it, if such shame
 Should euer enter in his bounteous thought,
 Or euer do, that mote deseruen blame:
 The noble courage neuer weeneth ought,
 That may vnworthy of it selfe be thought.
 Therefore, faire Damzell, be ye well aware,
 Least that too farre ye haue your sorrow sought:
 You and your countrey both I wish welfare,
 And honour both; for each of other worthy are.

vii

The royall Mayd woxe inly wondrous glad,
 To heare her Loue so highly magnifide,
 And ioyd that euer she affixed had,
 Her hart on knight so goodly glorifide,
 How euer finely she it faind to hide:
 The louing mother, that nine monethes did beare,
 In the deare closet of her painefull side,
 Her tender babe, it seeing safe appeare,
 Doth not so much reioyce, as she reioyced theare.

xi

viii 5 Which to proue, I 1590

But to occasion him to further talke,
 To feed her humour with his pleasing stile,
 Her list in strifull termes with him to balke,
 And thus replide, How euer, Sir, ye file
 Your curteous tongue, his prayes to compile,
 It ill beseemes a knight of gentle sort,
 Such as ye haue him boasted, to beguile
 A simple mayd, and worke so haynous tort,
 In shame of knighthood, as I largely can report.

Let be therefore my vengeaunce to disswade,
 And read, where I that faytour false may find.
 Ah, but if reason faire might you perswade,
 To slake your wrath, and mollifie your mind,
 (Said he) perhaps ye should it better find:
 For hardy thing it is, to weene by might,
 That man to hard conditions to bind,
 Or euer hope to match in equall fight,
 Whose prowesse paragon saw neuer liuing wight.

Ne soothlich is it easie for to read,
 Where now on earth, or how he may be found;
 For he ne wonneth in one certaine stead,
 But restlesse walketh all the world around,
 Ay doing things, that to his fame redound,
 Defending Ladies cause, and Orphans right,
 Where so he heares, that any doth confound
 Them comfortlesse, through tyranny or might;
 So is his soueraine honour raisde to heauens hight.

His feeling words her feeble sence much pleased,
 And softly sunck into her molten hart;
 Hart that is inly hurt, is greatly eased
 With hope of thing, that may allegge his smart;
 For pleasing words are like to Magick art,
 That doth the charmed Snake in slomber lay:
 Such secret ease felt gentle Britomart,
 Yet list the same efforce with faind gainesay;
 So dischord oft in Musick makes the sweeter lay.

And said, Sir knight, these idle termes forbear,
 And sith it is vneath to find his haunt,
 Tell me some markes, by which he may appeare,
 If chaunce I him encounter parauaunt;
 For perdie one shall other slay, or daunt:
 What shape, what shield, what armes, what steed, what sted,
 And what so else his person most may vaunt?
 All which the Redcrosse knight to point ared,
 And him in euery part before her fashioned.

Yet him in euery part before she knew,
 How euer list her now her knowledge faine,
 Sith him whilome in Britaine she did vew,
 To her reuealed in a mirrhour plaine,
 Whereof did grow her first engrafted paine;
 Whose root and stalke so bitter yet did tast,
 That but the fruit more sweetnesse did containe,
 Her wretched dayes in dolour she mote tast,
 And yield the pray of loue to lothsome death at last.

By strange occasion she did him behold,
 And much more strangely gan to loue his sight,
 As it in bookes hath written bene of old.
 In Deheubarth that now South-wales is hight,
 What time king Ryence raign'd, and dealed right,
 The great Magitian Merlin had deuiz'd,
 By his deepe science, and hell-dreaded might,
 A looking glasse, right wondrously aguiz'd,
 Whose vertues through the wyde world soone were solemniz'd.

It vertue had, to shew in perfect sight,
 What euer thing was in the world contaynd,
 Betwixt the lowest earth and heauens hight,
 So that it to the looker appertaynd;
 What euer foe hau wrought, or frend had faynd,
 Therein discouered was, ne ought mote pas,
 Ne ought in secret from the same remaynd;
 For thy it round and hollow shaped was,
 Like to the world it selfe, and seem'd a world of glas.

Who wonders not, that reades so wonderous worke?
 But who does wonder, that has red the Towre,
 Wherein th'Ægyptian Phao long did lurke
 From all mens vew, that none might her discoure,
 Yet she might all men vew out of her bowre?
 Great Ptolomæ it for his lemans sake
 Ybuidled all of glasse, by Magicke powre,
 And also it impregnable did make;
 Yet when his loue was false, he with a peaze it brake.

xx

Such was the glassic globe that Merlin made,
 And gaue vnto king Ryence for his gard,
 That neuer foes his kingdome might inuade,
 But he it knew at home before he hard
 Tydings thereof, and so them still debar'd.
 It was a famous Present for a Prince,
 And worthy worke of infinite reward,
 That treasons could bewray, and foes conuince;
 Happie this Realme, had it remained euer since.

xxi

One day it fortun'd, faire Britomart
 Into her fathers closet to repayre;
 For nothing he from her reseru'd apart,
 Being his onely daughter and his hayre:
 Where when she had espyde that mirrhour fayre,
 Her selfe a while therein she vewd in vaine;
 Tho her auizing of the vertues rare,
 Which thereof spoken were, she gan againe
 Her to bethinke of, that mote to her selfe pertaine.

xxii

But as it falleth, in the gentlest harts
 Imperious Loue hath highest set his throne,
 And tyrannizeth in the bitter smarts
 Of them, that to him buxome are and prone:
 So thought this Mayd (as maydens vse to done)
 Whom fortune for her husband would allot,
 Not that she lusted after any one;
 For she was pure from blame of sinfull blot,
 Yet wist her life at last must lincke in that same knot.

xxiii

xx

Eftsoones there was presented to her eye
A comely knight, all arm'd in complete wize,
Through whose bright ventayle lifted vp on hye
His manly face, that did his foes agrize,
And friends to termes of gentle truce entize,
Lookt foorth, as Phæbus face out of the east,
Betwixt two shadie mountaines doth arize;
Portly his person was, and much increast
Through his Heroicke grace, and honorable gest.

xxiv

xxi

His crest was couered with a couchant Hound,
And all his armour seem'd of antique mould,
But wondrous massie and assured sound,
And round about yfretted all with gold,
In which there written was with cyphers old,
Achilles armes, which Arihegall did win.
And on his shield enueloped seuenfold
He bore a crowned litle Ermilin,
That deckt the azure field with her faire pouldred skin.

xxii

The Damzell well did vew his personage,
And liked well, ne further fastned not,
But went her way; ne her vnguilty age
Did weene, vnwares, that her vnlucky lot
Lay hidden in the bottome of the pot;
Of hurt vnwist most daunger doth redound:
But the false Archer, with that arrow shot
So slyly, that she did not feele the wound,
Did smyle full smoothly at her weetlesse wofull stound.

xxiii

Thenceforth the feather in her loftie crest,
Ruffed of loue, gan lowly to auaile,
And her proud portance, and her princely gest,
With which she earst tryumphed, now did quaile:
Sad, solemne, sowre, and full of fancies fraile
She woxe; yet wist she neither how, nor why,
She wist not, silly Mayd, what she did aile,
Yet wist, she was not well at ease perdy,
Yet thought it was not loue, but some melancholy.

xxvii

So soone as Night had with her pallid hew
 Defast the beautie of the shining sky,
 And reft from men the worlds desired vew,
 She with her Nourse adowne to sleepe did lye;
 But sleepe full farre away from her did fly:
 In stead thereof sad sighes, and sorrowes deepe
 Kept watch and ward about her warily,
 That nought she did but wayle, and often steepe
 Her daintie couch with teares, which closely she did weepe.

xxviii

And if that any drop of slombring rest
 Did chaunce to still into her wearie spright,
 When feeble nature felt her selfe opprest,
 Streight way with dreames, and with fantasticke sight
 Of dreadfull things the same was put to flight,
 That oft out of her bed she did astart,
 As one with vew of ghastly feends affright:
 Tho gan she to renew her former smart,
 And thinke of that faire visage, written in her hart.

xxix

One night, when she was tost with such vnrest,
 Her aged Nurse, whose name was Glauce hight,
 Feeling her leape out of her loathed nest,
 Betwixt her feeble armes her quickly keight,
 And downe againe in her warme bed her dight,
 Ah my deare daughter, ah my dearest dread,
 What vncouth fit (said she) what euill plight
 Hath thee opprest, and with sad drearyhead
 Chaunged thy liuely cheare, and liuing made thee dead?

xxx

For not of nought these suddeine ghastly feares
 All night afflict thy naturall repose,
 And all the day, when as thine equall peares
 Their fit disports with faire delight doe chose,
 Thou in dull corners doest thy selfe inclose,
 Ne tastest Princes pleasures, ne doest spred
 Abroad thy fresh youthes fairest flowre, but lose
 Both leafe and fruit, both too vntimely shed,
 As one in wilfull bale for euer buried.

xxx 5 her in her warme bed 1590

The time, that mortall men their weary cares
 Do lay away, and all wilde beastes do rest,
 And euery riuer eke his course forbeares,
 Then doth this wicked euill thee infest,
 And riue with thousand throbs thy thrilled brest;
 Like an huge Aetn' of deepe engulfed grieve,
 Sorrow is heaped in thy hollow chest,
 Whence forth it breakes in sighes and anguish rife,
 As smoke and sulphure mingled with confused strife.

Aye me, how much I feare, least loue it bee;
 But if that loue it be, as sure I read
 By known signes and passions, which I see,
 Be it worthy of thy race and royall sead,
 Then I auow by this most sacred head
 Of my deare foster child, to ease thy grieve,
 And win thy will: Therefore away doe dread;
 For death nor daunger from thy dew reliefe
 Shall me debarre, tell me therefore my liefest liefe.

So hauing said, her twixt her armes twaine
 She straightly straynd, and colled tenderly,
 And euery trembling ioynt, and euery vaine
 She softly felt, and rubbed busily,
 To doe the frozen cold away to fly;
 And her faire deawy eies with kisses deare
 She oft did bath, and oft againe did dry;
 And euer her importund, not to feare
 To let the secret of her hart to her appeare.

The Damzell pauzd, and then thus fearefully;
 Ah Nurse, what needeth thee to eke my paine?
 Is not enough, that I alone doe dye,
 But it must doubled be with death of twaine?
 For nought for me but death there doth remaine.
 O daughter deare (said she) despaire no whit;
 For neuer sore, but might a salue obtaine:
 That blinded God, which hath ye blindly smit,
 Another arrow hath your louers hart to hit.

xxxii 3 forbeares 1596

But mine is not (quoth she) like others wound;
 For which no reason can find remedy.
 Was neuer such, but mote the like be found,
 (Said she) and though no reason may apply
 Salue to your sore, yet loue can higher stye,
 Then reasons reach, and oft hath wonders donne.
 But neither God of loue, nor God of sky
 Can doe (said she) that, which cannot be donne.
 Things oft impossible (quoth she) seeme, ere begonne.

xxxvi

These idle words (said she) doe nought asswage
 My stubborne smart, but more annoyance breed,
 For no no vsuall fire, no vsuall rage
 It is, O Nurse, which on my life doth feed,
 And suckes the bloud, which from my hart doth bleed.
 But since thy faithfull zeale lets me not hyde
 My crime, (if crime it be) I will it reed.
 Nor Prince, nor pere it is, whose loue hath gryde
 My feeble brest of late, and launched this wound wyde.

xxxvii

Nor man it is, nor other liuing wight;
 For then some hope I might vnto me draw,
 But th'only shade and semblant of a knight,
 Whose shape or person yet I neuer saw,
 Hath me subiected to loues cruell law:
 The same one day, as me misfortune led,
 I in my fathers wondrous mirrhour saw,
 And pleased with that seeming goodly-hed, Vnwares the hidden hooke with baite I swallowed.

xxxviii

Sithens it hath infixed faster hold
 Within my bleeding bowels, and so sore
 Now ranckleth in this same fraile fleshly mould,
 That all mine entrailes flow with poysnous gore,
 And th'vicer groweth daily more and more;
 Ne can my running sore find remedie,
 Other then my hard fortune to deplore,
 And languish as the leafe falne from the tree,
 Till death make one end of my dayes and miserie.

xxxix

Daughter (said she) what need ye be dismayd,
 Or why make ye such Monster of your mind?
 Of much more vncouth thing I was affrayd;
 Of filthy lust, contrarie vnto kind:
 But this affection nothing straunge I find;
 For who with reason can you aye reprove,
 To loue the semblant pleasing most your mind,
 And yield your heart, whence ye cannot remoue?
 No guilt in you, but in the tyranny of loue.

Not so th' Arabian Myrrhe did set her mind;
 Nor so did Biblis spend her pining hart,
 But lou'd their natiue flesh against all kind,
 And to their purpose vsed wicked art:
 Yet playd Pasiphaë a more monstrous part,
 That lou'd a Bull, and learnd a beast to bee;
 Such shamefull lusts who loaths not, which depart
 From course of nature and of modestie?

Sweet loue such lewdnes bands from his faire companie.

But thine my Deare (welfare thy heart my deare)
 Though strange beginning had, yet fixed is
 On one, that worthy may perhaps appeare;
 And certes seemes bestowed not amis:
 Ioy thereof haue thou and eternall blis.
 With that vpleaning on her elbow weake,
 Her alablaster brest she soft did kis,
 Which all that while she felt to pant and quake,
 As it an Earth-quake were; at last she thus bespake.

Beldame, your words doe worke me litle ease;
 For though my loue be not so lewdly bent,
 As those ye blame, yet may it nought appease
 My raging smart, ne ought my flame relent,
 But rather doth my helpelesse grieve augment.
 For they, how euer shamefull and vnkind,
 Yet did possesse their horrible intent:
 Short end of sorrowes they thereby did find;
 So was their fortune good, though wicked were their mind.

But wicked fortune mine, though mind be good,
 Can haue no end, nor hope of my desire,
 But feed on shadowes, whiles I die for food,
 And like a shadow wexe, whiles with entire Affection, I doe languish and expire.
 I fonder, then Cephisus foolish child,
 Who hauing vewed in a fountaine shere
 His face, was with the loue thereof beguild;
 I fonder loue a shade, the bodie farre exild.

xlii

Nought like (quoth she) for that same wretched boy
 Was of himselfe the idle Paramoure;
 Both loue and louer, without hope of ioy,
 For which he faded to a watry flowre.
 But better fortune thine, and better howre,
 Which lou'st the shadow of a warlike knight;
 No shadow, but a bodie hath in powre:
 That bodie, wheresoeuer that it light,
 May learned be by cyphers, or by Magicke might.

xlii

But if thou may with reason yet repress
 The growing euill, ere it strength haue got,
 And thee abandond wholly doe possesse,
 Against it strongly striue, and yield thee not,
 Till thou in open field adowne be smot.
 But if the passion mayster thy fraile might,
 So that needs loue or death must be thy lot,
 Then I auow to thee, by wrong or right
 To compasse thy desire, and find that loued knight.

xlii

Her chearefull words much cheard the feeble spright
 Of the sicke virgin, that her downe she layd
 In her warme bed to sleepe, if that she might;
 And the old-woman carefully displayd
 The clothes about her round with busie ayd;
 So that at last a little creeping sleepe
 Surprisd her sense: She therewith well apayd,
 The drunken lampe downe in the oyle did steepe,
 And set her by to watch, and set her by to weepe.

His ioyous face did to the world reueale,
They both vprose and tooke their readie way
Vnto the Church, their prayers to appeale,
With great deuotion, and with litle zeale:
For the faire Damzell from the holy herse
Her loue-sicke hart to other thoughts did steale;
And that old Dame said many an idle verse,
Out of her daughters hart fond fancies to reuerse.

Returned home, the royall Infant fell

xlix

Into her former fit; for why, no powre
Nor guidance of her selfe in her did dwell.
But th'aged Nurse her calling to her towre,
Had gathered Rew, and Sauine, and the flowre
Of Camphora, and Calamint, and Dill,
All which she in a earthen Pot did poure,
And to the brim with Colt wood did it fill,
And many drops of milke and bloud through it did spill.

Then taking thrise three haire from off her head,

i

Them trebly breaded in a threefold lace,
And round about the pots mouth, bound the thread,
And after hauing whispered a space
Certaine sad words, with hollow voice and bace,
She to the virgin said, thrise said she it;
Come daughter come, come; spit vpon my face,
Spit thrise vpon me, thrise vpon me spit;
Th'vneuen number for this businesse is most fit.

That sayd, her round about she from her turnd.

ii

She turned her contrarie to the Sunne,
Thrise she her turnd contrary, and retu:nd,
All contrary, for she the right did shunne,
And euer what she did, was streight vndonne.
So thought she to vndoe her daughters loue:
But loue, that is in gentle brest begonne,
No idle charmes so lightly may remoue,
That well can witnesse, who by triall it does proue.

Ne ought it mote the noble Mayd auayle,
 Ne slake the furie of her cruell flame,
 But that she still did waste, and still did wayle,
 That through long languour, and hart-burning brame
 She shortly like a pyned ghost became,
 Which long hath waited by the Stygian strond.
 That when old Glauce saw, for feare least blame
 Of her miscarriage should in her be found,
 She wist not how t'amend, nor how it to withstond.

Cant. III.

Most sacred fire, that burnest mightily
 In liuing breasts, ykindled first aboue,
 Emongst th'eternall spheres and lamping sky,
 And thence poud into men, which men call Loue;
 Not that same, which doth base affections moue
 In brutish minds, and filthy lust inflame,
 But that sweet fit, that doth true beautie loue,
 And choseth vertue for his dearest Dame,
 Whence spring all noble deeds and neuer dying fame:
 Well did Antiquitie a God thee deeme,
 That ouer mortall minds hast so great might,
 To order them, as best to thee doth seeme,
 And all their actions to direct aright;
 The fatall purpose of diuine foresight,
 Thou doest effect in destined descents,
 Through deepe impression of thy secret might,
 And stirredst vp th'Heroes high intents,
 Which the late world admyres for wondrous monuments.

i

ii

But thy dread darts in none doe triumph more,
 Ne brauer prooffe in any, of thy powre
 Shew'dst thou, then in this royall Maid of yore,
 Making her seeke an vnknowne Paramoure,
 From the worlds end, through many a bitter stowre:
 From whose two loynes thou afterwards did rayse
 Most famous fruits of matrimoniall bowre,
 Which through the earth haue spred their liuing prayse,
 That fame in trompe of gold eternally displayes.

Begin then, O my dearest sacred Dame,
 Daughter of Phæbus and of Memorie,
 That doest ennoble with immortall name
 The warlike Worthies, from antiquitie,
 In thy great volume of Eternitie:
 Begin, O Clio, and recount from hence
 My glorious Soueraines goodly auncestrie,
 Till that by dew degrees and long protense,
 Thou haue it lastly brought vnto her Excellence.

Full many wayes within her troubled mind,
 Old Glauce cast, to cure this Ladies grieve:
 Full many waies she sought, but none could find,
 Nor herbes, nor charmes, nor counsell, that is chiefe
 And choisest med'cine for sicke harts reliefe:
 For thy great care she tooke, and greater feare,
 Least that it should her turne to foule reprieve,
 And sore reproch, when so her father deare
 Should of his dearest daughters hard misfortune heare.

At last she her auisd, that he, which made
 That mirrhour, wherein the sicke Damosell
 So straungely vewed her straunge louers shade,
 To weet, the learned Merlin, well could tell,
 Vnder what coast of heauen the man did dwell,
 And by what meanes his loue might best be wrought:
 For though beyond the Africk Ismaell,
 Or th'Indian Peru he were, she thought
 Him forth through infinite endeouour to haue sought.

iv 3 Thou 1590 7 auncestrie 1596 8 pretence 1596, 1609

Forthwith themselues disguising both in straunge vii
 And base attyre, that none might them bewray,
 To Maridunum, that is now by chaunge
 Of name Cayr-Merdin cald, they tooke their way:
 There the wise Merlin whylome wont (they say)
 To make his wonne, low vnderneath the ground,
 In a deepe delue, farre from the vew of day,
 That of no liuing wight he mote be found,
 When so he counseld with his sprights encompass round.

And if thou euer happen that same way viii
 To trauell, goe to see that dreadfull place:
 It is an hideous hollow caue (they say)
 Vnder a rocke that lyes a little space
 From the swift Barry, tombling downe apace, Emongst the woodie hilles of Dyneuowre:
 But dare thou not, I charge, in any cace,
 To enter into that same balefull Bowre,
 For fear the cruell Feends should thee vnwares deuowre.

But standing high aloft, low lay thine eare, ix
 And there such ghastly noise of yron chaines,
 And brasen Caudrons thou shalt rombling heare,
 Which thousand sprights with long enduring paines
 Doe tosse, that it will stonne thy feeble braines,
 And oftentimes great grones, and grievous stounds,
 When too huge toile and labour them constraines:
 And oftentimes loud strokes, and ringing sounds
 From vnder that deepe Rocke most horribly rebounds.

The cause some say is this: A litle while x
 Before that Merlin dyde, he did intend,
 A brasen wall in compas to compile
 About Cairmardin, and did it commend
 Vnto these Sprights, to bring to perfect end.
 During which worke the Ladie of the Lake,
 Whom long he lou'd, for him in hast did send,
 Who thereby forst his workemen to forsake,
 Them bound till his returne, their labour not to slake.

In the meane time through that false Ladies traine, xi
 He was surprisd, and buried vnder beare,
 Ne euer to his worke returnd againe:
 Nath'lesse those feends may not their worke forbear,
 So greatly his commaundement they feare,
 But there doe toyle and trauell day and night,
 Vntill that brasen wall they vp doe reare:
 For Merlin had in Magicke more insight,
 Then euer him before or after liuing wight.

For he by words could call out of the sky xii
 Both Sunne and Moone, and make them him obey:
 The land to sea, and sea to maineland dry,
 And darkesome night he eke could turne to day:
 Huge hostes of men he could alone dismay,
 And hostes of men of meanest things could frame,
 When so him list his enimies to fray:
 That to this day for terror of his fame,
 The feends do quake, when any him to them does name.

And sooth, men say that he was not the sonne xiii
 Of mortall Syre, or other liuing wight,
 But wondrously begotten, and begonne
 By false illusion of a guilefull Spright,
 On a faire Ladie Nonne, that whilome hight
Matilda, daughter to Pubidius,
 Who was the Lord of Mathrauall by right,
 And coosen vnto king Ambrosius:
 Whence he indued was with skill so maruellous.

They here ariuing, staid a while without, xiv
 Ne durst aduenture rashly in to wend,
 But of their first intent gan make new dout
 For dread of daunger, which it might portend:
 Vntill the hardie Mayd (with loue to frend)
 First entering, the dreadfull Mage there found
 Deepe busied bout worke of wondrous end,
 And writing strange characters in the ground,
 With which the stubborn feends he to his seruice bound.

He nought was moued at their entrance bold:
 For of their comming well he wist afore,
 Yet list them bid their businesse to vnfold,
 As if ought in this world in secret store
 Were from him hidden, or vnknowne of yore.
 Then Glauce thus, Let not it thee offend,
 That we thus rashly through thy darkesome dore,
 Vnwares haue prest: for either fatall end,
 Or other mightie cause vs two did hither send.

xv

He bad tell on; And then she thus began.
 Now haue three Moones with borrow'd brother's light,
 Thrice shined faire, and thrice seem'd dim and wan,
 Sith a sore euill, which this virgin bright
 Tormenteth, and doth plunge in dolefull plight,
 First rooting tooke; but what thing it mote bee,
 Or whence it sprong, I cannot read aright:
 But this I read, that but if remedee
 Thou her afford, full shortly I her dead shall see.

xvi

Therewith th'Enchaunter softly gan to smyle
 At her smooth speeches, weeting inly well,
 That she to him dissembled womanish guyle,
 And to her said, Beldame, by that ye tell,
 More need of leach-craft hath your Damozell,
 Then of my skill: who helpe may haue elsewhere,
 In vaine seekes wonders out of Magicke spell.
 Th'old woman wox half blanck, those words to heare;
 And yet was loth to let her purpose plaine appeare.

xvii

And to him said, If any leaches skill,
 Or other learned meanes could haue redrest
 This my deare daughters deepe engrafted ill,
 Certes I should be loth thee to molest:
 But this sad euill, which doth her infest,
 Doth course of naturall cause farre exceed,
 And housed is within her hollow brest,
 That either seemes some cursed witches deed,
 Or euill spright, that in her doth such torment breed.

xviii

The wisard could no lenger beare her bord,
 But brusting forth in laughter, to her sayd;
Glauce, what needs this colourable word,
 To cloke the cause, that hath it selfe bewrayd?
 Ne ye faire Britomartis, thus arayd,
 More hidden are, then Sunne in cloudy veile;
 Whom thy good fortune, hauing fate obayd,
 Hath hither brought, for succour to appele:
 The which the powres to thee are pleased to reuele.

xix

The doubtfull Mayd, seeing her selfe descryde,
 Was all abasht, and her pure yuory
 Into a cleare Carnation suddeine dyde;
 As faire Aurora rising hastily,
 Doth by her blushing tell, that she did lye
 All night in old Tithonus frosen bed,
 Whereof she seemes ashamed inwardly.
 But her old Nourse was nought dishartened,
 But vauntage made of that, which Merlin had ared.

xx

And sayd, Sith then thou knowest all our grieve, (For what doest not thou know?) of grace I pray,
 Pitty our plaint, and yield vs meet reliefe.
 With that the Prophet still awhile did stay,
 And then his spirite thus gan forth display;
 Most noble Virgin, that by fatall lore
 Hast learn'd to loue, let no whit thee dismay
 The hard begin, that meets thee in the dore,
 And with sharpe fits thy tender hart oppresseseth sore.

xxi

For so must all things excellent begin,
 And eke enrooted deepe must be that Tree,
 Whose big embodied braunches shall not lin,
 Till they to heauens hight forth stretched bee.
 For from thy wombe a famous *P*rogenie
 Shall spring, out of the auncient Asian blood,
 Which shall reuiue the sleeping memorie
 Of those same antique Peres, the heauens brood,
 Which Greece and Asian riuers stained with their blood.

xxii

Renowned kings, and sacred Emperours,
 Thy fruitfull Ofspring, shall from thee descend;
 Braue Captaines, and most mighty warriors,
 That shall their conquests through all lands extend,
 And their decayed kingdomes shall amend:
 The feeble Britons, broken with long warre,
 They shall vpreare, and mightily defend Against their forrein foe, that comes from farre,
 Till vniuersall peace compound all euill iarre.

xxiii

It was not, Britomart, thy wandring eye,
 Glauncing vnwares in charmed looking glas,
 But the streight course of heauenly destiny,
 Led with eternall prouidence, that has Guided thy glaunce, to bring his will to pas:
 Ne is thy fate, ne is thy fortune ill,
 To loue the prowtest knight, that euer was.
 Therefore submit thy wayes vnto his will,
 And do by all dew meanes thy destiny fulfill.

xxiv

But read (said Glauce) thou Magitian
 What meanes shall she out seeke, or what wayes take?
 How shall she know, how shall she find the man?
 Or what needs her to toyle, sith fates can make Way for themselues, their purpose to partake?
 Then Merlin thus; Indeed the fates are firme,
 And may not shrinck, though all the world do shake:
 Yet ought mens good endeouours them confirme,
 And guide the heauenly causes to their constant terme.

xxv

The man whom heauens haue ordaynd to bee
 The spouse of Britomart, is Arthegall:
 He wonneth in the land of Fayeree,
 Yet is no Fary borne, ne sib at all
 To Elfes, but sprong of seed terrestriall,
 And whilome by false Faries stolne away,
 Whiles yet in infant cradle he did crall;
 Ne other to himselfe is knowne this day,
 But that he by an Elfe was gotten of a Fay.

xxvi

xxiii

But sooth he is the sonne of Gorlois,
 And brother vnto Cador Cornish king,
 And for his warlike feates renowmed is,
 From where the day out of the sea doth spring,
 Vntill the closure of the Euening.
 From thence, him firmly bound with faithfull band,
 To this his natiue soyle thou backe shalt bring,
 Strongly to aide his countrey, to withstand
 The powre of forrein Paynims, which inuade thy land.

xxvii

xxiv

Great aid thereto his mighty puissaunce,
 And dreaded name shall giue in that sad day:
 Where also prooffe of thy prow valiaunce
 Thou then shalt make, t'increase thy lovers pray.
 Long time ye both in armes shall beare great sway,
 Till thy wombes burden thee from them do call,
 And his last fate him from thee take away,
 Too rathe cut off by practise criminall
 Of secret foes, that him shall make in mischief fall.

xxviii

With thee yet shall he leaue for memory
 Of his late puissaunce, his Image dead,
 That liuing him in all actiuity
 To thee shall represent. He from the head
 Of his coosin Constantius without dread

 And therewith crowne himselfe in th'others stead:
 Then shall he issew forth with dreadfull might,
 Against his Saxon foes in bloody field to fight.

 Hath long time slept, himselfe so shall he shake,
 And comming forth, shall spred his banner braue Ouer the troubled South, that it shall make
 The warlike Mertians for feare to quake:
 Thrise shall he fight with them, and twise shall win,
 But the third time shall faire accordaunce make:
 And if he then with victorie can lin,
 He shall his dayes with peace bring to his earthly In.

xxx

His sonne, hight Vortipore, shall him succede
 In kingdome, but not in felicity;
 Yet shall he long time warre with happy speed,
 And with great honour many battels try:
 But at the last to th'importunity
 Of froward fortune shall be forst to yield.
 But his sonne Malgo shall full mightily
 Auenge his fathers losse, with speare and shield,
 And his proud foes discomfit in victorious field.

xxxii

Behold the man, and tell me Britomart,
 If ay more goodly creature thou didst see;
 How like a Gyaunt in each manly part
 Beares he himselfe with portly maiestee,
 That one of th'old Heroes seemes to bee:
 He the six Islands, comprouinciall
 In auncient times vnto great Britainee,
 Shall to the same reduce, and to him call
 Their sundry kings to do their homage seuerall.

xxxiii

All which his sonne Careticus awhile
 Shall well defend, and Saxons powre suppresses, Vntill a straunger king from vnknowne soyle
 Arriuing, him with multitude oppresse;
 Great Gormond, hauing with huge mightnesse
 Ireland subdewd, and therein fixt his throne,
 Like a swift Otter, fell through emptinesse,
 Shall ouerswim the sea with many one
 Of his Norueyses, to assist the Britons fone.

xxxiiii

He in his furie all shall ouerrunne,
 And holy Church with faithlesse hands deface,
 That thy sad people vtterly fordonne,
 Shall to the vtmost mountaines fly apace:
 Was neuer so great wast in any place,
 Nor so fowle outrage doen by liuing men:
 For all thy Cities they shall sacke and race,
 And the greene grasse, that groweth, they shall bren,
 That euen the wild beast shall dy in starued den.

xxxv

Whiles thus thy Britons do in languour pine,
 Proud Etheldred shall from the North arise,
 Seruing th'ambitious will of Augustine,
 And passing Dee with hardy enterprise,
 Shall backe repulse the valiaunt Brockwell twise,
 And Bangor with massacred Martyrs fill;
 But the third time shall rew his foolhardise:
 For Cadwan pittying his peoples ill,
 Shall stoutly him defeat, and thousand Saxons kill.

But after him, Cadwallin mightily
 On his sonne Edwin all those wrongs shall wreake;
 Ne shall auaille the wicked sorcery
 Of false Pellite, his purposes to breake,
 But him shall slay, and on a gallowes bleake
 Shall giue th'enchauter his vnhappy hire;
 Then shall the Britons, late dismayd and weake,
 From their long vassalage gin to respire,
 And on their Paynim foes auenge their ranckled ire.

Ne shall he yet his wrath so mitigate,
 Till both the sonnes of Edwin he haue slaine, Offricke and Osricke, twinnes vnfortunate,
 Both slaine in battell vpon Layburne plaine,
 Together with the king of Louthiane,
 Hight Adin, and the king of Orkeny,
 Both ioynt partakers of their fatall paine:
 But Penda, fearefull of like desteny,
 Shall yield him selfe his liegeman, and sweare fealty.

Him shall he make his fatall Instrument,
 T'afflict the other Saxons vnsubdewd;
 He marching forth with fury insolent
 Against the good king Oswald, who indewd
 With heauenly powre, and by Angels reskewd,
 All holding crosses in their hands on hye,
 Shall him defeate withouten bloud imbrewd:
 Of which, that field for endlesse memory,
 Shall Heuenfield be cald to all posterity.

Where at Cadwallin wroth, shall forth issew,
 And an huge hoste into Northumber lead,
 With which he godly Oswald shall subdew,
 And crowne with martyrdome his sacred head.
 Whose brother Oswin, daunted with like dread,
 With price of siluer shall his kingdome buy,
 And Penda, seeking him adowne to tread,
 Shall tread adowne, and do him fowly dye,
 But shall with gifts his Lord Cadwallin pacify.

xxix

Then shall Cadwallin dye, and then the raine
 Of Britons eke with him attonce shall dye;
 Ne shall the good Cadwallader with paine,
 Or powre, be hable it to remedy,
 When the full time prefixt by destiny,
 Shalbe expird of Britons regiment.
 For heauen it selfe shall their successe enuy,
 And them with plagues and murrins pestilent
 Consume, till all their warlike puissaunce be spent.

xi

Yet after all these sorrowes, and huge hills
 Of dying people, during eight yeares space,
Cadwallader not yielding to his ills,
 From Armoricke, where long in wretched cace
 He liu'd, returning to his natiue place,
 Shalbe by vision staid from his intent:
 For th'heauens haue decreed, to displace
 The Britons, for their sinnes dew punishment,
 And to the Saxons ouer-giue their gouernment.

xii

Then woe, and woe, and euerlasting woe,
 Be to the Briton babe, that shalbe borne,
 To liue in thraldome of his fathers foe;
 Late King, now captiue, late Lord, now forlorne,
 The worlds reproch, the cruell victors scorne,
 Banisht from Princely bowre to wastfull wood:
 O who shall helpe me to lament, and mourne
 The royall seed, the antique Troian blood,
 Whose Empire lenger here, then euer any stood.

xiii

The Damzell was full deepe empassioned,
 Both for his griefe, and for her peoples sake,
 Whose future woes so plaine he fashioned,
 And sighing sore, at length him thus bespake;
 Ah but will heauens fury neuer slake,
 Nor vengeance huge relent it selfe at last?
 Will not long misery late mercy make,
 But shall their name for euer be defast,
 And quite from of the earth their memory be rast?

Nay but terme (said he) is limited,
 That in this thraldome Britons shall abide,
 And the iust reuolution measured,
 That they as Straungers shalbe notifide.
 For twise foure hundreth yeares shalbe supplide,
 Ere they to former rule restor'd shalbee,
 And their importune fates all satisfide:
 Yet during this their most obscuritee, (see.
 Their beames shall oft breake forth, that men them faire may

For Rhodoricke, whose surname shalbe Great,
 Shall of him selfe a braue ensample shew,
 That Saxon kings his friendship shall intreat;
 And Howell Dha shall goodly well indew
 The saluage minds with skill of iust and trew;
 Then Griffyth Conan also shall vp reare
 His dreaded head, and the old sparkes renew
 Of natiue courage, that his foes shall feare,
 Least backe againe the kingdome he from them should beare.

Ne shall the Saxons selues all peaceably
 Enioy the crowne, which they from Britons wonne
 First ill, and after ruled wickedly:
 For ere two hundred yeares be full outronne,
 There shall a Rauen far from rising Sunne,
 With his wide wings vpon them fiercely fly,
 And bid his faithlesse chickens ouerronne
 The fruitfull plaines, and with fell cruelty,
 In their auenge, tread downe the victours surquedry.

Yet shall a third both these, and thine subdew; xlvii
 There shall a Lyon from the sea-bord wood
 Of Neustria come roring, with a crew
 Of hungry whelpes, his battailous bold brood,
 Whose clawes were newly dipt in cruddy blood,
 That from the Daniske Tyrants head shall rend
 Th'vsurped crowne, as if that he were wood,
 And the spoile of the countrey conquered
 Emongst his young ones shall diuide with bountyhed.
 Tho when the terme is full accomplishid, xlviii
 There shall a sparke of fire, which hath long-while Bene in his ashes raked vp, and hid,
 Be freshly kindled in the fruitfull Ile
 Of Mona, where it lurked in exile;
 Which shall breake forth into bright burning flame,
 And reach into the house, that beares the stile
 Of royall maiesty and soueraigne name;
 So shall the Briton bloud their crowne againe reclame.
 Thenceforth eternall vnion shall be made xlix
 Betweene the nations different afore,
 And sacred Peace shall louingly perswade
 The warlike minds, to learne her goodly lore,
 And ciuile armes to exercise no more:
 Then shall a royall virgin raine, which shall Stretch her white rod ouer the Belgicke shore,
 And the great Castle smite so sore with all,
 That it shall make him shake, and shortly learne to fall.
 But yet the end is not. There Merlin stayd,
 As ouercomen of the spirites powre,
 Or other ghastly spectacle dismayd,
 That secretly he saw, yet note discoure:
 Which suddein fit, and halfe extaticke stoure
 When the two fearefull women saw, they grew
 Greatly confused in behauioure;
 At last the fury past, to former hew
 Hee turnd againe, and chearefull looks (as earst) did shew
 19 Shee 1590 &c.: corr. F. E. (as earst) om. 1590, 1596: add. 1609

Then, when them selues they well instructed had
 Of all, that needed them to be inquired,
 They both conceiuing hope of comfort glad,
 With lighter hearts vnto their home retir'd;
 Where they in secret counsell close conspir'd,
 How to effect so hard an enterprize,
 And to possesse the purpose they desird:
 Now this, now that twixt them they did deuise,
 And diuerse plots did frame, to maske in strange disguise.

At last the Nourse in her foolhardy wit
 Conceiu'd a bold deuise, and thus bespake;
 Daughter, I deeme that counsell aye most fit,
 That of the time doth dew aduauntage take;
 Ye see that good king Vther now doth make Strong warre vpon the P. nim brethren, hight
Octa and Oza, whom he ely brake
 Beside Cayr Verolame, in victorious fight,
 That now all Britanie doth burne in armes bright.

That therefore nought our passage may empeach,
 Let vs in feigned armes our selues disguise,
 And our weake hands (whom need new strength shall teach)
 The dreadfull speare and shield to exercize:
 Ne certes daughter that same warlike wize
 I weene, would you misseeme; for ye bene tall,
 And large of limbe, t'atchieue an hard emprize,
 Ne ought ye want, but skill, which practize small
 Will bring, and shortly make you a mayd Martiall.

And sooth, it ought your courage much inflame,
 To heare so often, in that royall hous,
 From whence to none inferiour ye came,
 Bards tell of man; women valorous
 Which haue full many feats aduenturous
 Performd, in paragone of proudest men:
 The bold Bunduca, whose victorious
 Exploits made Rome to quake, stout Guendolen, Renowmed Martia, and redoubted Emrsilen.

And that, which more then all the rest may sway,
 Late dayes ensample, which these eyes beheld,
 In the last field before Meneuia
 Which Vther with those forrein Pagans held,
 I saw a Saxon Virgin, the which feld
 Great Vlfn thrise vpon the bloody plaine,
 And had not Carados her hand withheld
 From rash reuenge, she had him surely slaine,
 Yet Carados himselfe from her escapt with paine.

lv

Ah read, (quoth Britomart) how is she hight?
 Faire Angela (quoth she) men do her call,
 No whit lesse faire, then terrible in fight:
 She hath the leading of a Martiall
 And mighty people, dreaded more then all
 The other Saxons, which do for her sake
 And loue, themselues of her name Angles call.
 Therefore faire Infant her ensample make Vnto thy selfe, and equall courage to thee take.

lvi

Her hartie words so deepe into the mynd
 Of the young Damzell sunke, that great desire
 Of warlike armes in her forthwith they tynd,
 And generous stout courage did inspire,
 That she resolu'd, vnweeting to her Sire, Aduent'rous knighthood on her selfe to don,
 And counseld with her Nourse, her Maides attire
 To turne into a massy habergeon,
 And bad her all things put in readinesse anon.

lvii

Th'old woman nought, that needed, did omit;
 But all things did conueniently puruay:
 It fortun'd (so time their turne did fit)
 A band of Britons ryding on forray
 Few dayes before, had gotten a great pray
 Of Saxon goods, emongst the which was seene
 A goodly Armour, and full rich aray,
 Which long'd to Angela, the Saxon Queene,
 All fretted round with gold, and goodly well beseene.

iv The same, with all the other ornaments,
 King Ryence caused to be hanged hy
 In his chiefe Church, for endlesse moniments
 Of his successe and gladfull victory:
 Of which her selfe auising readily,
 In th'euening late old Glauce thither led Faire Britomart and that same Armory
 Downe taking, her therein appareled,
 Well as she might, and with braue bauldrick garnished.

lix

lvi Beside those armes there stood a mighty speare,
 Which Blasid made by Magick art of yore,
 And vsd the same in battell aye to beare;
 Sith which it had bin here preseru'd in store,
 For his great vertues proued long afore:
 For neuer wight so fast in sell could sit,
 But him perforce vnto the ground it bore:
 Both speare she tooke, and shield, which hong by it:
 Both speare and shield of great powre, for her purpose fit.

lx

lvii Thus when she had the virgin all arayd,
 Another harnesse, which did hang thereby,
 About her selfe she dight, that the young Mayd
 She might in equall armes accompany,
 And as her Squire attend her carefully:
 Tho to their ready Steeds they clombe full light,
 And through back wayes, that none might them espy,
 Couered with secret cloud of silent night,
 Themselues they forth conuayd, and passed forward right.

lxi

lviii Ne rested they, till that to Faery lond
 They came, as Merlin them directed late:
 Where meeting with this Redcrosse knight, she fond Of diuerse things discourses to dilate,
 But most of Arthegall, and his estate.
 At last their wayes so fell, that they mote part:
 Then each to other well affectionate,
 Friendship professed with vnfaigned hart,
 The Redcrosse knight diuerst, but forth rode Britomart.

lxii

Cant. IIII.

*Bold Marinell of Britomart,
Is throwne on the Rich strand:
Faيرة Florimell of Arthur is Long followed, but not fond.*

WHere is the Antique glory now become,
That whilome wont in women to appeare?
Where be the braue atchieuements doen by some?
Where be the battels, where the shield and speare,
And all the conquests, which them high did reare,
That matter made for famous Poets verse,
And boastfull men so oft abasht to heare?
Bene they all dead, and laid in dolefull herse?
Or doen they onely sleepe, and shall againe reuerse?

If they be dead, then woe is me therefore:
But if they sleepe, O let them soone awake:
For all too long I burne with enuy sore,
To heare the warlike feates, which Homere spake
Of bold Penthesilee, which made a lake
Of Greekish bloud so oft in Troian plaine;
But when I read, how stout Debora strake
Proud Sisera, and how Camill' hath slaine
The huge Orsilochus, I swell with great disdaine.

Yet these, and all that else had puissaunce,
Cannot with noble Britomart compare,
Aswell for glory of great valiaunce,
As for pure chastitie and vertue rare,
That all her goodly deeds do well declare.
Well worthy stock, from which the branches sprong,
That in late yeares so faire a blossome bare,
As thee, O Queene, the matter of my song,
Whose lignage from this Lady I deriue along.

Who when through speaches with the Redcrosse knight, iv
 She learned had th'estate of Arthegall,
 And in each point her selfe informd aright,
 A friendly league of loue perpetuall
 She with him bound, and Congé tooke withall.
 Then he forth on his iourney did proceede,
 To seeke aduentures, which mote him befall,
 And win him worship through his warlike deed,
 Which alwayes of his paines he made the chiefest meed.

But Britomart kept on her former course, v
 Ne euer dofte her armes, but all the way
 Grew pensiue through that amorous discourse,
 By which the Redcrosse knight did earst display
 Her louers shape, and cheualrous aray;
 A thousand thoughts she fashioned in her mind,
 And in her feigning fancie did pourtray
 Him such, as fittest she for loue could find,
 Wise, warlike, personable, curteous, and kind.

With such selfe-pleasing thoughts her wound she fed, vi
 And thought so to beguile her grievous smart;
 But so her smart was much more grievous bred,
 And the deepe wound more deepe engord her hart,
 That nought but death her dolour mote depart.
 So forth she rode without repose or rest,
 Searching all lands and each remotest part,
 Follo the guidaunce of her blinded guest,
 Till that sea-coast at length she her addrest.

There she aighted from her light-foot beast, vii
 And sitting downe vpon the rocky shore,
 Bad her old Squire vnlace her lofty creast;
 Tho hauing vewd a while the surges hore,
 That gainst the craggy cliffs did loudly rore,
 And in their raging surquedry disdaynd,
 That the fast earth affronted them so sore,
 And their deuouring couetize restraynd,
 Thereat she sighed deepe, and after thus complaynd.

v 8 she] he 1590

Huge sea of sorrow, and tempestuous grieve,
 Wherein my feeble barke is tossed long,
 Far from the hoped haue of reliefe,
 Why do thy cruell billowes beat so strong,
 And thy moyst mountaines each on others throng,
 Threatning to swallow vp my fearefull life?
 O do thy cruell wrath and spightfull wrong
 At length allay, and stint thy stormy strife,
 Which in these troubled bowels raignes, and rageth rife.

viii

For else my feeble vessell crazd, and crackt
 Through thy strong buffets and outrageous blowes,
 Cannot endure, but needs it must be wrackt
 On the rough rocks, or on the sandy shallowes,
 The whiles that loue it steres, and fortune rowes;
 Loue my lewd Pilot hath a restlesse mind
 And fortune Boteswaine no assuraunce knowes,
 But saile withouten starres gainst tide and wind:
 How can they other do, sith both are bold and blind?

ix

Thou God of winds, that raignest in the seas,
 That raignest also in the Continent,
 At last blow vp some gentle gale of ease,
 The which may bring my ship, ere it be rent,
 Vnto the gladsome port of her intent:
 Then when I shall my selfe in safety see,
 A table for eternall moniment
 Of thy great grace, and my great ieopardee,
 Great Neptune, I auow to hallow vnto thee.

x

Then sighing softly sore, and inly deepe,
 She shut vp all her plaint in priuy grieve;
 For her great courage would not let her weepe,
 Till that old Glauce gan with sharpe reprieve,
 Her to restraine, and giue her good reliefe,
 Through hope of those, which Merlin had her told Should of her name and nation be chiefe,
 And fetch their being from the sacred mould
 Of her immortall wombe, to be in heauen enrold.

xi

Thus as she her recomforted, she spyde,
Where farre away one all in armour bright,
With hastie gallop towards her did ryde;
Her dolour soone she ceast, and on her dight
Her Helmet, to her Courser mounting light:
Her former sorrow into suddein wrath,
Both coosen passions of distroubled spright,
Conuerting, forth she beates the dustie path;
Loue and despight attonce her courage kindled hath.

xii

As when a foggy mist hath ouercast
The face of heauen, and the cleare aire engrost,
The world in darkenesse dwels, till that at last
The watry Southwinde from the seabord cost
Vpblowing, doth disperse the vapour lo'st,
And poures it selfe forth in a stormy showre;
So the faire Britomart hauing disclo'st
Her clowdy care into a wrathfull stowre,
The mist of grieve dissolu'd, did into vengeance powre.

xiii

Eftsoones her goodly shield addressing faire,
That mortall speare she in her hand did take,
And vnto battell did her selfe prepaire.
The knight approching, sternely her bespake;
Sir knight, that doest thy voyage rashly make
By this forbidden way in my despight,
Ne doest by others death ensample take,
I read thee soone retyre, whiles thou hast might,
Least afterwards it be too late to take thy flight.

xiv

Ythrild with deepe disdaine of his proud threat,
She shortly thus; Fly they, that need to fly;
Words fearen babes. I meane not thee entreat
To passe; but maugre thee will passe or dy.
Ne lenger stayd for th'other to reply,
But with sharpe speare the rest made dearly knowne.
Strongly the straunge knight ran, and sturdily
Strooke her full on the brest, that made her downe Decline her head, and touch her crouper with her crowne.

xv

xiii 9 did om. 1596 powre, 1596 xv 6 speares 1590, 1596

But she againe him in the shield did smite
 With so fierce furie and great puissaunce,
 That through his threesquare scuchin percing quite,
 And through his mayled hauberque, by mischaunce
 The wicked steele through his left side did glaunce;
 Him so transfixed she before her bore
 Beyond his croupe, the length of all her launce,
 Till sadly soucing on the sandie shore,
 He tombled on an heape, and wallowd in his gore.

xvi

Like as the sacred Oxe, that carelesse stands,
 With gilden hornes, and flowry girlonds crownd,
 Proud of his dying honor and deare bands,
 Whiles th'altars fume with frankincense arownd,
 All suddenly with mortall stroke astownd,
 Doth groueling fall, and with his streaming gore
 Distaines the pillours, and the holy grownd,
 And the faire flowres, that decked him afore;
 So fell proud Marinell vpon the pretious shore.

xvii

The martiall Mayd stayd not him to lament,
 But forward rode, and kept her readie way
 Along the strond, which as she ouer-went,
 She saw bestrowed all with rich aray
 Of pearles and pretious stones of great assay,
 And all the grauell mixt with golden owre;
 Whereat she wondred much, but would not stay
 For gold, or perles, or pretious stones an howre,
 But them despised all; for all was in her powre.

xviii

Whiles thus he lay in deadly stonishment,
 Tydings hereof came to his mothers eare;
 His mother was the blacke-browd Cymoent,
 The daughter of great Nereus, which did beare
 This warlike sonne vnto an earthly peare.
 The famous Dumarin; who on a day
 Finding the Nymph a sleepe in secret wheare,
 As he by chaunce did wander that same way,
 Was taken with her loue, and by her closely lay.

xix

There he this knight of her begot, whom borne
 She of his father Marinell did name,
 And in a rocky caue as wight forlorne,
 Long time she fostred vp, till he became A mightie man at armes, and mickle fame
 Did get through great aduentures by him donne:
 For neuer man he suffred by that same
Rich strond to trauell, whereas he did wonne,
 But that he must do battell with the Sea-nymphes sonne.

An hundred knights of honorable name
 He had subdew'd, and them his vassals made,
 That through all Farie lond his noble fame
 Now blazed was, and feare did all inuade,
 That none durst passen through that perilous glade.
 And to aduance his name and glorie more,
 Her Sea-god syre she dearely did perswade,
 T'endow her sonne with treasure and rich store,
 Boue all the sonnes, that were of earthly wombes ybore.

The God did graunt his daughters deare demaund,
 To doen his Nephew in all riches flow;
 Eftsoones his heaped waues he did commaund,
 Out of their hollow bosome forth to throw
 All the huge treasure, which the sea below
 Had in his greedie gulfe deuoured deepe,
 And him enriched through the ouerthrow
 And wreckes of many wretches, which did weepe,
 And often waile their wealth, which he from them did keepe.

Shortly vpon that shore there heaped was,
 Exceeding riches and all pretious things,
 The spoyle of all the world, that it did pas
 The wealth of th'East, and pompe of Persian kings;
 Gold, amber, yuorie, perles, owches, rings,
 And all that else was pretious and deare,
 The sea vnto him voluntary brings,
 That shortly he a great Lord did appeare,
 As was in all the lond of Faery, or elsewheare.

Thereto he was a doughtie dreaded knight,
 Tryde often to the scath of many deare,
 That none in equall armes him matchen might,
 The which his mother seeing, gan to feare
 Least his too haughtie hardines might reare
 Some hard mishap, in hazard of his life:
 For thy she oft him counsell'd to forbear
 The bloudie battell, and to stirre vp strife,
 But after all his warre, to rest his wearie knife.

xxiv

And for his more assurance, she inquir'd
 One day of Proteus by his mightie spell,
 (For Proteus was with prophecie inspir'd)
 Her deare sonnes destinie to her to tell,
 And the sad end of her sweet Marinell.
 Who through foresight of his eternall skill,
 Bad her from womankind to keepe him well:
 For of a woman he should haue much ill,
 A virgin strange and stout him should dismay, or kill.

xxv

For thy she gaue him warning euery day,
 The loue of women not to entertaing;
 A lesson too too hard for liuing clay,
 From loue in course of nature to refraine:
 Yet he his mothers lore did well retaine,
 And euer from faire Ladies loue did fly;
 Yet many Ladies faire did oft complaine,
 That they for loue of him would algates dy:
 Dy, who so list for him, he was loues enemy.

xxvi

But ah, who can deceiue his destiny,
 Or weene by warning to auoyd his fate?
 That when he sleepes in most security,
 And safest seemes, him soonest doth amate,
 And findeth dew effect or soone or late.
 So feeble is the powre of fleshly arme.
 His mother bad him womens loue to hate,
 For she of womans force did feare no harme;
 So weening to haue arm'd him, she did quite disarm.

xxvii

This was that woman, this that deadly wound,
That Proteus prophecide should him dismay,
The which his mother vainely did expound,
To be hart-wounding loue, which should assay
To bring her sonne vnto his last decay.
So tickle be the termes of mortall state,
And full of subtile sophismes, which do play
With double senses, and with false debate,
T'approue the vnknownen purpose of eternall fate.

Too true the famous Marinell it fownd,
Who through late triall, on that wealthy Strond
Inglorious now lies in senselesse swownd,
Through heauy stroke of Britomartis hond.
Which when his mother deare did vnderstand,
And heauy tydings heard, whereas she playd
Amongst her watry sisters by a pond,
Gathering sweet daffadillyes, to haue made
Gay girlonds, from the Sun their foreheads faire to shade;

Eftsoones both flowres and girlonds farre away
She flong, and her faire deawy lockes yrent,
To sorrow huge she turnd her former play,
And gamesom merth to grieuous dreriment:
She threw her selfe downe on the Continent,
Ne word did speake, but lay as in a swowne,
Whiles all her sisters did for her lament,
With yelling outcries, and with shrieking sowne;
And euery one did teare her girlond from her crowne.

Soone as she vp out of her deadly fit Arose, she bad her charet to be brought,
And all her sisters, that with her did sit,
Bad eke attonce their charets to be sought;
Tho full of bitter griefe and pensiue thought,
She to her wagon clombe; clombe all the rest,
And forth together went, with sorrow fraught.
The waues obedient to their beheast,
Them yielded readie passage, and their rage surceast.

Great Neptune stood amazed at their sight,
 Whiles on his broad round backe they softly slid
 And eke himselfe mournd at their mournfull plight,
 Yet wist not what their wailing ment, yet did
 For great compassion of their sorrow, bid
 His mightie waters to them buxome bee:
 Eftsoones the roaring billowes still abid,
 And all the griesly Monsters of the See Stood gaping at their gate, and wondred them to see.

xxxii

A teme of Dolphins raunged in aray,
 Drew the smooth charet of sad Cymoent;
 They were all taught by Triton, to obay
 To the long raynes, at her commaundement:
 As swift as swallowes, on the waues they went,
 That their broad flaggie finnes no fome did reare,
 Ne bubbling roundell they behind them sent;
 The rest of other fishes drawen weare,
 Which with their finny oars the swelling sea did sheare.

xxxiii

Soone as they bene arriu'd vpon the brim
 Of the Rich strond, their charets they forlore,
 And let their temed fishes softly swim
 Along the margent of the fomy shore,
 Least they their finnes should bruze, and surbate sore
 Their tender feet vpon the stony ground:
 And comming to the place, where all in gore
 And cruddy bloud enwallowed they found
 The lucklesse Marinell, lying in deadly swound;

xxxiv

His mother swowned thrise, and the third time
 Could scarce recouered be out of her paine;
 Had she not bene deuoyd of mortall slime,
 She should not then haue bene reliu'd againe,
 But soone as life recouered had the raine,
 She made so piteous mone and deare wayment,
 That the hard rocks could scarce from teares refraine,
 And all her sister Nymphes with one consent Supplide her sobbing breaches with sad complement.

xxxv

Deare image of my selfe (she said) that is,
 The wretched sonne of wretched mother borne,
 Is this thine high aduancement, O is this Th'immortall name, with which thee yet vnborne
 Thy Gransire Nereus promist to adorne?
 Now lyst thou of life and honor rest;
 Now lyst thou a lumpe of earth forlorne,
 Ne of thy late life memory is left,
 Ne can thy irreuocable destiny be west?

xxxvi

Fond Proteus, father of false prophecis,
 And they more fond, that credit to thee giue,
 Not this the worke of womans hand ywis,
 That so deepe wound through these deare members driue.
 I feared loue: but they that loue do liue,
 But they that die, doe neither loue nor hate.
 Nath'lesse to thee thy folly I forgiue,
 And to my selfe, and to accursed fate
 The guilt I doe ascribe: deare wisdomes bought too late.

xxxvii

O what auails it of immortall seed
 To beene ybred and neuer borne to die?
 Farre better I it deeme to die with speed,
 Then waste in woe and wailefull miserie.
 Who dyes the vtmost dolour doth aby, e,
 But who that liues, is left to waile his losse:
 So life is losse, and death felicitie.
 Sad life worse then glad death: and greater crosse
 To see friends graue, then dead the graue selfe to engrosse.

xxxviii

But if the heauens did his dayes enuie,
 And my short blisse maligne, yet mote they well
 Thus much afford me, ere that he did die
 That the dim eyes of my deare Marinell
 I mote haue closed, and him bed farewell,
 Sith other offices for mother meet
 They would not graunt.

xxxix

Yet maulgre them farewell, my sweetest sweet;
 Farewell my sweetest sonne, sith we no more shall meet.

Thus when they all had sorrow'd their fill,
 They softly gan to search his griesly wound:
 And that they might him handle more at will,
 They him disarm'd, and spredding on the ground
 Their watchet mantles frindgd with siluer round,
 They softly wipt away the gelly blood
 From th'orifice; which hauing well vpbound,
 They pou'd in soueraine balme, and Nectar good,
 Good both for earthly med'cine, and for heavenly food.

xi

Tho when the lilly handed Liagore,
 (This Liagore whylome had learned skill
 In leaches craft, by great Appolloes lore,
 Sith her whylome vpon high Pindus hill,
 He loued, and at last her wombe d.d fill
 With heavenly seed, whereof wise Pæon sprong)
 Did feele his pulse, she knew their staid still Some litle life his feeble sprites emong;
 Which to his mother told, despeire she from her song.

xii

Tho vp him taking in their tender hands,
 They easily vnto her charet beare:
 Her teme at her commaundement quiet stands,
 Whiles they the corse into her wagon reare,
 And strow with flowres the lamentable beare:
 Then all the rest into their coches clim,
 And through the brackish waues their passage sheare;
 Vpon great Neptunes necke they softly swim,
 And to her watry chamber swiftly carry him.

Deepe in the bottome of the sea, her bowre
 Is built of hollow billowes heaped hye,
 Like to thicke cloudes, that threat a stormy showre,
 And vaulted all within, like to the sky,
 In which the Gods do dwell eternally:
 There they him laid in easie couch well dight;
 And sent in haste for Tryphon, to apply Salues to his wounds, and medicines of might:
 For Tryphon of sea gods the soueraine leach is hight.

The whiles the Nymphes sit all about him round,
 Lamenting his mishap and heauy plight;
 And oft his mother vewing his wide wound,
 Cursed the hand, that did so deadly smight
 Her dearest sonne, her dearest harts delight.
 But none of all those curses ouertooke
 The warlike Maid, th'ensample of that might,
 But fairely well she thriu'd, and well did brooke
 Her noble deeds, ne her right course for ought forsooke.

Yet did false Archimage her still pursew,
 To bring to passe his mischieuous intent,
 Now that he had her singled from the crew
 Of courteous knights, the Prince, and Faery gent,
 Whom late in chace of beautie excellent
 She left, pursewing that same foster strong;
 Of whose foule outrage they impatient,
 And full of fiery zeale, him followed long,
 To reskew her from shame, and to reuenge her wrong.

Through thick and thin, through mountaines and through Those two great champions did attonce pursew (plains,
 The fearefull damzell, with incessant paines :
 Who from them fled, as light-foot hare from vew
 Of hunter swift, and sent of houndes trew.
 At last they came vnto a double way,
 Where, doubtfull which to take, her to reskew,
 Themselues they did dispart, each to assay,
 Whether more happie were, to win so goodly pray.

But Timias, the Princes gentle Squire,
 That Ladies loue vnto his Lord forlent,
 And with proud enuy, and indignant ire,
 After that wicked foster fiercely went.
 So beene they three three sundry wayes ybent.
 But fairest fortune to the Prince befell,
 Whose chaunce it was, that soone he did repent,
 To take that way, in which that Damozell
 Was fled afore, affraid of him, as feend of hell.

xlii 5 hunters 1609 xlvii 7 repeat 1609

At last of her farre off he gained vew :

Then gan he freshly pricke his fomy steed,
And euer as he nigher to her drew,
So euermore he did increase his speed,
And of each turning still kept warie heed :
Aloud to her he oftentimes did call,
To doe away vaine doubt, and needlesse dreed :
Full myld to her he spake, and oft let fall
Many meeke wordes, to stay and comfort her withall.

But nothing might relent her hastie flight ;
So deepe the deadly feare of that foule swaine
Was earst impressed in her gentle spright :
Like as a fearefull Doue, which through the raine,
Of the wide aire her way does cut amaine,
Hauing farre off espyde a Tassell gent,
Which after her his nimble wings doth straine,
Doubleth her haste for feare to be for-hent,
And with her pineons cleaues the liquid firmament.

With no lesse haste, and eke with no lesse dreed,
That fearefull Ladie fled from him, that ment
To her no euill thought, nor euill deed ;
Yet former feare of being fowly shent,
Carried her forward with her first intent :
And though oft looking backward, well she vewd,
Her selfe freed from that foster insolent,
And that it was a knight, which now her sewd,
Yet she no lesse the knight feared, then that villein rude.

His vncouth shield and straunge armes her dismayd,
Whose like in Faery lond were seldome seene,
That fast she from him fled, no lesse affrayd,
Then of wilde beastes if she had chased beene :
Yet he her followd still with courage keene,
So long that now the golden Hesperus
Was mounted high in top of heauen sheene,
And warnd his other brethren ioyeous,
To light their blessed lamps in Ioues eternall hous.

All suddenly dim woxe the dampish ayre,
 And griesly shadowes couered heauen bright,
 That now with thousand starres was decked fayre;
 Which when the Prince beheld, a lothfull sight,
 And that perforce, for want of lenger light,
 He mote surcease his suit, and lose the hope
 Of his long labour, he gan fowly wyte
 His wicked fortune, that had turnd aslope,
 And cursed night, that reft from him so goodly scope.

Tho when her wayes he could no more descry,
 But to and fro at disauenture strayd;
 Like as a ship, whose Lodestarre suddenly
 Couered with cloudes, her Pilot hath dismayd;
 His wearisome pursuit perforce he stayd,
 And from his loftie steed dismounting low,
 Did let him forage. Downe himselfe he layd
 Vpon the grassie ground, to sleepe a throw;
 The cold earth was his couch, the hard steele his pillow.

But gentle Sleepe enuyde him any rest;
 In stead thereof sad sorrow, and disdaine
 Of his hard hap did vexe his noble brest,
 And thousand fancies bet his idle braine
 With their light wings, the sights of semblants vaine:
 Oft did he wish, that Lady faire mote bee
 His Faery Queene, for whom he did complaine:
 Or that his Faery Queene were such, as shee:
 And euer hastie Night he blamed bitterlie.

Night thou foule Mother of annoyance sad,
 Sister of heauie death, and nourse of woe,
 Which wast begot in heauen, but for thy bad
 And brutish shape thrust downe to hell below,
 Where by the grim floud of Cocytus slow
 Thy dwelling is, in Herebus blacke hous, (Blacke Herebus thy husband is the foe
 Of all the Gods) where thou vngratious,
 Halfe of thy dayes doest lead in horreur hideous.

What had th'eternall Maker need of thee, lvi
 The world in his continuall course to keepe,
 That doest all things deface, ne lettest see
 The beautie of his worke? Indeed in sleepe
 The slouthfull bodie, that doth loue to steepe
 His lustlesse limbes, and drowne his baser mind,
 Doth praise thee oft, and oft from Stygian deepe
 Calles thee, his goddesse in his error blind,
 And great Dame Natures handmaide, chearing euery kind.

But well I wote, that to an heauy hart lvii
 Thou art the root and nurse of bitter cares,
 Breeder of new, renewer of old smarts:
 In stead of rest thou lendest rayling teares,
 In stead of sleepe thou sendest troublous feares,
 And dreadfull visions, in the which alieue
 The drearie image of sad death appeares:
 So from the wearie spirit thou doest driue
 Desired rest, and men of happinesse depriue.

Vnder thy mantle blacke there hidden lye, lviii
 Light-shonning theft, and traiterous intent,
 Abhorred bloudshed, and vile felony,
 Shamefull deceipt, and daunger imminent;
 Foule horror, and eke hellish dreriment:
 All these I wote in thy protection bee,
 And light doe shonne, for feare of being shent:
 For light ylike is loth'd of them and thee,
 And all that lewdnesse loue, doe hate the light to see.

For day discouers all dishonest wayes, lix
 And sheweth each thing, as it is indeed:
 The prayes of high God he faire displayes,
 And his large bountie rightly doth areed.
 Dayes dearest children be the blessed seed,
 Which darknesse shall subdew, and heauen win:
 Truth is his daughter; he her first did breed,
 Most sacred virgin, without spot of sin.
 Our life is day, but death with darknesse doth begin.

lix 5 Dayes dearest children] The children of day 1590

O when will day then turne to me againe,
 And bring with him his long expected light?
 O Titan, haste to reare thy ioyous waine:
 Speed thee to spred abroad thy beames bright,
 And chase away this too long lingring night,
 Chase her away, from whence she came, to hell.
 She, she it is, that hath me done despight:
 There let her with the damned spirits dwell,
 And yeeld her roome to day, that can it gouerne well.

Thus did the Prince that wearie night outweare,
 In restlesse anguish and vnquiet paine:
 And carely, ere the morrow did vpreare
 His deawy head out of the Ocean maine,
 He vp arose, as halfe in great disdaine,
 And clombe vnto his steed. So forth he went,
 With heauie looke and lumpish pace, that plaine
 In him bewraid great grudge and maltalent:
 His steed eke seem'd t'apply his steps to his intent.

Cant. V.

Prince Artbur beares of Florimell:
 three fosters Timias wound, Belphebe finds him almost dead,
 and reareth out of sownd.

Wonder it is to see, in diuerse minds,
 How diuersly loue doth his pageants play,
 And shewes his powre in variable kinds:
 The baser wit, whose idle thoughts alway
 Are wont to cleaue vnto the lowly clay,
 It stirreth vp to sensuall desire,
 And in lewd slouth to wast his carelesse day:
 But in braue sprite it kindles goodly fire,
 That to all high desert and honour doth aspire.

lx 4 right? 1590, 1596 Arg. 4 wound 1609

Ne suffereth it vncomely idlenesse,
 In his free thought to build her sluggish nest:
 Ne suffereth it thought of vngentlenesse,
 Euer to creepe into his noble brest,
 But to the highest and the worthiest
 Lifteth it vp, that else would lowly fall:
 It lets not fall, it lets it not to rest:
 It lets not scarce this Prince to breath at all,
 But to his first poursuit him forward still doth call.

Who long time wandred through the forrest wyde,
 To finde some issue thence, till that at last
 He met a Dwarfe, that seemed terrifyde
 With some late perill, which he hardly past,
 Or other accident, which him aghast;
 Of whom he asked, whence he lately came,
 And whither now he trauelled so fast:
 For sore he swat, and running through that same
 Thicke forest, was bescratcht, and both his feet nigh lame.

Panting for breath, and almost out of hart,
 The Dwarfe him answerd, Sir, ill mote I stay
 To tell the same. I lately did depart
 From Faery court, where I haue many a day
 Serued a gentle Lady of great sway,
 And high accompt through out all Elfin land,
 Who lately left the same, and tooke this way:
 Her now I seeke, and if ye vnderstand
 Which way she fared hath, good Sir tell out of hand.

What mister wight (said he) and how arayd?
 Royally clad (quoth he) in cloth of gold,
 As meetest may beseeme a noble mayd;
 Her faire lockes in rich circlet be enrold,
 A fairer wig...t did neuer Sunne behold,
 And on a Palfrey rides more white then snow,
 Yet she her selfe is whiter manifold:
 The surest signe, whereby ye may her know,
 Is, that she is the fairest wight aliuie, I trow.

Now certes swaine (said he) such one I weene,
 Fast flying through this forest from her fo,
 A foule ill fauoured foster, I haue seene;
 Her selfe, well as I might, I reskewd tho,
 But could not stay; so fast she did foregoe,
 Carried away with wings of speedy feare.
 Ah dearest God (quoth he) that is great woe,
 And wondrous ruth to all, that shall it heare.
 But can ye read Sir, how I may her find, or where?

Perdy me leuer were to weeten that,
 (Said he) then ransome of the richest knight,
 Or all the good that euer yet I gat:
 But froward fortune, and too forward Night
 Such happinesse did, maulgre, to me spight,
 And fro me reft both life and light attone.
 But Dwarfe aread, what is that Lady bright,
 That through this forest wandreth thus alone;
 For of her errour straunge I haue great ruth and mone.

That Lady is (quoth he) where so she bee,
 The bountiest virgin, and most debonaire,
 That euer liuing eye I weene did see;
 Liues none this day, that may with her compare
 In stedfast chastitie and vertue rare,
 The goodly ornaments of beautie bright;
 And is ycleped Florimell the faire,
 Faire Florimell belou'd of many a knight,
 Yet she loues none but one, that Marinell is hight.

A Sea-nymphes sonne, that Marinell is hight,
 Of my deare Dame is loued dearely well;
 In other none, but him, she sets delight,
 All her delight is set on Marinell;
 But he sets nought at all by Florimell:
 For Ladies loue his mother long ygoe
 Did him, they say, forwarne through sacred spell.
 But fame now flies, that of a forreine foe
 He is yslaine, which is the ground of all our woe.

vi 9 where. 1590, 1596 viii 8 belou'd of a 1596

Fiue dayes there be, since he (they say) was slaine,
 And foure, since Florimell the Court for-went,
 And vowed neuer to returne againe,
 Till him aliue or dead she did inuent.
 Therefore, faire Sir, for loue of knighthood gent,
 And honour of trew Ladies, if ye may
 By your good counsell, or bold hardiment,
 Or succour her, or me direct the way;
 Do one, or other good, I you most humbly pray.

So may ye gaine to you full great renowme,
 Of all good Ladies through the world so wide,
 And haply in her hart find highest rowme,
 Of whom ye seeke to be most magnifide:
 At least eternall meede shall you abide.
 To whom the Prince; Dwarfe, comfort to thee take,
 For till thou tidings learne, what her betide,
 I here auow thee neuer to forsake.

Ill weares he armes, that nill them vse for Ladies sake.

So with the Dwarfe he backe return'd againe,
 To seeke his Lady, where he mote her find;
 But by the way he greatly gan complaine
 The want of his good Squire late left behind,
 For whom he wondrous pensieue grew in mind,
 For doubt of daunger, which mote him betide;
 For him he loued aboue all mankind,
 Hauing him trew and faithfull euer tride,
 And bold, as euer Squire that waited by knights side.

Who all this while full hardly was assayd
 Of deadly daunger, which to him betid;
 For whiles his Lord pursewd that noble Mayd,
 After that foster fowle he fiercely rid,
 To bene auenged of the shame, he did
 To that faire Damzell: Him he chaced long
 Through the thicke woods, wherein he would haue hid
 His shamefull head from his auengement strong,
 And oft him threatned death for his outrageous wrong.

Nathlesse the villen sped him selfe so well,
 Whether through swiftnesse of his speedy beast,
 Or knowledge of those woods, where he did dwell,
 That shortly he from daunger was releast,
 And out of sight escaped at the least;
 Yet not escaped from the dew reward
 Of his bad deeds, which dayly he increast,
 Ne ceased not, till him oppressed hard
 The heauy plague, that for such leachours is prepard.

For soone as he was vanisht out of sight,
 His coward courage gan emboldned bee,
 And cast t'auenge him of that fowle despight,
 Which he had borne of his bold enimee.
 Tho to his brethren came: for they were three Vngratious children of one gracelesse sire,
 And vnto them complained, how that he Had vsed bene of that foolehardy Squire;
 So them with bitter words he stird to bloody ire.

Forthwith themselues with their sad instruments
 Of spoyle and murder they gan arme byliue,
 And with him forth into the forest went,
 To wreake the wrath, which he did earst reuiue
 In th^e sterne brests, on him which late did driue
 Their brother to reproch and shamefull flight:
 For they had vow'd, that neuer he aliue
 Out of that forest should escape their might;
 Vile rancour their rude harts had fild with such despight.

Within that wood there was a couert glade,
 Foreby a narrow foord, to them well knowne,
 Through which it was vneath for wight to wade;
 And now by fortune it was ouerflowne:
 By that same way they knew that Squire vnknowne
 Mote algates passe; for thy themselues they set
 There in await, with thicke woods ouer growne,
 And all the while their malice they did whet
 With cruell threats, his passage through the ford to let.

xiv 2 be . . ; 1590, 1596 xvii 3 wade] made 1590: corr. F. E.

It fortun'd, as they deuized had,
 The gentle Squire came ryding that same way,
 Vnweeting of their wile and treason bad,
 And through the ford to passen did assay;
 But that fierce foster, which late fled away,
 Stoutly forth stepping on the further shore,
 Him boldly bad his passage there to stay,
 Till he had made amends, and full restore
 For all the damage, which he had him doen afore.

xviii

With that at him a quiu'ring dart he threw,
 With so fell force and villeinous despighte,
 That through his habericon the forkehead flew,
 And through the linked mayles empierced quite,
 But had no powre in his soft flesh to bite:
 That stroke the hardy Squire did sore displease,
 But more that him he could not come to smite;
 For by no meanes the high banke he could sease,
 But labour'd long in that deepe ford with vaine disease.

xix

And still the foster with his long bore-speare
 Him kept from landing at his wished will;
 Anone one sent out of the thicket neare
 A cruell shaft, headed with deadly ill,
 And fettered with an vnlucky quill;
 The wicked steele stayd not, till it did light
 In his left thigh, and deeply did it thrill:
 Exceeding grieve that wound in him empight,
 But more that with his foes he could not come to fight.

xx

At last through wrath and vengeance making way,
 He on the bancke arriu'd with mickle paine,
 Where the third brother him did sore assay,
 And droue at him with all his might and maine
 A forrest bill, which both his hands did straine;
 But warily he did auoide the blow,
 And with his speare requited him againe,
 That both his sides were thrilled with the throw,
 And a large streame of bloud out of the wound did flow.

xxi

xix 3 habericon 1590 5 no] now 1590 xxi 9 bloud] flood 1590

He tomling downe, with gnashing teeth did bite
 The bitter earth, and bad to let him in
 Into the balefull house of endlesse night,
 Where wicked ghosts do waile their former sin.
 Tho gan the battell freshly to begin;
 For nathemore for that spectacle bad,
 Did th'other two their cruell vengeance blin,
 But both attonce on both sides him bestad,
 And load vpon him layd, his life for to haue had.

Tho when that villain he auiz'd, which late
 Affrighted had the fairest Florimell,
 Full of fiers fury, and indignant hate,
 To him he turned, and with rigour fell
 Smote him so rudely on the Pannikell,
 That to the chin he cleft his head in twaine:
 Downe on the ground his carkas groueling fell;
 His sinfull soule with desperate disdaine,
 Out of her fleshly ferme fled to the place of paine.

That seeing now the onely last of three,
 Who with that wicked shaft him wounded had,
 Trembling with horreur, as that did foresee
 The fearefull end of his auengement sad,
 Through which he follow should his brethren bad,
 His bootelesse bow in feeble hand vпчаught,
 And therewith shot an arrow at the lad;
 Which faintly fluttring, scarce his helmet raught,
 And glauncing fell to ground, but him annoyed naught.

With that he would haue fled into the wood;
 But Timias him lightly ouerhent,
 Right as he entring was into the flood,
 And strooke at him with force so violent,
 That headlesse him into the foord he sent:
 The carkas with the streame was carried downe,
 But th'head fell backward on the Continent.
 So mischief fel vpon the meaners crowne;
 They three be dead with shame, the Squire liues with renowne.

He liues, but takes small ioy of his renowne;
 For of that cruell wound he bled so sore,
 That from his steed he fell in deadly swowne;
 Yet still the bloud forth gusht in so great store,
 That he lay wallowd all in his owne gore.
 Now God thee keepe, thou gentlest Squire aliue,
 Else shall thy louing Lord thee see no more,
 But both of comfort him thou shalt depriue,
 And eke thy selfe of honour, which thou didst atchiue.

xxvi

Prouidence heauenly passeth liuing thought,
 And doth for wretched mens reliefe make way;
 For loe great grace or fortune thither brought Comfort to him, that comfortlesse now lay.
 In those same woods, ye well remember may,
 How that a noble hunteresse did wonne,
 She, that base Braggadochio did affray,
 And made him fast out of the forrest runne;
Belphebe was her name, as faire as Phabus sunne.

xxvii

She on a day, as she pursewd the chace
 Of some wild beast, which with her arrowes keene
 She wounded had, the same along did trace
 By tract of bloud, which she had freshly seene,
 To haue besprinckled all the grassy greene;
 By the great persue, which she there perceau'd,
 Well hoped she the beast engor'd had beene,
 And made more hast, the life to haue bereau'd:
 But ah, her expectation greatly was deceau'd.

xxviii

Shortly she came, whereas that wofull Squire
 With bloud deformed, lay in deadly swownd:
 In whose faire eyes, like lamps of quenched fire,
 The Christall humour stood congeal'd rownd;
 His locks, like faded leaues fallen to grownd,
 Knotted with bloud, in bouches rudely ran,
 And his sweete lips, on which before that stownd
 The bud of youth to blossome faire began,
 Spoild of their rosie red, were woxen pale and wan.

xxix

xxvi Saw neuer liuing eye more heauy sight,
 That could haue made a rocke of stone to rew,
 Or riue in twaine: which when that Lady bright
 Besides all hope with melting eyes did vew,
 All suddainly abasht she chaunged hew,
 And with sterne horror backward gan to start:
 But when she better him beheld, she grew
 Full of soft passion and vnwonted smart:
 The point of pittie perced through her tender hart.

xxvii Meekely she bowed downe, to weete if life
 Yet in his frosen members did remaine,
 And feeling by his pulses beating rife,
 That the weake soule her seat did yet retaine,
 She cast to comfort him with busie paine:
 His double folded necke she reard vpright,
 And rubd his temples, and each trembling vaine;
 His mayled habericon she did vndight,
 And from his head his heauy burganet did light.

xxviii Into the woods thenceforth in hast she went,
 To seeke for hearbes, that mote him remedy;
 For she of hearbes had great intendiment,
 Taught of the Nymphe, which from her infancy
 Her nourced had in trew Nobility:
 There, whether it diuine Tobacco were,
 Or Panachea, or Polygony,
 She found, and brought it to her patient deare
 Who al this while lay bleeding out his hart-bloud neare.

xxix The soueraigne weede betwixt two marbles plaine
 She pwnded small, and did in peeces bruze,
 And then atweene her lilly handes twaine,
 Into his wound the iuyce thereof did scruze,
 And round about, as she could well it vze,
 The flesh therewith she suppld and did steepe,
 T'abate all spasme, and soke the swelling bruze,
 And after hauing searcht the intuse deepe,
 She with her scarfe did bind the wound from cold to keepe.

By this he had sweete life recur'd againe,
 And groning inly deepe, at last his eyes,
 His watry eyes, drizling like deawy raine,
 He vp gan lift toward the azure skies,
 From whence descend all hopelesse remedies:
 Therewith he sigh'd, and turning him aside,
 The goodly Mayd full of diuinities,
 And gifts of heauenly grace he by him spide,
 Her bow and gilden quiuer lying him beside.

xxxiv

Mercy deare Lord (said he) what grace is this,
 That thou hast shewed to me sinfull wight,
 To send thine Angell from her bowre of blis,
 To comfort me in my distressed plight?
 Angell, or Goddessesse do I call thee right?
 What seruice may I do vnto thee meete,
 That hast from darkenesse me returnd to light,
 And with thy heauenly salues and med'cines sweete,
 Hast drest my sinfull wounds? I kisse thy blessed feete.

xxxv

Thereat she blushing said, Ah gentle Squire,
 Nor Goddessesse I, nor Angell, but the Mayd,
 And daughter of a woody Nymph, desire
 No seruice, but thy safety and ayd;
 Which if thou gaine, I shalbe well apayd.
 We mortall wights, whose liues and fortunes bee
 To commun accidents still open layd,
 Are bound with commun bond of frailtee,
 To succour wretched wights, whom we captiued see.

By this her Damzels, which the former chace
 Had vndertaken after her, arriu'd,
 As did Belphabe, in the bloody place,
 And thereby deemd the beast had bene depriu'd
 Of life, whom late their Ladies arrow ryu'd:
 For thy the bloody tract they follow fast,
 And euery one to runne the swiftest stryu'd;
 But two of them the rest far ouerpast,
 And where their Lady was, arriued at the last.

Where when they saw that goodly boy, with blood
 Defowled, and their Lady dresse his wownd,
 They wondred much, and shortly vnderstood,
 How him in deadly case their Lady fownd,
 And reskewed out of the heauy stownd.
 Eftsoones his warlike courser, which was strayd
 Farre in the woods, whiles that he lay in swownd,
 She made those Damzels search, which being stayd,
 They did him set thereon, and forth with them conuayd.

Into that forest farre they thence him led,
 Where was their dwelling, in a pleasant glade,
 With mountaines round about enuironed,
 And mighty woods, which did the valley shade,
 And like a stately Theatre it made,
 Spreading it selfe into a spacious plaine.
 And in the midst a little riuier plaide
 Emongst the pumy stones, which seemd to plaine
 With gentle murmure, that his course they did restraine.

Beside the same a dainty place there lay,
 Planted with mirtle trees and laurels greene,
 In which the birds song many a louely lay
 Of gods high prayse, and of their loues sweet teene,
 As it an earthly Paradize had beene:
 In whose enclosed shadow there was pight
 A faire Pavilion, scarcely to be seene,
 The which was all within most richly dight,
 That greatest Princes liuing it mote well delight.

Thither they brought that wounded Squire, and layd
 In easie couch his feeble limbes to rest,
 He rested him a while, and then the Mayd
 His ready wound with better salues new dress'd;
 Dayly she dressed him, and did the best
 His grieuous hurt to garish, that she might,
 That shortly she his dolour hath redrest,
 And his foule sore reduced to faire plight:
 It she reduced, but himselfe destroyed quight.

O foolish Physick, and vnfruitfull paine,
 That heales vp one and makes another wound:
 She his hurt thigh to him recur'd againe,
 But hurt his hart, the which before was sound,
 Through an vnwary dart, which did rebound
 From her faire eyes and gracious countenance.
 What bootes it him from death to be vnbound,
 To be captiued in endlesse duraunce
 Of sorrow and despaire without aleggeaunce?

xlii

Still as his wound did gather, and grow hole,
 So still his hart woxe sore, and health decayd:
 Madnesse to saue a part, and lose the whole.
 Still whenas he beheld the heauenly Mayd,
 Whiles dayly plaisters to his wound she layd,
 So still his Malady the more increast,
 The whiles her matchlesse beautie him dismayd.
 Ah God, what other could he do at least,
 But loue so faire a Lady, that his life releast?

xliii

Long while he stroue in his courageous brest,
 With reason dew the passion to subdew,
 And loue for to dislodge out of his nest:
 Still when her excellencies he did vew,
 Her soueraigne bounty, and celestiall hew,
 The same to loue he strongly was constraind:
 But when his meane estate he did reuue,
 He from such hardy boldnesse was restraind,
 And of his lucklesse lot and cruell loue thus plained.

xliv

Vnthankfull wretch (said he) is this the meed,
 With which her soueraigne mercy thou doest quight?
 Thy life she saued by her gracious deed,
 But thou doest weene with villeinous despight,
 To blot her honour, and her heauenly light.
 Dye rather, dye, then so disloyally
 Deeme of her high desert, or seeme so light:
 Faire death it is to shonne more shame, to dy:
 Dye rather, dy, then euer loue disloyally.

xlv

xlii

But if to loue disloyalty it bee,

xlii

Shall I then hate her, that from deathes dore
Me brought? ah farre be such reproch fro mee.

What can I lesse do, then her loue therefore,
Sith I her dew reward cannot restore?

Dye rather, dye, and dying do her serue,

Dying her serue, and liuing her adore;

Thy life she gaue, thy life she doth deserue:

Dye rather, dye, then euer from her seruice swerue.

xliii

But foolish boy, what bootes thy seruice bace

xliii

To her, to whom the heauens do serue and sew?

Thou a meane Squire, of meeke and lowly place,

She heauenly borne, and of celestiall hew.

How then? of all loue taketh equall vew:

And doth not highest God vouchsafe to take

The loue and seruice of the basest crew?

If she will not, dye meekly for her sake;

Dye rather, dye, then euer so faire loue forsake.

xliv

Thus warreid he long time against his will,

xliv

Till that through weaknesse he was forst at last,

To yield himselfe vnto the mighty ill:

Which as a victour proud, gan ransack fast

His inward parts, and all his entrayles wast,

That neither bloud in face, nor life in hart

It left, but both did quite drye vp, and blast;

As percing leuin, which the inner part

Of euery thing consumes, and calcineth by art.

xlv

Which seeing faire Belphabe, gan to feare,

xlv

Least that his wound were inly well not healed,

Or that the wicked steele empoysned were:

Litle she weend, that loue he close concealed;

Yet still he wasted, as the snow congealed,

When the bright sunne his beams thereon doth beat;

Yet neuer he his hart to her reuealed,

But rather chose to dye for sorrow great,

Then with dishonorable termes her to entreat.

xlii 5 restore : 1590 &c.

She gracious Lady, yet no paines did spare,
 To do him ease, or do him remedy:
 Many Restoratiues of vertues rare,
 And costly Cordialles she did apply,
 To mitigate his stubborne mallady:
 But that sweet Cordiall, which can restore
 A loue-sick hart, she did to him enuy;
 To him, and to all th'vnworthy world forlore
 She did enuy that soueraigne salue, in secret store.

That dainty Rose, the daughter of her Morne,
 More deare then life she tendered, whose flowre
 The girland of her honour did adorne:
 Ne suffred she the Middayes scorching powre,
 Ne the sharp Northerne wind thereon to showre,
 But lapped vp her silken leaues most chaire,
 When so the froward skye began to lowre:
 But soone as calmed was the Christall aire,
 She did it faire dispred, and let to florish faire.

Eternall God in his almighty powre,
 To make ensample of his heavenly grace,
 In Paradize whilome did plant this flowre,
 Whence he it fetcht out of her natieue place,
 And did in stocke of earthly flesh enrace,
 That mortall men her glory should admire:
 In gentle Ladies brest, and bounteous race
 Of woman kind it fairest flowre doth spire,
 And beareth fruit of honour and all chaste desire.

Faire ympes of beautie, whose bright shining beames
 Adorne the world with like to heavenly light,
 And to your willes both royalties and Realmes Subdew, through conquest of your wondrous might,
 With this faire flowre your goodly girlonds dight,
 Of chastity and vertue virginall,
 That shall embellish more your beautie bright,
 And crowne your heades with heavenly coronall,
 Such as the Angels weare before Gods tribunall.

 Of this faire virgin, this Belphebe faire,
 To whom in perfect loue, and spotlesse fame
 Of chastitie, none liuing may compaire:
 Ne poysnous Enuy iustly can empaire
 The prayse of her fresh flowring Maidenhead;
 For thy she standeth on the highest staire
 Of th'honorable stage of womanhead,
 That Ladies all may follow her ensamole dead.

In so great prayse of stedfast chastity,
 Nathlesse she was so curteous and kind,
 Tempred with grace, and goodly modesty,
 That seemed those two vertues stroue to find
 The higher place in her Heroick mind:
 So striuing each did other more augment,
 And both encreast the prayse of woman kind,
 And both encreast her beautie excellent;
 So all did make in her a perfect complement.

Cant. VI.

*The birth of faire Belphebe and Of Amoret is told.
 The Gardins of Adonis fraught
 With pleasures manifold.*

Well may I weene, faire Ladies, all this while Ye wonder, how this noble Damozell
 So great perfections did in her compile,
 Sith that in saluage forests she did dwell,
 So farre from court and royall Citadell,
 The great schoolmistresse of all curtesy:
 Seemeth that such wild woods should far expell
 All ciuill vsage and gentility,
 And gentle sprite deforme with rude rusticity.

But to this faire Belphebe in her berth
 The heauens so fauourable were and free,
 Looking with myld aspect vpon the earth,
 In th'Horoscope of her natiuitee,
 That all the gifts of grace and chastitee
 On her they poured forth of plenteous horne;
Ioue laught on Venus from his soueraigne see,
 And Phæbus with faire beames did her adorne,
 And all the Graces rockt her cradle being borne.

Her berth was of the wombe of Morning dew,
 And her conception of the ioyous Prime,
 And all her whole creation did her shew
 Pure and vnspotted from all loathly crime,
 That is ingenerate in fleshly slime.
 So was this virgin borne, so was she bred,
 So was she trayned vp from time to time,
 In all chast vertue, and true bounti-hed
 Till to her dew perfection she was ripened.

Her mother was the faire Chrysogonee,
 The daughter of Amphisa, who by race
 A Faerie was, yborne of high degree,
 She bore Belphebe, she bore in like cace
 Faire Amoretta in the second place:
 These two were twinnes, and twixt them two did share
 The heritage of all celestiall grace.
 That all the rest it seem'd they robbed bare
 Of bountie, and of beautie, and all vertues rare.

It were a goodly storie, to declare,
 By what straunge accident faire Chrysogone
 Conceiu'd these infants, and how them she bare,
 In this wild forrest wandring all alone,
 After she had nine moneths fulfild and gone:
 For not as other wemens commune brood,
 They were enwombed in the sacred throne
 Of her chaste bodie, nor with commune food,
 As other wemens babes, they sucked vitall blood.

iii 9 was] were 1590

v 3 bare] bore 1590

But wondrously they were begot, and bred
 Through influence of th'heauens fruitfull ray,
 As it in antique bookes is mentioned.
 It was vpon a Sommers shynie day,
 When Titan faire his beames did display,
 In a fresh fountaine, farre from all mens vew,
 She bath'd her brest, the boyling heat t'allay;
 She bath'd with roses red, and violets blew,
 And all the sweetest flowres, that in the forrest grew.

Till faint through irkesome wearinesse, adowne
 Vpon the grassie ground her selfe she layd
 To sleepe, the whiles a gentle slombring swowne
 Vpon her fell all naked bare displayd;
 The sunne-beames bright vpon her body playd,
 Being through former bathing mollifide,
 And pierst into her wombe, where they embayd
 With so sweet sence and secret power vnspide,
 That in her pregnant flesh they shortly fructifide.

Miraculous may seeme to him, that reades
 So straunge ensample of conception;
 But reason teacheth that the fruitfull seades
 Of all things liuing, through impression
 Of the sunbeames in moyst complexion,
 Doe life conceiue and quickned are by kynd:
 So after Nilus invndation,
 Infinite shapes of creatures men do fynd,
 Informed in the mud, on which the Sunne hath shynd.

Great father he of generation
 Is rightly cald, th'author of life and light;
 And his faire sister for creation
 Ministreth matter fit, which tempred right
 With heate and humour, breeds the liuing wight.
 So sprong these twinnes in wombe of Chrysogone,
 Yet wist she nought thereof, but sore affright,
 Wondred to see her belly so vpblone,
 Which still increast, till she her terme had full outgone.

vi 5 his hot beames 1609 viii 8 creatures] creature 1596

Whereof conceiuing shame and foule disgrace,
 Albe her guiltlesse conscience her cleard,
 She fled into the wildernesse a space,
 Till that vnweeldy burden she had reard,
 And shund dishonor, which as death she feard:
 Where wearie of long trauell, downe to rest
 Her selfe she set, and comfortably cheard;
 There a sad cloud of sleepe her ouerkest,
 And seized euery sense with sorrow sore opprest.

It fortun'd, faire Venus hauing lost
 Her little sonne, the winged god of loue,
 Who for some light displeasure, which him crost,
 Was from her fled, as flit as ayerie Doue,
 And left her blisfull bowre of ioy aboue,
 (So from her often he had fled away,
 When she for ought him sharply did reprove,
 And wandred in the world in strange aray,
 Disguiz'd in thousand shapes, that none might him bewray.)

Him for to seeke, she left her heauenly hous,
 The house of goodly formes and faire aspects,
 Whence all the world deriues the glorious Features of beautie, and all shapes select,
 With which high God his workmanship hath deckt;
 And searched euery way, through which his wings
 Had borne him, or his tract she mote detect:
 She promist kisses sweet, and sweeter things
 Vnto the man, that of him tydings to her brings.

First she him sought in Court, where most he vsed Whylome to haunt, but there she found him not;
 But many there she found, which sore accused
 His falsehood, and with foule infamous blot
 His cruell deedes and wicked wyles did spot:
 Ladies and Lords she euery where mote heare
 Complayning, how with his empoysned shot
 Their wofull harts he wounded had whyleare,
 And so had left them languishing twixt hope and feare.

She then the Citties sought from gate to gate,
 And euery one did aske, did he him see;
 And euery one her answerd, that too late
 He had him seene, and felt the crueltie
 Of his sharpe darts and whot artillerie;
 And euery one threw forth reproches rife
 Of his mischieuous deedes, and said, That hee
 Was the disturber of all ciuill life,
 The enemy of peace, and author of all strife.

xiv

Then in the countrey she abroad him sought,
 And in the rurall cottages inquired,
 Where also many plaints to her were brought,
 How he their heedlesse harts with loue had fyred,
 And his false venim through their veines inspyred;
 And eke the gentle shepherd swaynes, which sat
 Keeping their fleecie flockes, as they were hyred,
 She sweetly heard complaine, both how and what
 Her sonne had to them doen; yet she did smile thereat.

xv

But when in none of all these she him got,
 She gan auize, where else he mote him hyde:
 At last she her bethought, that she had not Yet sought the saluage woods and forrests wyde,
 In which full many louely Nymphes abyde,
 Mongst whom might be, that he did closely lye,
 Or that the loue of some of them him tyde:
 For thy she thither cast her course t'apply,
 To search the secret haunts of Dianes company.

xvi

Shortly vnto the wastefull woods she came,
 Whereas she found the Goddessse with her crew,
 After late chace of their embrewed game,
 Sitting beside a fountaine in a rew,
 Some of them washing with the liquid dew
 From off their dainty limbes the dustie sweat,
 And soyle which did deforme their liuely hew;
 Others lay shaded from the scorching heat;
 The rest vpon her person gaue attendance great.

xvii

She hauing hong vpon a bough on high
Her bow and painted quiuer, had vnlaste
Her siluer buskins from her nimble thigh,
And her lancke loynes vngirt, and breasts vnbraste,
After her heat the breathing cold to taste;
Her golden lockes, that late in tresses bright
Embreaded were for hindring of her haste,
Now loose about her shoulders hong vndight,
And were with sweet Ambrosia all besprinckled light.

xviii

Soone as she Venus saw behind her backe,
She was asham'd to be so loose surprized,
And woxe halfe wroth against her damzels slacke,
That had not her thereof before auized,
But suffred her so carelesly disguised
Be ouertaken. Soone her garments loose
Vpgath'ring, in her bosome she comprized,
Well as she might, and to the Goddesse rose,
Whiles all her Nymphes did like a girlond her enclose.

xix

Goodly she gan faire Cytherea greet,
And shortly asked her, what cause her brought Into that wilderness for her vnmeet,
From her sweete bowres, and beds with pleasures fraught:
That suddein change she strange aduenture thought.
To whom halfe weeping, she thus answered,
That she her dearest sonne Cupido sought,
Who in his frowardnesse from her was fled;
That she repented sore, to haue him angered.

xx

Thereat Diana gan to smile, in scorne
Of her vaine plaint, and to her scoffing sayd;
Great pittie sure, that ye be so forlorne
Of your gay sonne, that giues ye so good ayd
To your disports: ill mote ye bene apayd.
But she was more engrieued, and replide;
Faire sister, ill beseemes it to vpbrayd
A dolefull heart with so disdainfull pride;
The like that mine, may be your paine another tide.

xxi

xviii

As you in woods and wanton wilderness
 Your glory set, to chace the saluage beasts,
 So my delight is all in ioyfulnesse,
 In beds, in bowres, in banckets, and in feasts:
 And ill becomes you with your loftie creasts,
 To scorne the ioy, that Ioue is glad to seeke;
 We both are bound to follow heauens becheasts,
 And tend our charges with obeisance meeke:
 Spare, gentle sister, with reproch my paine to ecke.

xxii

xix

And tell me, if that ye my sonne haue heard,
 To lurke emongst your Nymphes in secret wize;
 Or keepe their cabins: much I am affeard,
 Least he like one of them him selfe disguise,
 And turne his arrowes to their exercize:
 So may he long himselfe full easie hide:
 For he is faire and fresh in face and guize,
 As any Nymph (let not it be enuyde.)

xxiii

So saying euery Nymph full narrowly she eyde.

xx

But Phabe therewith sore was angered,
 And sharply said; Goe Dame, goe seeke your boy,
 Where you him lately left, in Mars his bed;
 He comes not here, we scorne his foolish ioy,
 Ne lend we leisure to his idle toy:
 But if I catch him in this company,
 By Stygian lake I vow, whose sad annoy
 The Gods doe dread, he dearely shall abyde:

xxiv

He clip his wanton wings, that he no more shall fly.

xxi

Whom when as Venus saw so sore displeased,
 She inly sory was, and gan relent,
 What she had said: so her she soone appeased,
 With sugred words and gentle blandishment,
 Which as a fountaine from her sweet lips went,
 And welled goodly forth, that in short space
 She was well pleasd, and forth her damzels sent,
 Through all the woods, to search from place to place,
 If any tract of him or tydings they mote trace.

To search the God of loue, her Nymphes she sent Throughout the wandring forrest euer where:
 And after them her selfe eke with her went
 To seeke the fugitiue, both farre and nere,
 So long they sought, till they arriued were
 In that same shadie couert, whereas lay
 Faire Crysgone in slombry traunce whilere:
 Who in her sleepe (a wondrous thing to say)
 Vnwares had borne two babes, as faire as springing day.

xxvi

Vnwares she them conceiu'd, vnwares she bore:
 She bore withouten paine, that she conceiued
 Withouten pleasure: ne her need implore
Lucinaes aide: which when they both perceiued,
 They were through wonder nigh of sense bereaued,
 And gazing each on other, nought bespake:
 At last they both agreed, her seeming griued
 Out of her heauy swowne not to awake,
 But from her louing side the tender babes to take.

xxvii

Vp they them tooke, each one a babe vptooke,
 And with them carried, to be fostered;

 Or it in Gnidus be, I wote not well;
 But well I wote by tryall, that this same
 All other pleasant places doth excell,

In that same Gardin all the goodly flowres,
 Wherewith dame Nature doth her beautifie,
 And decks the girlonds of her paramoures,
 Are fetcht : there is the first seminarie
 Of all things, that are borne to liue and die,
 According to their kindes. Long worke it were,
 Here to account the endlesse progenie
 Of all the weedes, that bud and blossome there;
 But so much as doth need, must needs be counted here.

It sited was in fruitfull soyle of old,
 And girt in with two walles on either side;
 The one of yron, the other of bright gold,
 That none might thorough breake, nor ouer-stride :
 And double gates it had, which opened wide,
 By which both in and out men moten pas;
 Th'one faire and fresh, the other old and dride :
 Old Genius the porter of them was,
 Old Genius, the which a double nature has.

He letteth in, he letteth out to wend,
 All that to come into the world desire;
 A thousand thousand naked babes attend
 About him day and night, which doe require,
 That he with fleshly weedes would them attire:
 Such as him list, such as eternall fate
 Ordained hath, he clothes with sinfull mire,
 And sendeth forth to liue in mortall state,
 Till they againe returne backe by the hinder gate.

After that they againe returned beene,
 They in that Gardin planted be againe;
 And grow afresh, as they had neuer seene
 Fleshly corruption, nor mortall paine.
 Some thousand yeares so doen they there remaine;
 And then of him are clad with other hew,
 Or sent into the chaungefull world againe,
 Till thither they returne, where first they grew :
 So like a wheele around they runne from old to new.

Ne needs there Gardiner to set, or sow,
 To plant or prune: for of their owne accord
 All things, as they created were, doe grow,
 And yet remember well the mightie word,
 Which first was spoken by th'Almightie lord,
 That bad them to increase and multiply:
 Ne doe they need with water of the ford,
 Or of the clouds to moysten their roots dry;
 For in themselues eternall moisture they imply.

Infinite shapes of creatures there are bred,
 And vncouth formes, which none yet euer knew,
 And euery sort is in a sundry hed
 Set by it selfe, and ranck'd in a meely rew:
 Some fit for reasonable soules to endew,
 Some made for beasts, some made for birds to weare,
 And all the fruitfull spawnne of fishes hew
 In endlesse rancks along enraunged were,
 That seem'd the Ocean could not containe them there.

Daily they grow, and daily forth are sent Into the world, it to replenish more;
 Yet is the stocke not lessened, nor spent,
 But still remaines in euerlasting store,
 As it at first created was of yore.
 For in the wide wombe of the world there lyes,
 In hatefull darkenesse and in deepe horrore,
 An huge eternall Chaos, which supplyes
 The substances of natures fruitfull progenyes.

All things from thence doe their first being fetch,
 And borrow matter, whereof they are made,
 Which when as forme and feature it does ketch,
 Becomes a bodie, and doth then inuade
 The state of life, out of the griesly shade.
 That substance is eterne, and bideth so,
 Ne when the life decayes, and forme does fade,
 Doth it consume, and into nothing go,
 But chaunged is, and often altred to and fro.

xxxiv

The substance is not changed, nor altered,
 But th'only forme and outward fashion;
 For every substance is conditioned
 To change her hew, and sundry formes to don,
 Meet for her temper and complexion:
 For formes are variable and decay,
 By course of kind, and by occasion;
 And that faire flowre of beautie fades away,
 As doth the lilly fresh before the sunny ray.

xxxviii

xxxv

Great enemy to it, and to all the rest,
 That in the Gardin of Adonis springs,
 Is wicked Time, who with his scyth addrest,
 Does mow the flowring herbes and goodly things,
 And all their glory to the ground downe flings,
 Where they doe wither, and are fowly mard:
 He flyes about, and with his flaggy wings
 Beates downe both leaues and buds without regard,
 Ne euer pittie may relent his malice hard.

xxxix

Yet pittie often did the gods relent,
 To see so faire things mard, and spoyled quight:
 And their great mother Venus did lament
 The losse of her deare brood, her deare delight:
 Her hart was pierst with pittie at the sight,
 When walking through the Gardin, them she spyde,
 Yet no'te she find redresse for such despight.
 For all that liues, is subiect to that law:
 All things decay in time, and to their end do draw.

But were it not, that Time their troubler is,
 All that in this delightfull Gardin growes,
 Should happie be, and haue immortall blis:
 For here all plentie, and all pleasure flowes,
 And sweet loue gentle fits emongst them throwes,
 Without fell rancor, or fond gealosie;
 Franckly each paramour his leman knowes,
 Each bird his mate, ne any does enuie
 Their goodly meriment, and gay felicitie.

xl 6 spyde] saw corr. edd. But cf. II viii 29 l. 7 &c.

There is continuall spring, and haruest there
 Continuall, both meeting at one time:
 For both the boughes doe laughing blossomes beare,
 And with fresh colours decke the wanton Prime,
 And eke attonce the heauy trees they clime,
 Which seeme to labour vnder their fruits lode:
 The whiles the ioyous birdes make their pastime
 Emongst the shadie leaues, their sweet abode,
 And their true loues without suspition tell abroad.

xlii

Right in the midst of that Paradise,
 There stood a stately Mount, on whose round top
 A gloomy groue of mirtle trees did rise,
 Whose shadie boughes sharpe steele did neuer lop,
 Nor wicked beasts their tender buds did crop,
 But like a girlond compassed the hight,
 And from their fruitfull sides sweet gum did drop,
 That all the ground with precious dew bedight,
 Threw forth most dainty odours, and most sweet delight.

xliii

And in the thickest couert of that shade,
 There was a pleasant arbour, not by art,
 But of the trees owne inclination made,
 Which knitting their rancke branches part to part,
 With wanton yuie twyne entrayld athwart,
 And Eglantine, and Caprifole emong,
 Fashiond about within their inmost part,
 That nether Phæbus beams could through them throng,
 Nor Aeolus sharp blast could worke them any wrong.

xliv

And all about grew euery sort of flowre,
 To which sad louers were transformd of yore;
 Fresh Hyacinthus, Phæbus paramoure,
 And dearest loue,
 Foolish Narcisse, that likes the watry shore,
 Sad Amaranthus, made a flowre but late,
 Sad Amaranthus, in whose purple gore
 Me seemes I see Amintas wretched fate,
 To whom sweet Poets verse hath giuen endlesse date.

xlv 4 And dearest loue, om. 1590, 1596:

There wont faire Venus often to enioy
 Her deare Adonis ioyous company,
 And reape sweet pleasure of the wanton boy;
 There yet, some say, in secret he does ly,
 Lapped in flowres and pretious spycery,
 By her hid from the world, and from the skill
 Of Stygian Gods, which doe her loue enuy;
 But she her selfe, when euer that she will,
 Possesseth him, and of his sweetnesse takes her fill.

And sooth it seemes they say: for he may not
 For euer die, and euer buried bee
 In balefull night, where all things are forgot;
 All be he subiect to mortalitie,
 Yet is eterne in mutabilitie,
 And by succession made perpetuall,
 Transformed oft, and chaunged diuerslie:
 For him the Father of all formes they call;
 Therefore needs mote he liue, that liuing giues to all.

There now he liueth in eternall blis,
 Ioying his goddesse, and of her enioyd:
 Ne feareth he henceforth that foe of his,
 Which with his cruell tuske him deadly cloyd:
 For that wilde Bore, the which him once annoyd,
 She firmly hath emprisoned for ay,
 That her sweet loue his malice mote auoyd,
 In a strong rocky Caue, which is they say,
 Hewen vnderneath that Mount, that none him losen may.

There now he liues in euerlasting ioy,
 With many of the Gods in company,
 Which thither haunt, and with the winged boy
 Sporting himselfe in safe felicity:
 Who when he hath with spoiles and cruelty
 Ransackt the world, and in the wofull harts
 Of many wretches set his triumphes hye,
 Thither resorts, and laying his sad darts
 Aside, with faire Adonis playes his wanton parts.

And his true loue faire Psyche with him playes,
 Faire Psyche to him lately reconcyld,
 After long troubles and vnmeet vpbrayes,
 With which his mother Venus her reuyld,
 And eke himselfe her cruelly exyld:
 But now in stedfast loue and happy state
 She with him liues, and hath him borne a chyld,
Pleasure, that doth both gods and men aggrate,
Pleasure, the daughter of Cupid and Psyche late.

Hither great Venus brought this infant faire,
 The younger daughter of Chrysogonee,
 And vnto Psyche with great trust and care
 Committed her, yfostered to bee,
 And trained vp in true feminitee:
 Who no lesse carefully her tendered,
 Then her owne daughter Pleasure, to whom shee
 Made her companion, and her lessoned
 In all the lore of loue, and goodly womanhead.

In which when she to perfect ripenesse grew,
 Of grace and beautie noble Paragone,
 She brought her forth into the worldes vew,
 To be th'ensample of true loue alone,
 And Lodestarre of all chaste affectione,
 To all faire Ladies, that doe liue on ground.
 To Faery court she came, where many one
 Admyrd her goodly haueour, and found
 His feeble hart wide launched with lous cruell wound.

But she to none of them her loue did cast,
 Saue to the noble knight Sir Scudamore,
 To whom her louing hart she linked fast
 In faithfull loue, t'abide for euermore,
 And for his dearest sake endured sore,
 Sore trouble of an hainous enemy;
 Who her would forced haue to haue forlore
 Her former loue, and stedfast loialty,
 As ye may elsewhere read that ruefull history.

But well I weene, ye first desire to learne,
 What end vnto that fearefull Damozell,
 Which fled so fast from that same foster stearne,
 Whom with his brethren Timias slew, befell:
 That was to weet, the goodly Florimell;
 Who wandring for to seeke her louer deare,
 Her louer deare, her dearest Marinell,
 Into misfortune fell, as ye did heare,
 And from Prince Arthur fled with wings of idle feare.

Cant. VII.

Like as an Hynd forth singled from the heard,
 That hath escaped from a rauinous beast,
 Yet flies away of her owne feet affeard,
 And euery leafe, that shaketh with the least
 Murmure of winde, her terror hath encreast;
 So fled faire Florimell from her vaine feare,
 Long after she from perill was releast:
 Each shade she saw, and each noyse she did heare,
 Did seeme to be the same, which she escapt whyleare.

i

All that same euening she in flying spent,
 And all that night her course continewed:
 Ne did she let dull sleepe once to relent,
 Nor wearinesse to slacke her hast, but fled
 Euer alike, as if her former dred
 Were hard behind, her readie to arrest:
 And her white Palfrey hauing conquered
 The maistring raines out of her weary wrest,
 Perforce her carried, where euer he thought best.

So long as breath, and hable puissance
Did natie courage vnto him supply,
His pace he freshly forward did aduaunce,
And carried her beyond all ieopardy,
But nought that wanteth rest, can long aby.
He hauing through incessant trauell spent
His force, at last perforce a downe did ly,
Ne foot could further moue: The Lady gent
Thereat was suddein strooke with great astonishment.

And forst t'alight, on foot mote algates fare,
A traoueller vnwonted to such way:
Need teacheth her this lesson hard and rare,
That fortune all in equall launce doth sway,
And mortall miseries doth make her play.
So long she trauelled, till at length she came To an hilles side, which did to her bewray
A little valley, subiect to the same,
All couerd with thick woods, that quite it ouercame.

Through the tops of the high trees she did descry
A little smoke, whose vapour thin and light,
Reeking aloft, vprolled to the sky:
Which, chearefull signe did send vnto her sight,
That in the same did wonne some liuing wight.
Eftsoones her steps she thereunto applyde,
And came at last in weary wretched plight
Vnto the place, to which her hope did guyde,
To find some refuge there, and rest her weary syde.

There in a gloomy hollow glen she found
A little cottage, built of stickes and reedes
In homely wize, and wald with sods around,
In which a witch did dwell, in loathly weedes,
And wilfull want, all carelesse of her needes;
So choosing solitarie to abide,
Far from all neighbours, that her deuilish deedes
And hellish arts from people she might hide,
And hurt far off vnknowne, whom euer she enuide.

The Damzell there arriuing entred in;
 Where sitting on the flore the Hag she found,
 Busie (as seem'd) about some wicked gin:
 Who soone as she beheld that suddein stound,
 Lightly vpstart from the dustie ground,
 And with fell looke and hollow deadly gaze
 Stared on her awhile, as one astound,
 Ne had one word to speake, for great amaze,
 But shewd by outward signes, that dread her sence did daze.

At last turning her feare to foolish wrath,
 She askt, what deuill had her thither brought,
 And who she was, and what vnwonted path
 Had guided her, vnwelcomed, vnsought?
 To which the Damzell full of doubtfull thought,
 Her mildly answer'd; Beldame be not wroth
 With silly Virgin by aduenture brought Vnto your dwelling, ignorant and loth,
 That craue but rowme to rest, while tempest ouerblo'th.

With that adowne out of her Christall eyne
 Few trickling teares she softly forth let fall,
 That like two Orient pearles, did purely shyne
 Vpon her snowy cheeke; and therewithall
 She sighed soft, that none so bestiall,
 Nor saluage hart, but ruth of her sad plight
 Would make to melt, or pitteously appall;
 And that vile Hag, all were her whole delight
 In mischiefe, was much moued at so pitteous sight.

And gan recomfort her in her rude wyse,
 With womanish compassion of her plaint,
 Wiping the teares from her suffused eyes,
 And bidding her sit downe, to rest her faint
 And wearie limbs a while. She nothing quaint
 Nor s'deignfull of so homely fashion,
 Sith brought she was now to so hard constraint,
 Sate downe vpon the dusty ground anon,
 As glad of that small rest, as Bird of tempest gon.

Tho gan she gather vp her garments rent,
And her loose lockes to dight in order dew,
With golden wreath and gorgeous ornament;
Whom such whenas the wicked Hag did vew,
She was astonisht at her heauenly hew,
And doubted her to deeme an earthly wight,
But or some Goddesse, or of Dianes crew,
And thought her to adore with humble spright;
T'adore thing so diuine as beauty, were but right.

xi

This wicked woman had a wicked sonne,
The comfort of her age and weary dayes,
A laesie loord, for nothing good to donne,
But stretched forth in idlenesse alwayes,
Ne euer cast his mind to couet prayse,
Or ply him selfe to any honest trade,
But all the day before the sunny rayes
He vs'd to slug, or sleepe in slothfull shade:
Such laesinesse both lewd and poore attonce him made.

xii

He comming home at vndertime, there found
The fairest creature, that he euer saw,
Sitting beside his mother on the ground;
The sight whereof did greatly him adaw,
And his base thought with terrour and with aw
So inly smot, that as one, which had gazed
On the bright Sunne vnwares, doth soone withdraw
His feeble eyne, with too much brightnesse dazed,
So stared he on her, and stood long while amazed.

xiii

Softly at last he gan his mother aske,
What mister wight that was, and whence deriued,
That in so straunge disguizement there did maske,
And by what accident she there arriued:
But she, as one nigh of her wits depriued,
With nought but ghastly looks him answered,
Like to a ghost, that lately is reuiued
From Stygian shores, where late it wandered;
So both at her, and each at other wondered.

xiv

xi

But the faire Virgin was so meeke and mild,
That she to them vouchsafed to embace
Her goodly port, and to their senses vild,
Her gentle speach applide, that in short space
She grew familiare in that desert place.
During which time, the Chorle through her so kind
And curteise vse conceiu'd affection bace,
And cast to loue her in his brutish mind;
No loue, but brutish lust, that was so beastly tind.

xv

xii

Closely the wicked flame his bowels brent,
And shortly grew into outrageous fire;
Yet had he not the hart, nor hardiment,
As vnto her to vtter his desire;
His caytiue thought durst not so high aspire,
But with soft sighes, and louely semblaunces,
He ween'd that his affection entire
She should aread; many resembraunces
To her he made, and many kind remembraunces.

xvi

xiii

Oft from the forrest wildings he did bring,
Whose sides empurpled were with smiling red,
And oft young birds, which he had taught to sing
His mistresse prayses, sweetly caroled,
Girlands of flowres sometimes for her faire hed
He fine would dight; sometimes the squirell wild
He brought to her in bands, as conquered
To be her thrall, his fellow seruant vild;
All which, she of him tooke with countenance meeke and mild.

xvii

xiv

But past awhile, when she fit season saw
To leaue that desert mansion, she cast
In secret wize her selfe thence to withdraw,
For feare of mischief, which she did forecast
Might be by the witch or that her sonne compast:
Her wearie Palfrey closely, as she might,
Now well recouered after long repast,
In his proud furnitures she freshly dight,
His late miswandred wayes now to remeasure right.

And earely ere the dawning day appeard,
 She forth issewed, and on her iourney went;
 She went in perill, of each noyse affeard,
 And of each shade, that did it selfe present;
 For still she feared to be ouerhent,
 Of that vile hag, or her vnciuile sonne:
 Who when too late awaking, well they kent,
 That their faire guest was gone, they both begonne
 To make exceeding mone, as they had bene vndonne.

xix

But that lewd louer did the most lament
 For her depart, that euer man did heare;
 He knockt his brest with desperate intent,
 And scratcht his face, and with his teeth did teare
 His rugged flesh, and rent his ragged heare:
 That his sad mother seeing his sore plight,
 Was greatly woe begon, and gan to feare,
 Least his fraile senses were emperisht quight,
 And loue to frenzy turnd, sith loue is franticke hight.

xx

All wayes she sought, him to restore to plight,
 With herbs, with charms, with counsell, and with teares,
 But tears, nor charms, nor herbs, nor counsell might Asswage the fury, which his entrails teares:
 So strong is passion, that no reason heares.
 Tho when all other helpes she saw to faile,
 She turnd her selfe backe to her wicked leares
 And by her deuilish arts thought to preuaile,
 To bring her backe againe, or worke her finall bale.

xxi

Eftsoones out of her hidden caue she cald
 An hideous beast, of horrible aspect,
 That could the stoutest courage haue appald;
 Monstrous mishapt, and all his backe was spect
 With thousand spots of colours queint elect,
 Thereto so swift, that it all beasts did pas:
 Like neuer yet did liuing eye detect;
 But likest it to an Hyena was,
 That feeds on womens flesh, as others feede on gras.

xxii

It forth she cald, and gaue it streight in charge,
 Through thicke and thin her to pursew apace,
 Ne once to stay to rest, or breath at large,
 Till her he had attaind, and brought in place,
 Or quite deuourd her beauties scornefull grace.
 The Monster swift as word, that from her went,
 Went forth in hast, and did her footing trace
 So sure and swiftly, through his perfect sent,
 And passing speede, that shortly he her ouerhent.

Whom when the fearefull Damzell nigh espide,
 No need to bid her fast away to flie;
 That vgly shape so sore her terrifide,
 That it she shund no lesse, then dread to die,
 And her flit Palfrey did so well apply
 His nimble feet to her conceiued feare,
 That whilest his breath did strength to him supply,
 From perill free he her away did beare:
 But when his force gan faile, his pace gan wex areare.

Which whenas she perceiu'd, she was dismayd
 At that same last extremitie full sore,
 And of her safetie greatly grew afrayd;
 And now she gan approch to the sea shore,
 As it befell, that she could flie no more,
 But yield her selfe to spoile of greedinesse.
 Lightly she leaped, as a wight forlore,
 From her dull horse, in desperate distresse,
 And to her feet betooke her doubtfull sickernesse.

Not halfe so fast the wicked Myrrha fled
 From dread of her reuenging fathers hond:
 Nor halfe so fast to saue her maidenhed,
 Fled fearefull Daphne on th'Egean strond,
 As Florimell fled from that Monster yond,
 To reach the sea, ere she of him were raught:
 For in the sea to drowne her selfe she fond,
 Rather then of the tyrant to be caught:
 Thereto feare gaue her wings, and neede her courage taught.

It fortun'd (high God did so ordaine)
As she arriued on the roring shore,
In minde to leape into the mighty maine,
A little bonte lay houting her before,
In which there slept a fisher old and pore,
The whiles his nets were drying on the sand:
Into the same she leapt, and with the ore
Did thrust the shallop from the floting strand:
So safetic found at sea, which she found not at land.

The Monster ready on the pray to sease,
Was of his forward hope deceiued quight;
Ne durst assay to wade the perlous seas,
But greedily long gaping at the sight,
At last in vaine was forst to turne his flight,
And tell the idle tidings to his Dame:
Yet to auenge his deuilish despight,
He set vpon her Palfrey tired lame,
And slew him cruelly, ere any reskew came.

And after hauing him embowelled,
To fill his hellish gorge, it chaunst a knight
To passe that way, as forth he trauelled;
It was a goodly Swaine, and of great might,
As euer man that bloody field did fight;
But in vaine sheows, that wont yong knights bewitch,
And courtly seruices tooke no delight,
But rather ioyd to be, then seemen sich:
For both to be and seeme to him was labour lich.

It was to weete the good Sir Satyrane,
That raungd abroad to seeke aduentures wilde,
As was his wont in forrest, and in plaine;
He was all armd in rugged steele vnfilde,
As in the smoky forge it was compilde,
And in his Scutchin bore a Satyres hed:
He comming present, where the Monster vilde
Vpon that milke-white Palfreyes carkas fed,
Vnto his reskew ran, and greedily him sped.

xxvii

There well perceiu'd he, that it was the horse,
 Whereon faire Florimell was wont to ride,
 That of that feend was rent without remorse:
 Much feared he, least ought did ill betide
 To that faire Mayd, the flowre of womens pride;
 For her he dearely loued, and in all
 His famous conquests highly magnifide:
 Besides her golden girdle, which did fall
 From her in flight, he found, that did him sore apall.

xxxi

xxviii

Full of sad feare, and doubtfull agony,
 Fiercely he flew vpon that wicked feend,
 And with huge strokes, and cruell battery
 Him forst to leaue his pray, for to attend
 Him selfe from deadly daunger to defend:
 Full many wounds in his corrupted flesh
 He did engraue, and muchell bloud did spend,
 Yet might not do him dye, but aye more fresh
 And fierce he still appeard, the more he did him thresh.

He wist not, how him to despoile of life,
 Ne how to win the wished victory,
 Sith him he saw still stronger grow through strife,
 And him selfe weaker through infirmity;

 Rored, and raged to be vnder-kept:
 Yet he perforce him held, and strokes vpon him hept.

So him he held, and did through might amate:
So long he held him, and him bet so long,
That at the last his fiercenesse gan abate,
And meekely stoup vnto the victour strong:
Who to auenge the implacable wrong,
Which he supposed donne to Florimell,
Sought by all meanes his dolour to prolong,
Sith dint of steele his carcas could not quell:
His maker with her charmes had framed him so well.

The golden ribband, which that virgin wore
About her slender wast, he tooke in hand,
And with it bound the beast, that lowd did rore
For great despight of that vnwonted band,
Yet dared not his victour to withstand,
But trembled like a lambe, fled from the pray,
And all the way him followd on the strand,
As he had long bene learned to obay;
Yet neuer learned he such seruice, till that day.

Thus as he led the Beast along the way,
He spide far off a mighty Giauntesse,
Fast flying on a Courser dapled gray,
From a bold knight, that with great hardinesse
Her hard pursewd, and sought for to suppress;
She bore before her lap a dolefull Squire,
Lying athwart her horse in great distresse,
Fast bounden hand and foote with cords of wire,
Whom she did meane to make the thrall of her desire.

Which whenas Satyrane beheld, in hast
He left his captiue Beast at liberty,
And crost the nearest way, by which he cast
Her to encounter, ere she passed by:
But she the way shund nathemore for thy,
But forward gallopt fast; which when he spyde,
His mighty speare he couched warily,
And at her ran: she hauing him descryde,
Her selfe to fight address, and threw her lode aside.

Like as a Goshauke, that in foote doth beare
 A trembling Culuer, hauing spide on hight
 An Egle, that with plummy wings doth sheare
 The subtile ayre, stouping with all his might,
 The quarrey throwes to ground with fell despight,
 And to the battell doth her selfe prepare:
 So ran the Geauntesse vnto the fight;
 Her fire eyes with furious sparkes did stare,
 And with blasphemous bannes high God in peeces tare.

She caught in hand an huge great yron mace,
 Wherewith she many had of life depriued,
 But ere the stroke could seize his aymed place,
 His speare amids her sun-broad shield arriued;
 Yet nathemore the steele a sunder riued,
 All were the beame in bignesse like a mast,
 Ne her out of the stedfast sadle driued,
 But glauncing on the tempred mettall, brast
 In thousand shiuers, and so forth beside her past.

Her Steed did stagger with that puissaunt strooke;
 But she no more was moued with that might,
 Then it had lighted on an aged Oke;
 Or on the marble Pillour, that is pight
 Vpon the top of Mount Olympus hight,
 For the braue youthly Champions to assay,
 With burning charet wheelles it nigh to smite:
 But who that smites it, mars his ioyous play,
 And is the spectacle of ruinous decay.

Yet therewith sore enrag'd, with sterne regard
 Her dreadfull weapon she to him addrest,
 Which on his helmet martelled so hard,
 That made him low incline his lofty crest,
 And bowd his battred visour to his brest:
 Wherewith he was so stund, that he n'ote ryde,
 But reeled to and fro from East to West:
 Which when his cruell enemy espyde,
 She lightly vnto him ad'ioyned side to syde;

xlii 6 he was] she was 1590: corr. to hee F. E. stuned 1590: corr. F. E.

And on his collar laying puissant hand,
 Out of his wauering seat him pluckt perforce,
 Perforce him pluckt, vnable to withstand,
 Or helpe himselfe, and laying thwart her horse,
 In loathly wise like to a carion corse,
 She bore him fast away. Which when the knight,
 That her pursewed, saw, with great remorse
 He neare was touched in his noble spright,
 And gan encrease his speed, as she encreast her flight.
 Whom when as nigh approching she espyde,
 She threw away her burden angrily;
 For she list not the battell to abide,
 But made her selfe more light, away to fly:
 Yet her the hardy knight pursewd so nye,
 That almost in the backe he oft her strake:
 But still when him at hand she did espy,
 She turnd, and semblaunce of faire fight did make;
 But when he stayd, to flight againe she did her take.

By this the good Sir Satyrane gan wake
 Out of his dreame, that did him long entraunce,
 And seeing none in place, he gan to make
 Exceeding mone, and curst that cruell chaunce,
 Which reft from him so faire a cheuisaunce:
 At length he spide, whereas that wofull Squire,
 Whom he had reskewed from captiuaunce
 Of his strong foe, lay tumbled in the myre,
 Vnable to arise, or foot or hand to styre.

To whom approching, well he mote perceiue
 In that foule plight a comely personage,
 And louely face, made fit for to deceiue
 Fraile Ladies hart with loues consuming rage,
 Now in the blossome of his freshest age:
 He reard him vp, and loosd his yron bands,
 And after gan inquire his parentage,
 And how he fell into that Gyaunts hands,
 And who that was, which chaced her along the lands.

 That Geauntesse Argante is behight,
 A daughter of the Titans which did make Warre against heauen, and heaped hills on hight,
 To scale the skyes, and put Ioue from his right:
 Her sire Typhaus was, who mad through merth,
 And drunke with bloud of men, slaine by his might,

 Whilome begot, being but halfe twin of that berth.

For at that berth another Babe she bore, xlviii
 To weet the mighty Ollyphant, that wrought
 Great wreake to many errant knights of yore,
 And many hath to foule confusion brought.
 These twinnes, men say, (a thing far passing thought) Whiles in their mothers wombe enclosed they were,
 Ere they into the lightsome world were brought,
 In fleshly lust were mingled both yfere,
 And in that monstrous wise did to the world appere.

So liu'd they euer after in like sin, xlix

 But greatest shame was to that maiden twin,
 Who not content so fowly to deuoure
 Her natue flesh, and staine her brothers bowre,
 Did wallow in all other fleshly myre,
 And suffred beasts her body to deflowre:
 So whot she burned in that lustfull fyre,
 Yet all that might not slake her sensuall desyre.

But ouer all the countrey she did raunge, l
 To seeke young men, to quench her flaming thrust,
 And feed her fancy with delightfull chaunge:
 Whom so she fittest finds to serue her lust,
 Through her maine strength, in which she most doth trust,
 She with her brings into a secret Ile,
 Where in eternall bondage dye he must,
 Or be the vassall of her pleasures vile,
 And in all shamefull sort him selfe with her defile.

Me seely wretch she so at vauntage caught,
 After she long in waite for me did lye,
 And meant vnto her prison to haue brought,
 Her lothsome pleasure there to satisfye;
 That thousand deathes me leuer were to dye,
 Then breake the vow, that to faire Columbell
 I plighted haue, and yet keepe stedfastly:
 As for my name, it mistreth not to tell;
 Call me the Squyre of Dames, that me beseemeth well.
 But that bold knight, whom ye pursuing saw
 That Geauntesse, is not such, as she seemed,
 But a faire virgin, that in martiall law,
 And deedes of armes aboue all Dames is deemed,
 And aboue many knights is eke esteemed,
 For her great worth; She Palladine is hight:
 She you from death, you me from dread redeemed.
 Ne any may that Monster match in fight,
 But she, or such as she, that is so chaste a wight.
 Her well beseemes that Quest (quoth Satyrane)
 But read, thou Squyre of Dames, what vow is this,
 Which thou vpon thy selfe hast lately ta'ne?
 That shall I you recount (quoth he) ywis,
 So be ye pleasd to pardon all amis.
 That gentle Lady, whom I loue and serue,
 After long suit and weary seruicis,
 Did aske me, how I could her loue deserue,
 And how she might be sure, that I would neuer swerue.
 I glad by any meanes her grace to gaine,
 Bad her commaund my life to saue, or spill.
 Eftsoones she bad me, with inCESSAUNT paine
 To wander through the world abroad at will,
 And euery where, where with my power or skill
 I might do seruice vnto gentle Dames,
 That I the same should faithfully fulfill,
 And at the twelue monethes end should bring their na
 And pledges; as the spoiles of my victorious games.

So well I to faire Ladies seruice did,
 And found such fauour in their louing hartes,
 That ere the yeare his course had compassid,
 Three hundred pledges for my good desartes,
 And thrise three hundred thanks for my good partes
 I with me brought, and did to her present:
 Which when she saw, more bent to eke my smartes,
 Then to reward my trusty true intent,
 She gan for me deuise a grieuous punishment.

To weet, that I my trauell should resume,
 And with like labour walke the world around,
 Ne euer to her presençe should presume,
 Till I so many other Dames had found,
 The which, for all the suit I could propound,
 Would me refuse their pledges to afford,
 But did abide for euer chaste and sound.
 Ah gentle Squire (quoth he) tell at one word,
 How many foundst thou such to put in thy record?

In deed Sir knight (said he) one word may tell
 All, that I euer found so wisely stayd;
 For onely three they were disposd so well,
 And yet three yeares I now abroad haue strayd,
 To find them out. Mote I (then laughing sayd
 The knight) inquire of thee, what were those three,
 The which thy proffred curtesie denayd?
 Or ill they seemed sure auizd to bee,
 Or brutishly brought vp, that neu'r did fashions see.

The first which then refused me (said hee)
 Certes was but a common Courtisane,
 Yet flat refused to haue a do with mee,
 Because I could not giue her many a lane.
 (Thereat full hartely laughed Satyrane)
 The second was an holy Nunne to chose,
 Which would not let me be her Chappellane,
 Because she knew, she said, I would disclose
 Her counsell, if she should her trust in me repose.

The third a Damzell was of low degree,
 Whom I in countrey cottage found by chaunce;
 Full little weened I, that chastitee
 Had lodging in so meane a maintenaunce,
 Yet was she faire, and in her countenance
 Dwelt simple truth in seemely fashion.
 Long thus I woo'd her with dew obseruance,
 In hope vnto my pleasure to haue won;
 But was as farre at last, as when I first begon.
 Safe her, I neuer any woman found,
 That chastity did for it selfe embrace,
 But were for other causes firme and sound;
 Either for want of handsome time and place,
 Or else for feare of shame and fowle disgrace.
 Thus am I hopelesse euer to attaine
 My Ladies loue, in such a desperate case,
 But all my dayes am like to wast in vaine,
 Seeking to match the chaste with th'vnchaste Ladies traie Perdy, (said Satyrane) thou Squire of Dames,
 Great labour fondly hast thou hent in hand,
 To get small thankes, and therewith many blames,
 That may emongst Alcides labours stand.
 Thence backe returning to the former land,
 Where late he left the Beast, he ouercame,
 He found him not; for he had broke his band,
 And was return'd againe vnto his Dame,
 To tell what tydings of faire Florimell became.

Cant. VIII.

*The Witch creates a snowy Lady, like to Florimell,
Who wrongd by Carle by Proteus sau'd,
is sought by Paridell.*

SO oft as I this history record,
My hart doth melt with meere compassion,
To thinke, how causelesse of her owne accord
This gentle Damzell, whom I write vpon,
Should plunged be in such affliction,
Without all hope of comfort or reliefe,
That sure I weene, the hardest hart of stone,
Would hardly find to aggrauate her grieve;
For misery craues rather mercie, then repleie.
But that accursed Hag, her hostesse late,
Had so enranckled her malicious hart,
That she desyrd th'abridgement of her fate,
Or long enlargement of her painefull smart.
Now when the Beast, which by her wicked art
Late forth she sent, she backe returning spyde, Tyde with her broken galle, it a part
Of her rich spoyle, whom she had earst destroyd,
She weend, and wondrous gladnesse to her hart applyde.
And with it running hast'ly to her sonne,
Thought with that sight him much to haue reliued;
Who thereby deeming sure the thing as donne,
His former grieve with furie fresh reuiued,
Much more then earst, and would haue algates riued
The hart out of his brest: for sith her ded
He surely dempt, himselfe he thought depriued
Quite of all hope, wherewith he long had fed
His foolish maladie, and long time had misled.

With thought whereof, exceeding mad he grew,
 And in his rage his mother would haue slaine,
 Had she not fled into a secret mew,
 Where she was wont her Sprights to entertaine
 The maisters of her art: there was she faine
 To call them all in order to her ayde,
 And them coniure vpon eternall paine,
 To counsell her so carefully dismayd,
 How she might heale her sonne, whose senses were decayd
 By their aduise, and her owne wicked wit,
 She there deuiz'd a wondrous worke to frame,
 Whose like on earth was neuer framed yit,
 That euen Nature selfe enuide the same,
 And grudg'd to see the counterfet should shame
 The thing it selfe. In hand she boldly tooke
 To make another like the former Dame,
 Another Florimell, in shape and looke
 So liuely and so like, that many it mistooke.
 The substance, whereof she the bodie made,
 Was purest snow in massie mould congeald,
 Which she had gathered in a shadie glade
 Of the Riphaean hils, to her reueald
 By errant Sprights, but from all men conceald:
 The same she tempred with fine Mercury,
 And virgin wax, that neuer yet was seald,
 And mingled them with perfect vermily,
 That like a liuely sanguine it seem'd to the eye.
 In stead of eyes two burning lampes she set
 In siluer sockets, shynying like the stars,
 And a quicke mouing Spirit did arret
 To stirre and roll them, like a womans eyes;
 In stead of yellow lockes she did deuise,
 With golden wyre to weaue her curled head;
 Yet golden wyre was not so yellow thrise
 As Florimells faire haire: and in the stead
 Of life, she put a Spright to rule the carkasse dead.

A wicked Spright yfraught with fawning guile,
 And faire resemblance aboue all the rest,
 Which with the Prince of Darknesse fell somewhile,
 From heauens blisse and euerlasting rest;
 Him needed not instruct, which way were best
 Himselfe to fashion likest Florimell,
 Ne how to speake, ne how to vse his gest,
 For he in counterfeisance did excell,
 And all the wyles of wemens wits knew passing well.
 Him shaped thus, she deckt in garments gay,
 Which Florimell had left behind her late,
 That who so then her saw, would surely say,
 It was her selfe, whom it did imitate,
 Or fairer then her selfe, if ought algate Might fairer be. And then she forth her brought Vnto her sonne, that lay in feeble state;
 Who seeing her gan streight vpstart, and thought
 She was the Lady selfe, whom he so long had sought.
 Tho fast her clipping twixt his armes twaine,
 Extremely ioyed in so happie sight,
 And soone forgot his former sickly paine;
 But she, the more to seeme such as she hight,
 Coily rebutted his embracement light;
 Yet still with gentle countenance retained
 Enough to hold a foole in vaine delight:
 Him long she so with shadowes entertained,
 As her Creatresse had in charge to her ordained.
 Till on a day, as he disposed was
 To walke the woods with that his Idole faire,
 Her to disport, and idle time to pas,
 In th'open freshnesse of the gentle aire,
 A knight that way there chaunced to reaire;
 Yet knight he was not, but a boastfull swaine,
 That deedes or armes had euer in despaire,
 Proud Braggadocchio, that in vaunting vaine
 His glory did repose, and credit did maintaine.

He seeing with that Chorle so faire a wight,
 Decked with many a costly ornament,
 Much meruiled thereat, as well he might,
 And thought that match a fowle disparagement:
 His bloudie speare eftsoones he boldly bent
 Against the silly clowne, who dead through feare,
 Fell streight to ground in great astonishment;
 Villein (said he) this Ladie is my deare,
 Dy, if thou it gainesay: I will away her beare.
 The fearefull Chorle durst not gainesay, nor dooe,
 But trembling stood, and yielded him the pray;
 Who finding litle leasure her to wooe,
 On Tromparts steed her mounted without stay,
 And without reskew led her quite away.
 Proud man himselfe then Braggadocchio deemed,
 And next to none, after that happie day,
 Being possessed of that spoyle, which seemed
 The fairest wight on ground, and most of men esteemed.
 But when he saw himselfe free from poursute,
 He gan make gentle purpose to his Dame,
 With termes of loue and lewdnesse dissolute;
 For he could well his glozing speaches frame
 To such vaine vses, that him best became:
 But she thereto would lend but light regard,
 As seeming sory, that she euer came Into his powre, that vsed her so hard,
 To reauce her honor, which she more then life prefurd.
 Thus as they two of kindnesse treated long,
 There them by chaunce encountred on the way
 An armed knight, vpon a courser strong,
 Whose trampling feet vpon the hollow lay
 Seemed to thunder, and did nigh affray
 That Capons courage: yet he looked grim,
 And fain'd to cheare his Ladie in dismay;
 Who seem'd for feare to quake in euery lim,
 And her to saue from outrage, meekely prayed him.

Fiercely that stranger forward came, and nigh
 Approching, with bold words and bitter threat,
 Bad that same boaster, as he mote, on high
 To leaue to him that Lady for excheat,
 Or bide him battell without further treat.
 That challenge did too peremptory seeme,
 And fild his senses with abashment great;
 Yet seeing nigh him icopardy extreme,
 He it dissembled well, and light seem'd to esteeme.
 Saying. Thou foolish knight, that weenst with words
 To steale away, that I with blowes haue wonne,
 And brought throgh points of many perilous swords:
 But if thee list to see thy Courser ronne,
 Or proue thy selfe, this shall counter shonne,
 And seeke else without hazard of thy hed.
 At those proud words that other knight begonne
 To wexe exceeding wroth, and him ared
 To turne his steede about, or sure he should be ded.
 Sith then (said Braggadocchio) needes thou wilt
 Thy dayes abridge, through proofe of puissance,
 Turne we our steedes, that both in equall tilt
 May meet againe, and each take happie chance.
 This said, they both a furlongs moutenance
 Retyrd their steeds, to ronne in euen race:
 But Braggadocchio with his bloudie lance
 Once hauing turnd, no more returnd his face,
 But left his steede to losse, and fled himselfe apace.
 The knight seeing fly, had no regard
 Him to poursew, but to the Ladie rode,
 And hauing her from Trompart lightly reard,
 Vpon his Courser set the louely lode,
 And with her fled away without abode.
 Well weened he, that fairest Florimell
 It was, with whom in company he yode,
 And so her selfe did alwaies to him tell;
 So made him thinke him selfe in heauen, that was in hell.

But Florimell her selfe was farre away,
 Driuen to great distresse by Fortune straunge,
 And taught the carefull Mariner to play,
 Sith late mischaunce had her compeld to chaunge
 The land for sea, at randon there to raunge:
 Yet there that cruell Queene auengeresse,
 Not satisfide so farre her to estraunge
 From courtly blisse and wonted happinesse,
 Did heape on her new waues of weary wretchednesse.

For being fled into the fishers bote,
 For refuge from the Monsters crueltie,
 Long so she on the mightie maine did flote,
 And with the tide droue forward careleslie;
 For th'aire was milde, and cleared was the skie,
 And all his windes Dan Aeolus did keepe,
 From stirring vp their stormy enmitie,
 As pittying to see her waile and weepe;
 But all the while the fisher did securely sleepe.

At last when droncke with drowsinesse, he woke,
 And saw his drouer driue along the streame,
 He was dismayd, and thrise his breast he stroke,
 For maruell of that accident extreame;
 But when he saw that blazing beauties beame,
 Which with rare light his bote did beautifie,
 He marueild more, and thought he yet did dreame
 Not well awakt, or that some extasie
 Assotted had his sense, or dazed was his eie.

But when her well auizing, he perceiued
 To be no vision, nor fantasticke sight,
 Great comfort of her presence he conceiued,
 And felt in his old courage new delight
 To gin awake, and stirre his frozen spright:
 Tho rudely askt her, how she thither came.
 Ah (said she) father, I note read aright,
 What hard misfortune brought me to the same;
 Yet am I glad that here I now in safety am.

But thou good man, sith farre in sea we bee,
 And the great waters gin apace to swell,
 That now no more we can the maine-land see,
 Haue care, I pray, to guide the cock-bote well,
 Least worse on sea then vs on land befell.
 Thereat th'old man did nought but fondly grin,
 And said, his boat the way could wisely tell:
 But his deceitfull eyes did neuer lin,
 To looke on her faire face, and marke her snowy skin.

The sight whereof in his congealed flesh,
 Infixt such secret sting of greedy lust,
 That the drie withered stocke it gan refresh,
 And kindled heat, that soone in flame forth brust:
 The driest wood is soonest burnt to dust.
 Rudely to her he leapt, and his rough hand
 Where ill became him, rashly would haue thrust,
 But she with angry scorne him did withstond,
 And shamefully reprov'd for his rudenesse fond.

But he, that neuer good nor maners knew,
 Her sharpe rebuke full litle did esteeme;
 Hard is to teach an old horse amble trew.
 The inward smoke, that did before but steeme,
 Broke into open fire and rage extreme,
 And now he strength gan adde vnto his will,
 Forcing to doe, that did him fowle misseeme:
 Beastly he threw her downe, ne car'd to spill
 Her garments gay with scales of fish, that all did fill.

The silly virgin stroue him to withstand,
 All that she might, and him in vaine reuild:
 She struggled strongly both with foot and hand,
 To saue her honor from that villaine vild,
 And cride to heauen, from humane helpe exild.
 O ye braue knights, that boast this Ladies loue,
 Where be ye now, when she is nigh defild
 Of filthy wretch? well may shee you reprove
 Of falshood or of slouth, when most it may behoue.

But if that thou, Sir Satyr, didst weete,
 Or thou, Sir Peridure, her sorie state,
 How soone would yee assemble many a fleete,
 To fetch from sea, that ye at land lost late;
 Towres, Cities, Kingdomes ye would ruinate,
 In your auengement and dispiteous rage,
 Ne ought your burning fury mote abate;
 But if Sir Calidore could it presage,
 No liuing creature could his cruelty asswage.

But sith that none of all her knights is nye,
 See how the heauens of voluntary grace
 And soueraine fauour towards chastity,
 Doe succour send to her distressed cace:
 So much high God doth innocence embrace.
 It fortun'd, whilest thus she stifly stroue,
 And the wide sea importuned long space
 With shrilling shriekes, Proteus abroad did roue,
 Along the fomy waues driuing his finny droue.

Proteus is Shepheard of the seas of yore,
 And hath the charge of Neptunes mightie heard;
 An aged sire with head all frory hore,
 And sprinckled frost vpon his deawy beard:
 Who when those pittifull outcries he heard,
 Through all the seas so ruefully resound,
 His charet swift in haste he thither steard,
 Which with a teeme of scaly Phocas bound
 Was drawne vpon the waues, that fomed him around.

And comming to that Fishers wandring bote,
 That went at will, withouten carde or sayle,
 He therein saw that yrkesome sight, which smote
 Deepe indignation and compassion frayle
 Into his hart attonce: streight did he hayle
 The greedy villein from his hoped pray,
 Of which he now did very litle fayle,
 And with his staffe, that driues his Heard astray,
 Him bet so sore, that life and sense did much dismay.

xxviii

The whiles the pitteous Ladie vp did ryse,
 Ruffled and fowly raid with filthy soyle,
 And blubbred face with teares of her faire eyes:
 Her heart nigh broken was with weary toyle,
 To saue her selfe from that outrageous spoyle,
 But when she looked vp, to weet, what wight
 Had her from so infamous fact assoyld,
 For shame, but more for feare of his grim sight,
 Downe in her lap she hid her face, and loudly shright.

xxix

Her selfe not saued yet from daunger dred
 She thought, but chaung'd from one to other feare;
 Like as a fearefull Partridge, that is fled
 From the sharpe Hauke, which her attached neare,
 And fals to ground, to seeke for succour theare,
 Whereas the hungry Spaniels she does spy,
 With greedy iawes her readie for to teare;
 In such distresse and sad perplexity
 Was Florimell, when Proteus she did see thereby.

xxx

But he endeuoured with speeches milde
 Her to recomfort, and accourage bold,
 Bidding her feare no more her foeman vilde,
 Nor doubt himselfe; and who he was, her told.
 Yet all that could not from affright her hold,
 Ne to recomfort her at all preuayld;
 For her faint heart was with the frozen cold
 Benumbd so inly, that her wits nigh fayld,
 And all her senses with abashment quite were quayld.

nd.

xxxi

Her vp betwixt his rugged hands he reard,
 And with his frory lips full softly kist,
 Whiles the cold ysickles from his rough beard,
 Dropped adowne vpon her yuorie brest:
 Yet he himselfe so busily addrest,
 That her out of astonishment he wrought,
 And out of that same fishers filthy nest
 Remouing her, into his charet brought,
 And there with many gentle termes her faire besought.

But that old leachour, which with bold assault
 That beautie durst presume to violate,
 He cast to punish for his hainous fault;
 Then tooke he him yet trembling sith of late,
 And tyde behind his charet, to aggrate
 The virgin, whom he had abusde so sore:
 So drag'd him through the waues in scornefull state,
 And after cast him vp, vpon the shore;
 But Florimell with him vnto his bowre he bore.

His bowre is in the bottome of the maine,
 Vnder a mightie rocke, gainst which do raue
 The roaring billowes in their proud disdaine,
 That with the angry working of the waue,
 Therein is eaten out an hollow caue,
 That seemes rough Masons hand with engines keene
 Had long while laboured it to engraue:
 There was his wonne, ne liuing wight was seene,
 Saue one old Nymph, hight Panope to keepe it cleane.

Thither he brought the sory Florimell,
 And entertained her the best he might
 And Panope her entertaind eke well,
 As an immortall mote a mortall wight,
 To winne her liking vnto his delight:
 With flattering words he sweetly wooed her,
 And offered faire gifts t'allure her sight,
 But she both offers and the offerer
 Despysde, and all the fawning of the flatterer.

Daily he tempted her with this or that,
 And neuer suffred her to be at rest:
 But euermore she him refused flat,
 And all his fained kindnesse did detest,
 So firmly she had sealed vp her brest.
 Sometimes he boasted, that a God he hight:
 But she a mortall creature loued best:
 Then he would make himselfe a mortall wight;
 But then she said she lou'd none, but a Faerie knight.

Then like a Faerie knight himselfe he drest ;
 For euery shape on him he could endew :
 Then like a king he was to her exprest,
 And offred kingdomes vnto her in vew,
 To be his Leman and his Ladie trew :
 But when all this he nothing saw preuaile,
 With harder meanes he cast her to subdew,
 And with sharpe threatens her often did assaile,
 So thinking for to make her stubborne courage quaille.
 To dreadfull shapes he did himselfe transforme,
 Now like a Gyant, now like to a feend,
 Then like a Centaure, then like to a storme,
 Raging within the waues : thereby he weend
 Her will to win vnto his wished end.
 But when with feare, nor fauour, nor with all
 He else could doe, he saw himselfe esteemd,
 Downe in a Dongeon deepe he let her fall,
 And threatned there to make her his eternall thrall.
 Eternall thraldome was to her more lief, xli
 Then losse of chastitie, or change of loue :
 Die had she rather in tormenting grieffe,
 Then any should of falsenesse her reprove,
 Or loosenesse, that she lightly did remoue.
 Most vertuous virgin, glory be thy mee,
 And crowne of heauenly praise with Saints aboue,
 Where most sweet hymmes of this thy famous deed
 Are still emongst them song, that far my rymes exceed.
 Fit song of Angels caroled to bee ; xlii
 But yet what so my feeble Muse can frame,
 Shall be t'aduance thy goodly chastitee,
 And to enroll thy memorable name,
 In th'heart of euery honourable Dame,
 That they thy vertuous deedes may imitate,
 And be partakers of thy endlesse fame.
 It yrkes me, leaue thee in this full state,
 To tell of Satyrane, where I him last of late.

Who hauing ended with that Squire of Dames
 A long discourse of his aduentures vaine,
 The which himselfe, then Ladies more defames,
 And finding not th' Hyena to be slaine,
 With that same Squire, returned backe againe
 To his first way. And as they forward went,
 They spyde a knight faire pricking on the plaine,
 As if he were on some aduenture bent,
 And in his port appeared manly hardiment.

Sir Satyrane him towards did addresse,
 To weet, what wight he was, and what his quest:
 And comming nigh, eftsoones he gan to gesse
 Both by the burning hart, which on his brest
 He bare, and by the colours in his crest,
 That Paridell it was. Tho to him yode,
 And him saluting, as beseeemed best,
 Gan first inquire of tydings farre abroad;
 And afterwarde, on what aduenture now he rode.

Who thereto answering, said; The tydings bad,
 Which now in Faerie court all men do tell,
 Which turned hath great mirth, to mourning sad,
 Is the late ruine of proud Marinell,
 And suddein parture of faire Florimell,
 To find him forth: and after her are gone
 All the braue knights, that doen in armes excell,
 To sauegard her, ywandred all alone;
 Emongst the rest my lot (vnworthy) is to be one.

Ah gentle knight (said then Sir Satyrane)
 Thy labour all is lost, I greatly dread,
 That hast a thanklesse seruice on thee ta'ne,
 And offrest sacrifice vnto the dead:
 For dead, I surely doubt, thou maist aread Henceforth for euer Florimell to be,
 That all the noble knights of Maydenhead,
 Which her ador'd, may sore repent with me,
 And all faire Ladies may for euer sory be.

xliv

Which words when Paridell had heard, his hew
 Gan greatly chaunge, and seem'd dismayd to bee;
 Then said, faire Sir, how may I weene it trew,
 That ye doe tell in such vncertaintee?
 Or speake ye of report, or did ye see
 Iust cause of dread, that makes ye doubt so sore?
 For perdie else how mote it euer bee,

Cant. IX.

REdoubted knights, and honorable Dames,
 To whom I leuell all my labours end,
 Right sore I feare, least with vnworthy blames
 This odious argument my rimes should shend,
 Or ought your goodly patience offend,
 Whiles of a wanton Lady I do write,
 Which with her loose incontinence doth blend
 The shyning glory of your soueraigne light,
 And knighthood fowle defaced by a faithlesse knight.
 But neuer let th'ensample of the bad
 Offend the good: for good by paragone
 Of euill, may more notably be rad,
 As white seemes fairer, macht with blacke attone ;
 Ne all are shamed by the fault of one :
 For lo in heauen, whereas all goodnesse is,
 Emongst the Angels, a whole legione
 Of wicked Sprights did fall from happy blis ;
 What wonder then, if one of women all did mis ?

Then listen Lordings, if ye list to weete
 The cause, why Satyrane and Paridell
 Mote not be entertaynd, as seemed meet,
 Into that Castle (as that Squire does tell.)
 Therein a cancred crabbed Carle does dwell,
 That has no skill of Court nor courtesie,
 Ne cares, what men say of him ill or well;
 For all his dayes he drownes in priuitie,
 Yet has full large to liue, and spend at libertie.
 But all his mind is set on mucky pelfe,
 To hoord vp heapes of euill gotten masse,
 For which he others wrongs, and wreckes himselfe;
 Yet is he lincked to a louely lasse,
 Whose beauty doth her bounty far surpasse,
 The which to him both far vnequall yeares,
 And also far vnlike conditions has;
 For she does ioy to play emongst her peares,
 And to be free from hard restraint and gealous feares.
 But he is old, and withered like hay,
 Vnfit faire Ladies seruice to supply;
 The priuie guilt whereof makes him alway
 Suspect her truth, and keepe continuall spy
 Vpon her with his other blinked eye;
 Ne suffreth he resort of liuing wight
 Approch to her, ne keepe her company,
 But in close bowre her mewes from all mens sight,
 Depriu'd of kindly ioy and naturall delight.
Malbecco he, and Hellenore she hight,
 Vnfitly yokt together in one teeme,
 That is the cause, why neuer any knight
 Is suffred here to enter, but he seeme
 Such, as no doubt of him he neede misdeeme.
 Thereat Sir Satyrane gan smile, and say;
 Extremely mad the man I surely deeme,
 That weenes with watch and hard restraint to stay
 A womans will, which is disposd to go astray.

iv 5 her] his 1609 vi 4 Is] It 1596

In vaine he feares that, which he cannot shonne:
 For who wotes not, that womans subtiltyes
 Can guilen Argus, when she list misdonne?
 It is not yron bandes, nor hundred eyes,
 Nor brasen walls, nor many wakefull spyes,
 That can withhold her wilfull wandring feet;
 But fast good will with gentle curtesyes,
 And timely seruice to her pleasures meet
 May her perhaps containe, that else would algates fleet.

Then is he not more mad (said Paridell)
 That hath himselfe vnto such seruice sold,
 In dolefull thraldome all his dayes to dwell?
 For sure a foole I do him firmly hold,
 That loues his fetters, though they were of gold.
 But why do we deuise of others ill,
 Whiles thus we suffer this same dotard old,
 To keepe vs out, in scorne of his owne will,
 And rather do not ransack all, and him selfe kill?

Nay let vs first (said Satyrane) entreat
 The man by gentle meanes, to let vs in,
 And afterwarde affray with cruell threat,
 Ere that we to efforce it do begin:
 Then if all fayle, we will by force it win,
 And eke reward the wretch for his mesprise,
 As may be worthy of his haynous sin.
 That counsell pleasd: then Paridell did rise,
 And to the Castle gate approcht in quiet wise.

Whereat soft knocking, entrance he desyrd.
 The good man selfe, which then the Porter playd,
 Him answered, that all were now retyrd
 Vnto their rest, and all the keyes conuayd
 Vnto their maister, who in bed was layd,
 That none him durst awake out of his dreame;
 And therefore them of patience gently prayd.
 Then Paridell began to chynge his theme,
 And threatned him with force and punishment extreme.

But all in vaine; for nought mote him relent,
 And now so long before the wicket fast
 They wayted, that the night was forward spent,
 And the faire welkin fowly ouercast,
 Gan blowen vp a bitter stormy blast,
 With shoure and hayle so horrible and dred,
 That this faire many were compeld at last,
 To fly for succour to a little shed,
 The which beside the gate for swine was ordered.

It fortun'd, soone after they were gone,
 Another knight, whom tempest thither brought,
 Came to that Castle, and with earnest mone,
 Like as the rest, late entrance deare besought;
 But like so as the rest he prayd for nought,
 For flatly he of entrance was refusd,
 Sorely thereat he was displeasd, and thought
 How to auenge himselfe so sore abusd,
 And euermore the Carle of curtesie accusd.

But to auoyde th'intollerable stowre,
 He was compeld to seeke some refuge neare,
 And to that shed, to shrowd him from the showre,
 He came, which full of guests he found whyleare,
 So as he was not let to enter there:
 Whereat he gan to wex exceeding wroth,
 And swore, that he would lodge with them yfere,
 Or them dislodge, all were they lief or loth;
 And so defide them each, and so defide them both.

Both were full loth to leaue that needfull tent,
 And both full loth in darkenesse to debate;
 Yet both full lief him lodging to haue lent,
 And both full lief his boasting to abate;
 But chiefly Paridell his hart did grate,
 To heare him threaten so despightfully,
 As if he did a dogge to kenell rate,
 That durst not barke; and rather had he dy,
 Then when he was defide, in coward corner ly.

Tho hastily remounting to his steed,
 He forth issew'd; like as a boistrous wind,
 Which in th'earth's hollow caues hath long bin hid,
 And shut vp fast within her prisons blind,
 Makes the huge element against her kind
 To moue, and tremble as it were agast,
 Vntill that it an issew forth may find;
 Then forth it breakes, and with his furious blast
 Confounds both land and seas, and skyes doth ouercast.

Their steel-hed speares they strongly coucht, and met
 Together with impetuous rage and forse,
 That with the terrour of their fierce affret,
 They rudely droue to ground both man and horse,
 That each awhile lay like a sencelesse corse.
 But Paridell sore brused with the blow,
 Could not arise, the counterchaunge to scorse,
 Till that young Squire him reared from below;
 Then drew he his bright sword, and gan about him throw.

But Satyrane forth stepping, did them stay
 And with faire treatie pacifide their ire,
 Then when they were accorded from the fray,
 Against that Castles Lord they gan conspire,
 To heape on him dew vengeance for his hire.
 They bene agreed, and to the gates they goe
 To burne the same with vnquenchable fire,
 And that vnmercifull Carle their commune foe
 To do fowle death to dye, or wrap in grieuous woe.

Malbecco seeing them resolu'd in deed
 To flame the gates, and hearing them to call
 For fire in earnest, ran with fearefull speed,
 And to them calling from the castle wall,
 Besought them humbly, him to beare with all,
 As ignoraunt of seruants bad abuse,
 And slacke attendaunce vnto straungers call.
 The knights were willing all things to excuse,
 Though nought beleu'd, and entraunce late did not refuse.

They bene ybrought into a comely bowre,
 And seru'd of all things that mote needfull bee;
 Yet secretly their hoste did on them lowre,
 And welcomde more for feare, then charitee;
 But they dissembled, what they did not see,
 And welcomed themselues. Each gan vndight
 Their garments wet, and weary armour free,
 To dry them selues by Vulcanes flaming light,
 And eke their lately bruized parts to bring in plight.

And eke that straunger knight emongst the rest
 Was for like need enforst to disaray:
 Tho whenas vailed was her loftie crest,
 Her golden locks, that were in tramels gay
 Vpbounden, did them selues adowne display,
 And raught vnto her heeles; like sunny beames,
 That in a cloud their light did long time stay,
 Their vapour vaded, shew their golden gleames,
 And through the persant aire shoote forth their azure streames.

She also dofte her heauy habericon,
 Which the faire feature of her limbs did hyde,
 And her well plighted frock, which she did won
 To tucke about her short, when she did ryde,
 She low let fall, that flowd from her lanck syde
 Downe to her foot, with carelesse modestee.
 Then of them all she plainly was espyde,
 To be a woman wight, vnwist to bee,
 The fairest woman wight, that euer eye did see.

Like as Minerua, being late returnd
 Fro:n slaughter of the Giaunts conquered;
 Where proud Encelade, whose wide nosethrils burnd
 With breathed flames, like to a furnace red,
 Transfixed with the speare, downe tombled ded
 From top of Hemus, by him heaped hye;
 Hath loosd her helmet from her lofty hed,
 And her Gorgonian shield gins to vntye
 From her left arme, to rest in glorious victorie.

Which whenas they beheld, they smitten were
 With great amazement of so wondrous sight,
 And each on other, and they all on her
 Stood gazing, as if suddein great affright
 Had them surprised. At last auizing right,
 Her goodly personage and glorious hew,
 Which they so much mistooke, they tooke delight
 In their first errour, and yet still anew
 With wonder of her beauty fed their hungry vew.

Yet note their hungry vew be satisfide,
 But seeing still the more desir'd to see,
 And euer firmly fixed did abide
 In contemplation of diuinitie:
 But most they meruaild at her cheualree,
 And noble prowesse, which they had approued,
 That much they faynd to know, who she mote bee;
 Yet none of all them her thereof amoued,
 Yet euery one her likte, and euery one her loued.

And Paridell though partly discontent
 With his late fall, and fowle indignity,
 Yet was soone wonne his malice to relent,
 Through gracious regard of her faire eye,
 And knightly worth, which he too late did try,
 Yet tried did adore. Supper was dight;
 Then they Malbecco prayd of curtesy,
 That of his Lady they might haue the sight,
 And company at meat, to do them more delight.

But he to shift their curious request,
 Gan causen, why she could not come in place;
 Her crased health, her late recourse to rest,
 And humid euening ill for sicke folkes cace:
 But none of those excuses could take place;
 Ne would they eate, till she in presence came.
 She came in presence with right comely grace,
 And fairely them saluted, as became,
 And shewd her selfe in all a gentle curteous Dame.

xxiii

They sate to meat, and Satyrane his chaunce
 Was her before, and Paridell besyde;
 But he him selfe sate looking still askaunce,
 Gainst Britomart, and euer closely eyde
Sir Satyrane, that glaunces might not glyde:
 But his blind eye, that syded Paridell,
 All his demeasnure from his sight did hyde:
 On her faire face so did he feede his fill,
 And sent close messages of loue to her at will.

xxiv

And euer and anone, when none was ware,
 With speaking lookes, that close embassage bore,
 He rou'd at her, and told his secret care:
 For all that art he learned had of yore.
 Ne was she ignoraunt of that lewd lore,
 But in his eye his meaning wisely red,
 And with the like him answerd euermore:
 She sent at him one frie dart, whose hed
 Empoised was with priuy lust, and gealous dred.

xxviii

xxv

He from that deadly throw made no defence,
 But to the wound his weake hart opened wyde;
 The wicked engine through false influence,
 Past through his eyes, and secretly did glyde
 Into his hart, which it did sorely gryde.
 But nothing new to him was that same paine,
 Ne paine at all; for he so oft had tryde
 The powre thereof, and lou'd so oft in vaine,
 That thing of course he counted, loue to entertaine.

xxix

xxvi

Thenceforth to her he sought to intimate
 His inward griefe, by meanes to him well knowne,
 Now Bacchus fruit out of the siluer plate
 He on the table dasht, as ouerthrowne,
 Or of the fruitfull liquor ouerflowne,
 And by the dauncing bubbles did diuine,
 Or therein write to let his loue be showne;
 Which well she red out of the learned line,
 A sacrament prophane in mistery of wine.

xxx

And when so of his hand the pledge she raught,
 The guilty cup she fained to mistake,
 And in her lap did shed her idle draught,
 Shewing desire her inward flame to slake:
 By such close signes they secret way did make Vnto their wils, and one eyes watch escape;
 Two eyes him needeth, for to watch and wake,
 Who louers will deceiue. Thus was the ape,
 By their faire handling, put into Malbeccoes cape.

Now when of meats and drinks they had their fill,
 Purpose was moued by that gentle Dame,
 Vnto those knights aduenturous, to tell
 Of deeds of armes, which vnto them became,
 And euery one his kindred, and his name.
 Then Paridell, in whom a kindly pryde
 Of gracious speach, and skill his words to frame
 Abounded, being glad of so lit tyde
 Him to commend to her, thus spake, of all well eyde.

Troy, that art now nought, but an idle name,
 And in thine ashes buried low dost lie,
 Though whilome far much greater then thy fame,
 Before that angry Gods, and cruell skye
 Vpon thee heapt a direfull destinie,
 What boots it boast thy glorious descent,
 And fetch from heauen thy great Genealogie,
 Sith all thy worthy prayses being blent,
 Their of-spring hath embaste, and later glory shent.

Most famous Worthy of the world, by whome
 That warre was kindled, which did Troy inflame,
 And stately towres of Ilion whilome
 Brought vnto balefull ruine, was by name
 Sir Paris far renowmd through noble fame,
 Who through great prowesse and bold hardinesse,
 From Lacedemon fetcht the fairest Dame,
 That euer Greece did boast, or knight possesse,
 Whom Venus to him gaue for meed of worthinesse.

Faire Helene, flowre of beautie excellent,
 And girlond of the mighty Conquerours,
 That madest many Ladies deare lament
 The heauie losse of their braue Paramours,
 Which they far off beheld from Troian toures,
 And saw the fieldes of faire Scamander strowne
 With carcases of noble warrioures,
 Whose fruitlesse liues were vnder furrow sowne,
 And Xanthus sandy bankes with bloud all ouerflowne.

From him my lineage I deriue aright,
 Who long before the ten yeares siege of Troy,
 Whiles yet on Ida he a shepherd hight,
 On faire Oenone got a louely boy,
 Whom for remembraunce of her passed ioy,
 She of his Father Parius did name;
 Who, after Greekes did Priams realme destroy,
 Gathred the Troian reliques sau'd from flame,
 And with them saying thence, to th'Isle of Paros came.

That was by him cald Paros, which before
 Hight Nausa, there he many yeares did raine,
 And built Nausicle by the Pontick shore,
 The which he dying left next in remaine
 To Paridas his sonne.
 From whom I Paridell by kin descend;
 But for faire Ladies loue, and glories gaine,
 My natue soile haue left, my dayes to spend
 In sewing deeds of armes, my liues and labours end.

Whenas the noble Britomart heard tell
 Of Troian warres, and Priams Citie sackt,
 The ruefull story of Sir Paridell,
 She was empassiond at that piteous act,
 With zelous enuy of Greekes cruell fact,
 Against that nation, from whose race of old
 She heard, that she was lineally extract:
 For noble Britons sprong from Troians bold,
 And Troynouant was built of old Troyes ashes cold.

Then sighing soft awhile, at last she thus:

O lamentable fall of famous towne,
Which raignd so many yeares victorious,
And of all Asie bore the soueraigne crowne,
In one sad night consumd, and throwen downe:
What stony hart, that heares thy haplesse fate,
Is not empierst with deepe compassiowne,
And makes ensample of mans wretched state,
That floures so fresh at morne, and fades at euening late?

Behold, Sir, how your pitifull complaint

Hath found another partner of your payne:
For nothing may impresse so deare constraint,
As countries cause, and commune foes disdayne.
But if it should not grieue you, backe agayne
To turne your course, I would to heare desyre,
What to Aeneas fell; sith that men sayne
He was not in the Cities wofull fyre
Consum'd, but did him selfe to safetie retyre.

Anchyses sonne begot of Venus faire,

(Said he,) out of the flames for safegard fled,
And with a remnant did to sea repaire,
Where he through fatall errour long was led Full many yeares, and weetlesse wandered
From shore to shore, emongst the Lybicke sands, Ere rest he found. Much there he suffered,
And many perils past in forreine lands,
To saue his people sad from victours vengefull hands.

At last in Latium he did arriue,

Where he with cruell warre was entertaind
Of th'inland folke, which sought him backe to driue,
Till he with old Latinus was constraind,
To contract wedlock: (so the fates ordaind.)
Wedlock contract in bloud, and eke in blood
Accomplished, that many deare complaind:
The riual slaine, the victour through the flood
Escaped hardly, hardly praisd his wedlock good.

xxxix

Yet after all, he victour did suruiue,
 And with Latinus did the kingdome part.
 But after, when both nations gan to striue,
 Into their names the title to conuart,
 His sonne Iulus did from thence depart,
 With all the warlike youth of Troians bloud,
 And in long Alba plast his throne apart,
 Where faire it florished, and long time stoud,
 Till Romulus renewing it, to Rome remoud.

There there (said Britomart) a fresh appeard
 The glory of the later world to spring,
 And Troy againe out of her dust was reard,
 To sit in second seat of soueraigne king,
 Of all the world vnder her gouerning.
 But a third kingdome yet is to arise,
 Out of the Troians scattered of-spring,
 That in all glory and great enterprise,
 Both first and second Troy shall dare to equalise.

It Troynouant is hight, that with the waues
 Of wealthy Thames washed is along,
 Vpon whose stubborne neck, whereat he raues
 With roring rage, and sore him selfe does throng,
 That all men feare to tempt his billowes strong,
 She fastned hath her foot, which standes so hy,
 That it a wonder of the world is song
 In forreine landes, and all which passen by,
 Beholding it from far, do thinke it threatens the skye.

The Troian Brute did first that Citie found,
 And Hygate made the meare thereof by West,
 And Oueri gate by North: that is the bound
 Toward the land; two riuers bound the rest.
 So huge a scope at first him seemed best,
 To be the compasse of his kingdomes seat:
 So huge a mind could not in lesser rest,
 Ne in small meares containe his glory great,
 That Albion had conquered first by warlike feat.

Oh fairest Lady knight, (said Paridell)
 Pardon I pray my heedlesse ouersight,
 Who had forgot, that whilome I heard tell
 From aged Mnemon; for my wits bene light.
 Indeed he said (if I remember right,)
 That of the antique Troian stocke, there grew
 Another plant, that raught to wondrous hight,
 And far abroad his mighty branches threw,
 Into the vtmost Angle of the world he knew.

For that same Brute, whom much he did aduaunce
 In all his speach, was Syluius his sonne,
 Whom hauing slaine, through luckles arrowes glaunce
 He fled for feare of that he had misdonne,
 Or else for shame, so fowle reproch to shonne,
 And with him led to sea an youthly trayne,
 Where wearie wandring they long time did wonne,
 And many fortunes prou'd in th'Ocean mayne,
 And great aduentures found, that now were long to sayne.

At last by fattall course they driuen were Into an Island spacious and brode,
 The furthest North, that did to them appeare:
 Which after rest they seeking far abrode,
 Found it the fittest soyle for their abode,
 Fruitfull of all things fit for liuing foode,
 But wholly wast, and void of peoples trode,
 Saue an huge nation of the Geaunts broode,
 That fed on liuing flesh, and druncke mens vitall blood.

Whom he through wearie wars and labours long,
 Subdewd with losse of many Britons bold:
 In which the great Goemagot of strong
Corineus, and Coulin of Debon old
 Were ouerthrowne, and layd on th'earth full cold,
 Which quaked vnder their so hideous masse,
 A famous history to be enrold
 In euerlasting monuments of brasse,
 That all the antique Worthies merits far did passe.

His worke great Troynouant, his worke is eke
 Faire Lincolne, both renowned far away,
 That who from East to West will endlong seeke,
 Cannot two fairer Cities find this day,
 Except Cleopolis: so heard I say
 Old Mnemon. Therefore Sir, I greet you well
 Your country kin, and you entirely pray
 Of pardon for the strife, which late befell
 Betwixt vs both vnknowne. So ended Paridell.

xlviii

But all the while, that he these speeches spent,
 Vpon his lips hong faire Dame Hellenore,
 With vigilant regard, and dew attent,
 Fashioning worlds of fancies euermore
 In her fraile wit, that now her quite forlore:
 The whiles vnwares away her wondring eye,
 And greedy eares her weake hart from her bore:
 Which he perceiuing, euer priuily
 In speaking, many false belgardes at her let fly.

xlix

So long these knights discoursed diuersly,
 Of straunge affaires, and noble hardiment,
 Which they had past with mickle ieopardy,
 That now the humid night was farforth spent,
 And heavenly lampes were halfendeale ybrent:
 Which th'old man seeing well, who too long thought
 Euery discourse and euery argument,
 Which by the houres he measured, besought Them go to rest. So all vnto their bowres were brought.

Cant. X.

*Paridell rapeth Hellenore: Malbacco her pursues:
 findes amongst Satyres, whence with him
 To turne she doth refuse.*

THe morow next, so soone as Phæbus Lamp
 Bewrayed had the world with early light,
 And fresh Aurora had the shady damp
 Out of the goodly heauen amoued quight,
 Faire Britomart and that same Faerie knight
 Vprose, forth on their iourney for to wend:
 But Paridell complaynd, that his late fight
 With Britomart, so sore did him offend,
 That ryde he could not, till his hurts he did amend.
 So forth they far'd, but he behind them stayd,
 Maulgre his host, who grudged grievously,
 To house a guest, that would be needes obayd,
 And of his owne him left not liberty:
 Might wanting measure moueth surquedry.
 Two things he feared, but the third was death;
 That fierce youngmans vnruely maistery;
 His money, which he lou'd as liuing breath;
 And his faire wife, whom honest long he kept vneath.
 But patience perforce he must abide,
 What fortune and his fate on him will lay,
 Fond is the feare, that findes no remedie;
 Yet warily he watcheth euery way,
 By which he feareth euill happen may:
 So th'euill thinkes by watching to preuent;
 Ne doth he suffer her, nor night, nor day,
 Out of his sight her selfe once to absent.
 So doth he punish her and eke himselfe torment.

But Paridell kept better watch, then hee,
 A fit occasion for his turne to find:
 False loue, why do men say, thou canst not see,
 And in their foolish fancie feigne 'hee blind,
 That with thy charmes the sharpest sight doest bind,
 And to thy will abuse? Thou walkest free,
 And seest euery secret of the mind;
 Thou seest all, yet none at all sees thee;
 All that is by the working of thy Deitee.

iv

So perfect in that art was Paridell,
 That he *Malbecco*s halfen eye did wyle,
 His halfen eye he wiled wondrous well,
 And Hellenors both eyes did eke beguyle,
 Both eyes and hart attonce, during the whyle
 That he there soiourned his wounds to heale;
 That Cupid selfe it seeing, close did smyle,
 To weet how he her loue away did steale,
 And bad, that none their ioyous treason should reueale.

v

The learned louer lost no time nor tyde,
 That least auantage mote to him afford,
 Yet bore so faire a saile, that none espyde
 His secret drift, till he her layd aboard.
 When so in open place, and commune bord,
 He fortun'd her to meet, with commune speach
 He courted her, yet bayted euery word,
 That his vngentle hoste n'ote him appeach
 Of vile vngentlenesse, or hospitages breach.

vi

But when apart (if euer her apart)
 He found, then his false engins fast he plyde,
 And all the sleights vnbosomd in his hart;
 He sigh'd, he sobd, he swownd, he perdy dyde,
 And cast himselfe on ground her fast besyde:
 Tho when againe he him bethought to liue,
 He wept, and wayld, and false laments belyde,
 Saying, but if she Mercie would him giue
 That he mote algates dye, yet did his death forgiue.

vii

And otherwhiles with amorous delights,
 And pleasing toyes he would her entertaine,
 Now singing sweetly, to surprise her sprights,
 Now making layes of loue and louers paine,
 Bransles, Ballads, virelayes, and verses vaine;
 Oft purposes, oft riddles he deuysd,
 And thousands like, which flowed in his braine,
 With which he fed her fancie, and entysd
 To take to his new loue, and leaue her old despyd.

And euery where he might, and euery while
 He did her seruice dewtifull, and sewed
 At hand with humble pride, and pleasing guile,
 So closely yet, that none but she it vewed,
 Who well perceiued all, and all indewed.
 Thus finely did he his false nets dispreed,
 With which he many weake harts had subdewed
 Of yore, and many ad ylike misled:
 What wonder then, if she were likewise carried?

No fort so sensible, no wals so strong,
 But that continuall battery will riue,
 Or daily siege through dispueruaunce long,
 And lacke of reskewes will to parley driue;
 And Peece, that vnto parley eare will giue,
 Will shortly yeeld it selfe, and will be made
 The vassall of the victors will byliue:
 That stratageme had oftentimes assayd
 This crafty Paramoure, and now it plaine displayd.

For through his traines he her intrapped hath,
 That she her loue and hart hath wholly sold
 To him, without regard of gaine, or scath,
 Or care of credite, or of husband old,
 Whom she hath vow'd to dub a faire Cucquold.
 Nought wants but time and place, which shortly shee
 Deuized hath, and to her louer told.
 It pleased well. So well they both agree;
 So readie rype to ill, ill womens counsels bee.

Darke was the Euening, fit for louers stealth,
 When chaunst Malbecco busie be elsewhere,
 She to his closet went, where all his wealth
 Lay hid: thereof she countlesse summes did reare,
 The which she meant awa^{re} with her to beare;
 The rest she fyr'd for sport, or for despight;
 As Hellene, when she saw aloft appeare
 The Troiane flames, and reach to heauens hight
 Did clap her hands, and ioyed at that dolefull sight.

This second Hellene, faire Dame Hellenore,
 The whiles her husband ranne with sory haste,
 To quench the flames, which she had tyn'd before,
 Laught at his foolish labour spent in waste;
 And ranne into her louers armes right fast;
 Where streight embraced, she to him did cry,
 And call aloud for helpe, ere helpe were past;
 For loe that Guest would beare her forcibly,
 And meant to rauish her, that rather had to dy.

The wretched man hearing her call for ayd,
 And readie seeing him with her to fly,
 In his disquiet mind was much dismayd:
 But when againe he backward cast his eye,
 And saw the wicked fire so furiously
 Consume his hart, and scorch his Idoles face,
 He was therewith distressed diuersly,
 Ne wist he how to turne, nor to what place;
 Was neuer wretched man in such a wofull cace.

Ay when to him she cryde, to her he turnd,
 And left the fire; loue money ouercame:
 But when he marked, how his money burnd,
 He left his wife; money did loue disclame:
 Both was he loth to loose his loued Dame,
 And loth to leaue his liefest pelfe behind,
 Yet sith he n'ote saue both, he sau'd that same,
 Which was the dearest to his donghill mind,
 The God of his desire, the ioy of misers blind.

Thus whilst all things in troublous vprere were,
 And all men busie to suppress the flame,
 The louing couple need no reskew feare,
 But leasure had, and libertie to frame
 Their purpost flight, free from all mens reclame;
 And Night, the patronesse of loue-stealth faire, Gaue them safe conduct, till to end they came:
 So bene they gone yfeare, a wanton paire
 Of louers loosely knit, where list them to reaire.

Soone as the cruell flames yslaked were,
Malbecco seeing, how his losse did lye,
 Out of the flames, which he had quencht whylere
 Into huge waues of grieve and gealosye
 Full deepe emplonged was, and drowned nye,
 Twixt inward doole and felonous despight;
 He rau'd, he wept, he stamp't, he lowd did cry,
 And all the passions, that in man may light,
 Did him attonce oppresse, and vex his caytiue spright.

Long thus he chawd the cud of inward grieve,
 And did consume his gall with anguish sore,
 Still when he mused on his late mischiefe,
 Then still the smart thereof increased more,
 And seem'd more grieuous, then it was before:
 At last when sorrow he saw bootéd nought,
 Ne grieve might not his loue to him restore,
 He gan deuise, how her he reskew mought,
 Ten thousand wayes he cast in his confused thought.

At last resolving, like a pilgrim pore,
 To search her forth, where so she might be fond,
 And bearing with him treasure in close store
 The rest he leaues in ground: So takes in hond
 To seeke her endlong, both by sea and lond.
 Long he her sought, he sought her farre and nere,
 And euery where that he mote vnderstond,
 Of knights and ladies any meetings were,
 And of eachone he met, he tydings did inquer.

But all in vaine, his woman was too wise,
 Euer to come into his clouch againe,
 And he too simple euer to surprise
 The iolly Paridell, for all his paine.
 One day, as he forpassed by the plaine
 With weary pace, he farre away espide
 A couple, seeming well to be his twaine,
 Which houed close vnder a forrest side,
 As if they lay in wait, or else themselues did hide.

Well weened he, that those the same mote bee,
 And as he better did their shape auize,
 Him seemed more their manner did agree;
 For th'one was armed all in warlike wize,
 Whom, to be Paridell he did deuize;
 And th'other all yclad in garments light,
 Discolour'd like to womanish disguise,
 He did resemble to his Ladie bright;
 And euer his faint hart much earned at the sight.

And euer faine he towards them would goe,
 But yet durst not for dread approchen nie,
 But stood aloofe, vnweeting what to doe;
 Till that prickt forth with loues extremitie,
 That is the father of foule gealosy,
 He closely nearer crept, the truth to weet:
 But, as he nigher drew, he easily
 Might scerne, that it was not his sweetest sweet,
 Ne yet her Belamour, the partner of his sheet.

But it was scornefull Braggadocchio,
 That with his seruant Trompart houerd there,
 Sith late he fled from his too earnest foe:
 Whom such when as Malbecco spyed clere,
 He turned backe, and would haue fled arere;
 Till Trompart ronning hastily, him did stay,
 And bad before his soueraine Lord appere:
 That was him loth, yet durst he not gainesay,
 And comming him before, low louted on the lay.

xxi 9 yearned 1609

The Boaster at him sternely bent his browe,
 As if he could haue kild him with his looke,
 That to the ground him meekely made to bowe,
 And awfull terror deepe into him strooke,
 That euery member of his bodie quooke.
 Said he, Thou man of nought, what doest thou here,
 Vnfitly furnisht with thy bag and booke,
 Where I expected one with shield and speere,
 To proue some deedes of armes vpon an e. uall pere.

xxiv

The wretched man at his imperious speach
 Was all abasht, and low prostrating, said;
 Good Sir, let not my rudenesse be no breach
 Vnto your patience, ne be ill ypaid;
 For I vnwares this way by fortune straid,
 A silly Pilgrim driuen to distresse,
 That seeke a Lady, There he suddein staid,
 And did the rest with grieuous sighes suppressse,
 While teares stood in his eies, few drops of bitternesse.

xxv

What Ladie, man? (said Trompart) take good hart,
 And tell thy grieffe, if any hidden lye;
 Was neuer better time to shew thy smart,
 Then now, that noble succour is thee by,
 That is the whole worlds commune remedy.
 That cheareful word his weake hart much did cheare,
 And with vaine hope his spirits faint supply,
 That bold he said; O most redoubted Pere,
 Vouchsafe with mild regard a wretches cace to heare.

xxvi

Then sighing sore, It is not long (said hee)
 Sith I enioyd the gentlest Dame aliue;
 Of whom a knight, no knight at all perdee,
 But shame of all, that doe for honor striue,
 By treacherous deceipt did me depriue;
 Through open outrage he her bore away,
 And with fowle force vnto his will did driue,
 Which all good knights, that armes do beare this day,
 Are bound for to reuenge, and punish if they may.

xxiv

And you most noble Lord, that can and dare
 Redresse the wrong of miserable wight,
 Cannot employ your most victorious speare
 In better quarrell, then defence of right,
 And for a Ladie gainst a faithlesse knight;
 So shall your glory be aduanced much,
 And all faire Ladies magnifie your might,
 And eke my selfe, albe I simple such,
 Your worthy paine shall well reward with guerdon rich.

xxviii

xxv

With that out of his bouget forth he drew
 Great store of treasure, therewith him to tempt;
 But he on it lookt scornefully askew,
 As much disdeigning to be so misdempt,
 Or a war-monger to be basely nempt;
 And said; Thy offers base I greatly loth,
 And eke thy words vncourteous and vnkempt;
 I tread in dust thee and thy money both,
 That, were it not for shame, So turned from him wroth.

xxix

xxvi

But Trompart, that his maisters humor knew,
 In lofty lookes to hide an humble mind,
 Was inly tickled with that golden vew,
 And in his eare him rounded close behind:
 Yet stoupt he not, but lay still in the wind,
 Waiting aduantage on the pray to sease;
 Till Trompart lowly to the ground inclind,
 Besought him his great courage to appease,
 And pardon simple man, that rash did him displease.

xxx

xxvii

Bigge looking like a doughtie Doucepere,
 At last he thus; Thou clod of vilest clay,
 I pardon yield, and with thy rudenesse beare;
 But weete henceforth, that all that golden pray,
 And all that else the vaine world vaunten may,
 I loath as dounge, ne deeme my dew reward:
 Fame is my meed, and glory vertues pray.
 But minds of mortall men are muchell mard,
 And mou'd amisse with massie mucks vnmeet regard.

And more, I graunt to thy great miserie
 Gracious respect, thy wife shall backe be sent,
 And that vile knight, who euer that he bee,
 Which hath thy Lady reft, and knighthood shent,
 By Sanglamort my sword, whose deadly dent
 The bloud hath of so many thousands shed,
 I sweare, ere long shall dearely it repent;
 Ne he twixt heauen and earth shall hide his hed,
 But soone he shall be found, and shortly doen be ded.

The foolish man thereat woxe wondrous blith,
 As if the word so spoken, were halfe donne,
 And humbly thanked him a thousand sith,
 That had from death to life him newly wonne.
 Tho forth the Boaster marching, braue begonne
 His stolen steed to thunder furiously,
 As if he heauen and hell would ouerronne,
 And all the world confound with cruelty,
 That much Malbecco ioyed in his iollity.

xxxiii

Thus long they three together traueiled,
 Through many a wood, and many an vncouth way,
 To seeke his wife, that was farre wandered:
 But those two sought nought, but the present pray,
 To weete the treasure, which he did bewray,
 On which their eies and harts were wholly set,
 With purpose, how they might it better tray;
 For sith the houre, that first he did let
 The same behold, therewith their keene eyes were whet.

xxxiv

It fortun'd as they together far'd,
 They spide, where Paridell came pricking fast
 Vpon the plaine, the which himselfe prepar'd
 To giust with that braue straunger knight a cast,
 As on aduenture by the way he past:
 Alone he rode without his Paragone;
 For hauing filcht her bells, her vp he cast
 To the wide world, and let her fly alone,
 He nould be clogd. So had he serued many one.

The gentle Lady, loose at randon left,
 The greene-wood long did walke, and wander wide
 At wilde aduventure, like a forlorne weft,
 Till on a day the Satyres her espide
 Straying alone withouten groome or guide;
 Her vp they tooke, and with them home her led,
 With them as housewife euer to abide,
 To milk their gotes, and make them cheese and bred,
 And euery one as commune good her handeled.

That shortly she Malbecco has forgot,
 And eke Sir Paridell, all were he deare;
 Who from her went to seeke another lot,
 And now by fortune was arriued here,
 Where those two guilers with Malbecco were:
 Soone as the oldman saw Sir Paridell,
 He fainted, and was almost dead with feare,
 Ne word he had to speake, his grieve to tell,
 But to him louted low, and greeted goodly well.

xxxvii

xxxiv

And after asked him for Hellenore,
 I take no keepe of her (said Paridell)
 She wonneth in the forrest there before.
 So forth he rode, as his aduventure fell;
 The whiles the Boaster from his loftie sell
 Faynd to alight, something amisse to mend;
 But the fresh Swayne would not his leasure dwell,
 But went his way; whom when he passed kend,
 He vp remounted light, and after faind to wend.

xxxviii

xxxv

Perdy nay (said Malbecco) shall ye not:
 But let him passe as lightly, as he came:
 For litle good of him is to be got,
 And mickle perill to be put to shame.
 But let vs go to seeke my dearest Dame,
 Whom he hath left in yonder forrest wyld:
 For of her safety in great doubt I am,
 Least saluage beastes her person haue despoild:
 Then all the world is lost, and we in vaine haue toyl'd.

xxxix

They all agree, and forward them addrest:

Ah but (said craftie Trompart) weete ye well,
That yonder in that wastefull wiidernesse
Huge monsters haunt, and many dangers dwell;
Dragons, and Minotaures, and feendes of hell,
And many wilde woodmen, which robbe and rend
All traouellers; therefore aduise ye well,
Before ye enterprise that way to wend:

One may his iourney bring too soone to euill end.

Malbecco stopt in great astonishment,

And with pale eyes fast fixed on the rest,
Their counsell crau'd, in daunger imminent.
Said Trompart, You that are the most opprest
With burden of great treasure, I thinke best
Here for to stay in safetie behind;
My Lord and I will search the wide forrest.
'That counsell pleased not Malbeccoes mind;
For he was much affraid, himselfe alone to find

Then is it best (said he) that ye doe leaue

Your treasure here in some securitie,
Either fast closed in some hollow greaue,
Or buried in the ground from ieopardie,
Till we returne againe in safetie:

As for vs two, least doubt of vs ye haue,
Hence farre away we will blindfolded lie,
Ne priuie be vnto your treasures graue.

It pleased: so he did. Then they march forward braue.

Now when amid the thickest woods they were,

They heard a noyse of many bagpipes shrill,
And shrieking Hububs them approching nere,
Which all the forrest did with horror fill:
That dreadfull sound the boasters hart did thrill,
With such amazement, that in haste he fled,
Ne euer looked backe for good or ill,
And after him eke fearefull Trompart sped;

The old man could not fly, but fell to ground halfe ded.

Yet afterwards close creeping, as he might,
 He in a bush did hide his fearefull hed,
 The iolly Satyres full of fresh delight,
 Came dauncing forth, and with them nimbly led Faire Hellenore, with girlonds all bespred,
 Whom their May-lady they had newly made:
 She proud of that new honour, which they red,
 And of their louely fellowship full glade,

At night, when all they went to sleepe, he vewd,
 Whereas his louely wife emongst them lay,
 Embraced of a Satyre rough and rude,
 Who all the night did minde his ioyous play:
 Nine times he heard him come aloft ere day,
 That all his hart with gealosie did swell;
 But yet that nights ensample did bewray,
 That not for nought his wife them loued so well,
 When one so oft a night did ring his matins bell.

So closely as he could, he to them crept,
 When wearie of their sport to sleepe they fell,
 And to his wife, that now full soundly slept,
 He whispered in her eare, and did her tell,
 That it was he, which by her side did dwell,
 And therefore prayd her wake, to heare him plaine.
 As one out of a dreame not waked well,
 She turned her, and returned backe againe:
 Yet her for to awake he did the more constraîne.

At last with irkesome trouble she abrayd;
 And then perceiuing, that it was indeed
 Her old Malbecco, which did her vpbrayd,
 With loosenesse of her loue, and loathly deed,
 She was astonisht with exceeding dreed,
 And would haue wakt the Satyre by her syde;
 But he her prayd, for mercy, or for meed,
 To saue his life, ne let him be descryde,
 But hearken to his lore, and all his counsell hyde.

Tho gan he her perswade, to leaue that lewd
 And loathsome life, of God and man abhord,
 And home returne, where all should be renewd
 With perfect peace, and bandes of fresh accord,
 And she receiu'd againe to bed and bord,
 As if no trespasse euer had bene donne:
 But she it all refused at one word,
 And by no meanes would to his will be wonne,
 But chose emongst the iolly Satyres still to wonne.

He wooed her, till day spring he espyde;
 But all in vaine: and then turnd to the heard,
 Who butted him with hornes on euery syde,
 And trode downe in the durt, where his hore beard
 Was fowly dight, and he of death afeard.
 Early before the heauens fairest light
 Out of the ruddy East was fully reard,
 The hearde out of their foldes were loosed might,
 And he emongst the rest crept forth in sory plight.

So soone as he the Prison dore did pas,
 He ran as fast, as both his feete could beare,
 And neuer looked, who behind him was,
 Ne scarcely who before: like as a Beare
 That creeping close, amongst the hiues to reare
 An hony combe, the wakefull dogs espy,
 And him assayling, sore his carkasse teare,
 That hardly he with life away does fly,
 Ne staves, till safe himselfe he see from ieopardy.

Ne stayd he, till he came vnto the place,
 Where late his treasure he entombed had,
 Where when he found it not (for Trompart bace Had it purloyned for his maister bad :)
 With extreme fury he became quite mad,
 And ran away, ran with himselfe away:
 That who so straungely had him seene bestad,
 With vpstart haire, and staring eyes dismay,
 From Limbo lake him late escaped sure would say.

High ouer hilles and ouer dales he fled,
 As if the wind him on his winges had borne,
 Ne banck nor bush could stay him, when he sped
 His nimble feet, as treading still on thorne:
 Griefe, and despight, and gealosie, and scorne
 Did all the way him follow hard behind,
 And he himselfe himselfe loath'd so forlorne,
 So shamefully forlorne of womankind;
 That as a Snake, still lurked in his wounded mind.

Still fled he forward, looking backward still,
Ne stayd his flight, nor fearefull agony,
Till that he came vnto a rockie hill,
Ouer the sea, suspended dreadfully,
That living creature it would terrify,
To look : adowne, or vpward to the hight:
From thence he threw himselfe dispiteously,
All desperate of his fore-damned spright,
That seem'd no helpe for him was left in liuing sight.
But through long anguish, and selfe-murdring thought
He was so wasted and forpined quight,
That all his substance was consun.'d to nought,
And nothing left, but like an aery Spright,
That on the rockes he fell so flit and light,
That he thereby receiu'd no hurt at all,
But chaunced on a craggy cliff to light;
Whence he with crooked clawes so long did crall,
That at the last he found a caue with entrance small.
Into the same he creepes, and thenceforth there
Resolu'd to build his balefull mansion,
In drery darkenesse, and continuall feare
Of that rockes fall, which euer and anon
Threates with huge ruine him to fall vpon,
That he dare neuer sleepe, but that one eye
Still ope he keepes for that occasion;
Ne euer rests he in tranquillity,
The roring billowes beat his bowre so boystrously.
Ne euer is he wont on ought to feed,
But toades and frogs, his pasture peysonous,
Which in his cold complexion do breed
A filthy bloud, or humour rancorous,
Matter of doubt and dread suspitious,
That doth with curelesse care consume the hart,
Corrupts the stomacke with gall vitious,
Croscuts the liuer with internall smart,
And doth transfixe the soule with deathes eternall dart.

Yet can he neuer dye, but dying liues,
 And doth himselfe with sorrow new sustaine,
 That death and life attonce vnto him giues.
 And painefull pleasure turnes to pleasing paine.
 There dwels he euer, miserable swaine,
 Hatefull both to him selfe, and euery wight;
 Where he through priuy griefe, and horreur vaine,
 Is woxen so deform'd, that he has quight
 Forgot he was a man, and Gealosie is hight.

Cant. XI.

O Hatefull hellish Snake, what furie furst
 Brought thee from balefull house of Proserpine,
 Where in her bosome she thee long had nurst,
 And fostred vp with bitter milke of tine,
 Fowle Gealosie, that turnest loue diuine
 To ioylesse dread, and mak'st the louing hart
 With hatefull thoughts to languish and to pine,
 And feed it selfe with selfe-consuming smart?
 Of all the passions in the mind thou vilest art.

O let him far be banished away,
 And in his stead let Loue for euer dwell,
 Sweet Loue, that doth his golden wings embay
 In blessed Nectar, and pure Pleasures well,
 Vntroubled of vile feare, or bitter fell.
 And ye faire Ladies, that your kingdomes make
 In th'harts of men, them gouerne wisely well,
 And of faire Britomart ensample take,
 That was as trew in loue, as Turtle to her make.

Who with Sir Satyrane, as earst ye red,
 Forth ryding from Malbeccoes hostlesse hous,
 Far off aspyde a young man, the which fled
 From an huge Gyaunt, that with hideous
 And hatefull outrage long him chaced thus;
 It was that Ollyphant, the brother deare
 Of that Argante vile and vitious
 From whom the Squire of Dames was reft whylere;
 This all as bad as she, and worse, if worse ought were.

For as the sister did in feminine
 And filthy lust excede all woman kind,
 So he surpassed his sex masculine,
 In beastly vse that I did euer find;
 Whom when as Britomart beheld behind
 The fearefull boy so greedily pursew,
 She was emmoued in her noble mind,
 T'employ her puissance to his reskew,
 And pricked fiercely forward, where she him did vew.

Ne was Sir Satyrane her far behinde,
 But with like fiercenesse did ensew the chace:
 Whom when the Gyaunt saw, he soone resinde
 His former suit, and from them fled apace;
 They after both, and boldly bad him bace,
 And each did striue the other to out-goe,
 But he them both outran a wondrous space,
 For he was long, and swift as any Roe,
 And now made better speed, t'escape his feared foe.

It was not Satyrane, whom he did feare,
 But Britomart the flowre of chastity;
 For he the powre of chaste hands might not beare,
 But alwayes did their dread encounter fly:
 And now so fast his feet he did apply,
 That he has gotten to a forrest neare,
 Where he is shrowded in security.

The wood they enter, and search euery where,
 They searched diuersely, so both diuided were.

Faire Britomart so long him followed,
 That she at last came to a fountaine sheare,
 By which there lay a knight all wallowed
 Vpon the grassy ground, and by him neare
 His habericion, his helmet, and his speare;
 A little off, his shield was rudely throwne,
 On which the winged boy in colours cleare
 Depeincted was, full easie to be knowne,
 And he thereby, where euer it in field was showne.

His face vpon the ground did grouelingly,
 As if he had bene slombring in the shade,
 That the braue Mayd would not for courtesy,
 Out of his quiet slomber him abraide,
 Nor seeme too suddeinly him to inuade:
 Still as she stood, she heard with grieuous throb
 Him grone, as if his hart were peeces made,
 And with most painefull pangs to sigh and sob,
 That pity did the Virgins hart of patience rob.

At last forth breaking into bitter plaintes
 He said; O soueraigne Lord that sit'st on hye,
 And raignt in blis emongst thy blessed Saintes,
 How suffrest thou such shamefull cruelty,
 So long vnwreaked of thine enemy?
 Or hast thou, Lord, of good mens cause no heed?
 Or doth thy iustice sleepe, and silent ly?
 What booteth then the good and righteous deed,
 If goodnesse find no grace, nor righteousness no meed?

If good find grace, and righteousness reward,
 Why then is Amoret in caytiue band,
 Sith that more bounteous creature neuer far'd
 On foot, vpon the face of liuing land?
 Or if that heauenly iustice may withstand
 The wrongfull outrage of vnrighteous men,
 Why then is Busirane with wicke.d hand
 Suffred, these seuen monethes day in secret den
 My Lady and my loue so cruelly to pen?

vii 6 off.] of 1590

ix 6 hast, thou Lord, 1590, 1596

My Lady and my loue is cruelly pend
 In dolefull darkenesse from the vew of day,
 Whilest deadly torments do her chast brest rend,
 And the sharpe steele doth riue her hart in tway,
 All for she Scudamore will not deny.
 Yet thou vile man, vile Scudamore art sound,
 Ne canst her ayde, ne canst her foe dismay;
 Vnworthy wretch to tread vpon the ground,
 For whom so faire a Lady feeles so sore a wound.

There an huge heape of singultes did oppresse
 His strugling soule, and swelling throbs empeach
 His foltring toung with pangs of drerinesse,
 Choking the remnant of his plaintife speach,
 As if his dayes were come to their last reach.
 Which when she heard, and saw the ghastly fit,
 Threatning into his life to make a breach,
 Both with great ruth and terrour she was smit,
 Fearing least from her cage the soule would flit.

Tho stooping downe she him amoued light;
 Who therewith somewhat starting, vp gan looke,
 And seeing him behind a straunger knight,
 Whereas no liuing creature he mistooke,
 With great indignaunce he that sight forsooke,
 And downe againe himselfe disdainefully
 Al'ecting, th'earth with his faire forehead strooke:
 Which the bold Virgin seeing, gan apply
 Fit medicine to his grieve, and spake thus courtesly.

Ah gentle knight, whose deepe conceiued grieve
 Well seemes t'exceede the powre of patience,
 Yet if that heauenly grace some good reliefe
 You send, submit you to high prouidence,
 And euer in your noble hart prepense,
 That all the sorrow in the world is lesse,
 Then vertues might, and values confidence,
 For who nill bide the burden of distresse,
 Must not here thinke to liue: for life is wretchednesse.

xi I cruell' 1609

xii I singulfe 1590, 1596

xiv I cenceiued 1596

Therefore, faire Sir, do comfort to you take,
 And freely read, what wicked felon so
 Hath outrag'd you, and thrald your gentle make.
 Perhaps this hand may helpe to ease your woe,
 And wreake your sorrow on your cruell foe,
 At least it faire endeouour will apply.
 Those feeling wordes so neare the quicke did goe,
 That vp his head he reared easily,
 And leaning on his elbow, these few wordes let fly.

What boots it plaine, that cannot be redrest,
 And sow vaine sorrow in a fruitlesse eare,
 Sith powre of hand, nor skill of learned brest,
 Ne worldly price cannot redeeme my deare,
 Out of her thraldome and continuall feare?
 For he the tyraunt, which her hath in ward
 By strong enchauntments and blacke Magicke leare,
 Hath in a dungeon deepe her close embard,
 And many dreadfull feends hath pointed to her gard.

There he tormenteth her most terribly,
 And day and night afflicts with mortall paine,
 Because to yield him loue she doth deny,
 Once to me yold, not to be yold againe:
 But yet by torture he would her constrain
 Loue to conceiue in her disdainfull brest;
 Till so she do, she must in doole remaine,
 Ne may by liuing meanes be thence relest:
 What boots it then to plaine, that cannot be redrest?

With this sad hersall of his heauy stresse,
 The warlike Damzell was empassiond sore,
 And said; Sir knight, your cause is nothing lesse,
 Then is your sorrow, certes if not more;
 For nothing so much pittie doth implore,
 As gentle Ladies helplesse misery.
 But yet, if please ye listen to my lore,
 I will with prooffe of last extremity,
 Deliuer her fro thence, or with her for you dy.

Ah gentlest knight aliue, (said Scudamore)

What huge heroicke magnanimity

Dwels in thy bounteous brest? what couldst thou more,

If she were thine, and thou as now am I?

O spare thy happy dayes, and them apply

To better boot, but let me dye, that ought;

More is more losse: one is enough to dy.

Life is not lost, (said she) for which is bought

Endlesse renown, that more then death is to be sought.

Thus she at length perswaded him to rise,

And with her wend, to see what new successe

Mote him befall vpon new enterprise;

His armes, which he had vowed to disprofesse,

She gathered vp and did about him dresse,

And his forwardred steed vnto him got:

So forth they both yfere make their progresse,

And march not past the mountenaunce of a shot,

Till they arriu'd, whereas their purpose they did plot.

There they dismounting, drew their weapons bold

And stoutly came vnto the Castle gate;

Whereas no gate they found, them to withhold,

Nor ward to wait at morne and euening late,

But in the Porch, that did them sore amate,

A flaming fire, ymixt with smouldry smoke,

And stinking Sulphure, that with griesly hate

And dreadfull horroure did all entraunce choke,

Enforced them their forward footing to reuoke.

Greatly thereat was Britomart dismayd,

Ne in that stownd wist, how her selfe to beare;

For daunger vaine it were, to haue assayd

That cruell element, which all things feare,

Ne none can suffer to approchen neare:

And turning backe to Scudamour, thus sayd;

What monstrous enmity prouoke we heare,

Foolhardy as th'Earthes children, the which made
Battell against the Gods? so we a God inuade.

Daunger without discretion to attempt,
 Inglorious and beastlike is: therefore Sir knight,
 Aread what course of you is safest dempt,
 And how we with our foe may come to fight.
 This is (quoth he) the dolorous despight,
 Which earst to you I playnd: for neither may This fire be quencht by any wit or might,
 Ne yet by any meanes remou'd away,
 So mighty be th'enchautments, which the same do stay.

xxiii

What is there else, but cease these fruitlesse paines,
 And leaue me to my former languishing?
 Faire Amoret must dwell in wicked chaines,
 And Scudamore here dye with sorrowing.
 Perdy not so; (said she) for shamefull thing
 It were t'abandon noble cheuisaunce,
 For shew of perill, without venturing:
 Rather let try extremities of chaunce,
 Then enterprised prayse for dread to disauaunce.

xxiv

Therewith resolu'd to proue her vtmost might,
 Her ample shield she threw before her face,
 And her swords point directing forward right,
 Assayld the flame, the which eftsoones gaue place,
 And did it selfe diuide with equall space,
 That through she passed; as a thunder bolt
 Perceth the yielding ayre, and doth displace
 The soring clouds into sad showres ymolt;
 So to her yold the flames, and did their force reuolt.

Whom whenas Scudamour saw past the fire,
 Safe and vntoucht, he likewise gan assay,
 With greedy will, and enuious desire,
 And bad the stubborne flames to yield him way:
 But cruell Mulciber would not obay
 His threatfull pride, but did the more augment
 His mighty rage, and with imperious sway
 Him forst (maulgre) his fiercenesse to relent,
 And backe retire, all scorcht and pitifully brent.

With huge impatience he inly swelt,
 More for great sorrow, that he could not pas,
 Then for the burning torment, which he felt,
 That with fell woodnesse he effierced was,
 And wilfully him throwing on the gras,
 Did beat and bounse his head and brest full sore;
 The whiles the Championesse now entred has
 The vtmost rowme, and past the formest dore,
 The vtmost rowme, abounding with all precious store.

For round about, the wals yclothed were
 With goodly arras of great maiesty,
 Wouen with gold and silke so close and nere,
 That the rich metall lurked priuily,
 As faining to be hid from enuious eye;
 Yet here, and there, and euery where vnwares
 It shewd it selfe, and shone vnwillingly;
 Like a discoloured Snake, whose hidden snares
 Through the greene gras his long bright burnisht backe declar

And in those Tapets weren fashioned
 Many faire pourtraicts, and many a faire feate,
 And all of loue, and all of lusty-hed,
 As seemed by their semblaunt did entreat;
 And eke all Cupids warres they did repeate,
 And cruell battels, which he whilome fought
 Gainst all the Gods, to make his empire great;
 Besides the huge massacres, which he wrought
 On mighty kings and kesars, into thraldome brought.

Therein was writ, how often thundring Ioue
 Had felt the point of his hart-percing dart,
 And leauing heauens kingdome, here did roue
 In straunge disguise, to slake his scalding smart;
 Now like a Ram, faire Helle to peruart,
 Now like a Bull, Europa to withdraw:
 Ah, how the fearefull Ladies tender hart
 Did liuely seeme to tremble, when she saw
 The huge seas vnder her t'obay her seruauents law.

Soone after that into a golden showre
 Him selfe he chaung'd faire Danaë to vew,
 And through the roofe of her strong brasen towre
 Did raine into her lap an hony dew,
 The whiles her foolish garde, that little knew
 Of such deceipt, kept th'yrone dore fast bard,
 And watcht, that none should enter nor issew;
 Vaine was the watch, and bootlesse all the ward,
 Whenas the God to golden hew him selfe transfard.

Then was he turnd into a snowy Swan,
 To win faire Leda to his louely trade:
 O wondrous skill, and sweet wit of the man,
 That her in daffadillies sleeping made,
 From scorching heat her daintie limbes to shade:
 While the proud Bird ruffing his fethers wyde,
 And brushing his faire brest, did her inuade;
 She slept, yet twixt her eyelids closely spyde,
 How towards her he rusht, and smiled at his pryde.

Then shewd it, how the Thebane Semelee
 Deceiu'd of gealous Iuno, did require
 To see him in his soueraigne maiestee,
 Armd with his thunderbolts and lightning fire,
 Whence dearely she with death bought her desire.
 But faire Alcmena better match did make,
 Ioying his loue in likenesse more entire;
 Three nights in onc, they say, that for her sake
 He then did put, her pleasures lenger to partake.

Twise was he seene in soaring Eagles shape,
 And with wide wings to beat the buxome ayre,
 Once, when he with Asterie did scape,
 Againe, when as the Troiane boy so faire
 He snatcht from Ida hill, and with him bare:
 Wondrous delight it was, there to behould,
 How the rude Shepheards after him did stare,
 Trembling through feare, least down he fallen should,
 And often to him calling, to take surer hould.

In Satyres shape Antiopa he snatcht:
 And like a fire, when he Aegin' assayd:
 A shepherd, when Mnemosyne he catcht:
 And like a Serpent to the Thracian mayd.
 Whiles thus on earth great Ioue these pageaunts playd,
 The winged boy did thrust into his throne,
 And scoffing, thus vnto his mother sayd,
 Lo now the heauens obey to me alone,
 And take me for their Ioue, whiles Ioue to earth is gone.

And thou, faire Phæbus, in thy colours bright
 Wast there enwouen, and the sad distresse,
 In which that boy thee plunged, for despight,
 That thou bewray'dst his mothers wantonnesse,
 When she with Mars was meynt in ioyfulnesse:
 For thy he thrild thee with a leaden dart,
 To loue faire Daphne, which thee loued lesse:
 Lesse she thee lou'd, then was thy iust desart,
 Yet was thy loue her death, and her death was thy smart.

So louedst thou the lusty Hyacinth,
 So louedst thou the faire Coronis deare:
 Yet both are of thy haplesse hand extinct,
 Yet both in flowres do liue, and loue thee beare,
 The one a Pounce, the other a sweet breare:
 For grieve whereof, ye mote haue liuely seene
 The God himselfe rending his golden heare,
 And breaking quite his gyrlond euer greene,
 With other signes of sorrow and impatient teene.

Both for those two, and for his owne deare sonne,
 The sonne of Climene he did repent,
 Who bold to guide the charet of the Sunne,
 Himselfe in thousand peeces fondly rent,
 And all the world with flashing fier brent;
 So like, that all the walles did seeme to flame.
 Yet cruell Cupid, not herewith content,
 Forst him eftsoones to follow other game,
 And loue a Shepherds daughter for his dearest Dame.

He loued Isse for his dearest Dame,
 And for her sake her cattell fed a while,
 And for her sake a cowheard vile became,
 The seruant of Admetus cowheard vile,
 Whiles that from heauen he suffered exile.
 Long were to tell each other louely fit,
 Now like a Lyon, hunting after spoile,
 Now like a Stag, now like a faulcon flit :
 All which in that faire arras was most liuely writ.

Next vnto him was Neptune pictured,
 In his diuine resemblance wondrous lyke:
 His face was rugged, and his hoarie hed
 Dropped with brackish dew; his three-forkt Pyke
 He stearnly shooke, and therewith fierce did stryke
 The raging billowes, that on euery syde
 They trembling stood, and made a long broad dyke,
 That his swift charet might haue passage wyde,
 Which foure great Hippodames did draw in temewise tyde.

His sea-horses did seeme to snort amayne,
 And from their nosethrilles blow the brynie streame,
 That made the sparckling waues to smoke agayne,
 And flame with gold, but the white fomy creame,
 Did shine with siluer, and shoot forth his beame.
 The God himselfe did pensiue seeme and sad,
 And hong adowne his head, as he did dreame :
 For priuy loue his brest empierced had,
 Ne ought but deare Bisaltis ay could make him glad.

He loued eke Iphimedia deare,
 And Aeolus faire daughter Arne hight,
 For whom he turnd him selfe into a Steare,
 And fed on fodder, to beguile her sight.
 Also to win Deucalions daughter bright,
 He turnd him selfe into a Dolphin fayre;
 And like a winged horse he tooke his flight,
 To snaky-locke Medusa to repayre,
 On whom he got faire Pegasus, that flitteth in the ayre.

Next Saturne was, (but who would euer weene,
 That sullein Saturne euer weend to loue?
 Yet loue is sullein, and Saturnlike scene,

 That to a Centaure did him selfe transmoue.
 So proou'd it eke that gracious God of wine,
 When for to compasse Philliras hard loue,
 He turnd himselfe into a fruitfull vine,
 And into her faire bosome made his grapes decline.

Long were to tell the amorous assayes,
 And gentle pangues, with which he maked meeke
 The mighty Mars, to learne his wanton playes:
 How oft for Venus, and how often eek
 For many other Nymphes he sore did shreek,
 With womanish teares, and with vnwarlike smarts,
 Priuily moystening his horrid cheek.
 There was he painted full of burning darts,
 And many wide woundes launched through his inner parts

Ne did he spare (so cruell was the Elfe)
 His owne deare mother, (ah why should he so?)
 Ne did he spare sometime to pricke himselfe,
 That he might tast the sweet consuming woe,
 Which he had wrought to many others moe.
 But to declare the mournfull Tragedyes,
 And spoiles, wherewith he all the ground did strow,
 More hath to number, with how many eyes
 High heauen beholds sad louers nightly theeueryes.

Kings Queenes, Lords Ladies, Knights and Damzels gent x
 Were heap'd together with the vulgar sort,
 And mingled with the raskall rablement,
 Without respect of person or of port,
 To shew Dan Cupids powre and great effort:
 And round about a border was entrayld,
 Of broken bowes and arrowes shiuered short,
 And a long bloody riuer through them rayld,
 So liuely and so like, that liuing sence it fayld.

And at the vpper end of that faire rowme,
 There was an Altar built of pretious stone,
 Of passing vawle, and of great renowme,
 On which there stood an Image all alone,
 Of massy gold, which with his owne light shone;

 She was no whit thereby discouraged
 From prosecuting of her first intent,
 But forward with bold steps into the next roome went.

Much fairer, then the former, was that roome,
 And richlier by many partes arayd :
 For not with arras made in painefull loome,
 But with pure gold it all was ouerlayd,
 Wrought with wilde Antickes, which their follies playd,
 In the rich metall, as they liuing were:
 A thousand monstrous formes therein were made,
 Such as false loue doth oft vpon him weare,
 For loue in thousand monstrous formes doth oft appeare.

And all about, the glistring walles were hong
 With warlike spoiles, and with victorious prayes,
 Of mighty Conquerours and Captaines strong,
 Which were whilome captiued in their dayes
 To cruell loue, and wrought their owne decayes :
 Their swords and speres were broke, and hauberques rent
 And their proud girlonds of tryumphant bayes
 Troden in dust with fury insolent,
 To shew the victors might and mercilesse intent.

The warlike Mayde beholding earnestly
 The goodly ordinance of this rich place,
 Did greatly wonder, ne could satisfie
 Her greedy eyes with gazing a long space,
 But more she meruaild that no footings trace,
 Nor wight appear'd, but wastefull emptinesse,
 And solemne silence ouer all that place:
 Straunge thing it seem'd, that none was to possesse
 So rich purueyance, ne them keepe with carefulnesse.

And as she lookt about, she did behold,
 How ouer that same dore was likewise writ,
Be bold, be bold, and euery where Be bold,
 That much she muz'd, yet could not construe it
 By any ridling skill, or commune wit.
 At last she spyde at that roomes vpper end,
 Another yron dore, on which was writ,
Be not too bold; whereto though she did bend
 Her earnest mind, yet wist not what it might intend.

 Yet nould she d'off her weary armes, for feare
 Of secret daunger, ne let sleepe oppresse

Cant. XII.

THo when as chearelesse Night ycouered had Faire heauen with an vniuersall cloud,
 That euery wight dismayd with darknesse sa^d,
 In silence and in sleepe themselues did shroud,
 She heard a shrilling Trompet sound aloud,
 Signe of nigh battell, or got victory ;
 Nought therewith daunted was her courage proud,
 But rather stird to cruell enmity,
 Expecting euer, when some foe she might descry.
 With that, an hideous storme of winde arose,
 With dreadfull thunder and lightning atwixt,
 And an earth-quake, as if it streight would lose
 The worlds foundations from his centre fixt;
 A direfull stench of smoke and sulphure mixt
 Ensewd, whose noyance fild the fearefull sted,
 From the fourth houre of night vntill the sixt;
 Yet the bold Britonesse was nought ydred,
 Though much emmou'd, but stedfast still perseuered.

lv 1 she there] there she 1609

All suddenly a stormy whirlwind blew
Throughout the house, that clapped euery dore,
With which that yron wicket open flew,
As it with mightie leuers had bene tore :
And forth issewd, as on the ready flore
Of some Theatre, a graue personage,
That in his hand a branch of laurell bore,
With comely haueour and count'nance sage,
Yclad in costly garments, fit for tragicke Stage.

Proceeding to the midst, he still did stand,
As if in mind he somewhat had to say,
And to the vulgar beckning with his hand,
In signe of silence, as to heare a play,
By liuely actions he gan bewray
Some argument of matter passioned ;
Which doen, he backe retyred soft away,
And passing by, his name discouered,
Ease, on his robe in golden letters cyphered.

The noble Mayd, still standing all this vewd,
And merueild at his strange intendiment ;
With that a ioyous fellowship issewd
Of Minstrals, making goodly meriment,
With wanton Bardes, and Rymers impudent,
All which together sung full chearefully
A lay of loues delight, with sweet concent :
After whom marcht a iolly company,
In manner of a maske, enranged orderly.

The whiles a most delitious harmony,
In full straunge notes was sweetly heard to sound,
That the rare sweetnesse of the melody
The feeble senses wholly did confound,
And the fraile soule in deepe delight nigh dround :
And when it ceast, shrill trumpets loud did bray,
That their report did farre away rebound,
And when they ceast, it gan againe to play,
The whiles the maskers marched forth in trim aray.

The first was Fancy, like a louely boy,
 Of rare aspect, and beautie without peare;
 Matchable eith'ier to that ympe of Troy,
 Whom Ioue did loue, and chose his cup to beare,
 Or that same daintie lad, which was so deare
 To great Alcides, that when as he dyde,
 He wailed womanlike with many a teare,
 And euery wood, and euery valley wyde
 He filld with Hylas name; the Nymphes eke Hylas cryde.

His garment neither was of silke nor say,
 But painted plumes, in goodly order dight,
 Like as the sunburnt Indians do aray
 Their tawney bodies, in their proudest plight:
 As those same plumes, so seemd he vaine and light,
 That by his gate might easily appeare;
 For still he far'd as dauncing in delight,
 And in his hand a windy fan did beare,
 That in the idle aire he mou'd still here and there.

And him beside marcht amorous Desyre,
 Who seemd of riper yeares, then th'other Swaine,
 Yet was that other swayne this elders syre,
 And gaue him being, commune to them twaine:
 His garment was disguised very vaine,
 And his embrodered Bonet sat awry;
 Twixt both his hands few sparkes he close did straine,
 Which still he blew, and kindled busily,
 That soone they life conceiu'd, and forth in flames did fly.

Next after him went Doubt, who was yclad
 In a discolour'd cote, of straunge disguyse,
 That at his backe a brode Capuccio had,
 And sleeues dependant Albanese-wyse:
 He lookt askew with his mistrustfull eyes,
 And nicely trode, as thornes lay in his way,
 Or that the flore to shrinke he did auyse,
 And on a broken reed he still did stay
 His feeble steps, which shrunke, when hard theron he lay.

With him went Danger, cloth'd in ragged weed,
 Made of Beares skin, that him more dreadfull made,
 Yet his owne face was dreadfull, ne did need Straunge horror, to deforme his griesly shade;
 A net in th'one hand, and a rustie blade
 In th'other was, this Mischiefe, that Mishap;
 With th'one his foes he threatned to inuade,
 With th'other he his friends ment to enwrap:
 For whom he could not kill, he practizd to entrap.

Next him was Feare, all arm'd from top to toe,
 Yet thought himselfe not safe enough thereby,
 But feard each shadow mouing to and fro,
 And his owne armes when glittering he did spy,
 Or clashing heard, he fast away did fly,
 As ashes pale of hew, and wingyheeld;
 And euermore on daunger fixt his eye,
 Gainst whom he alwaies bent a brasen shield,
 Which his right hand vnarmed fearefully did wield.

With him went Hope in rancke, a handsome Mayd,
 Of chearefull looke and louely to behold;
 In silken samite she was light arayd,
 And her faire lockes were wrouen vp in gold;
 She alway smyld, and in her hand did hold
 An holy water Sprinkle, dipt in deowe,
 With which she sprinkled fauours manifold,
 On whom she list, and did great liking sheowe,
 Great liking vnto many, but true loue to fewe.

And after them Dissemblance, and Suspect
 Marcht in one rancke, yet an vnequall paire:
 For she was gentle, and of milde aspect,
 Courteous to all, and seeming debonaire,
 Goodly adorned, and exceeding faire:
 Yet was that all but painted, and purloynd,
 And her bright browes were deckt with borrowed haire:
 Her deedes were forged, and her words false coynd,
 And alwaies in her hand two clewes of silke she twynd.

Griefe all in sable sorrowfully clad,
 Downe hanging his dull head, with heauy chere,
 Yet inly being more, then seeming sad:

 With which he pinched people to the hart,
 That from thenceforth a wretched life they lad,
 In wilfull languor and consuming smart,
 Dying each day with inward wounds of dolours dart.

But Fury was full ill appareiled
 In rags, that naked nigh she did appeare,
 With ghastly lookes and dreadfull drenthed;
 For from her backe her garments she did teare,
 And from her head oft rent her snarled heare:
 In her right hand a firebrand she did tosse
 About her head, still roming here and there;
 As a dismayed Deare in chace embost,
 Forgetfull of his safety, hath his right way lost.

After them went Displeasure and Pleasance,
 He looking lompish and full sullein sad,
 And hanging downe his heauy countenance;
 She chearetull fresh and full of ioyance glad,
 As if no sorrow she ne felt ne drad;

Her brest all naked, as net iuory,
 Without adorne of gold or siluer bright,
 Wherewith the Craftesman wonts it beautify,
 Of her dew honour was despoyled quight,
 And a wide wound therein (O ruefull sight)
 Entrenched deepe with knife accursed keene,
 Yet freshly bleeding forth her fainting spright,
 (The worke of cruell hand) was to be scene,
 That dyde in sanguine red her skin all snowy cleene.

At that wide orifice her trembling hart
 Was drawne forth, and in siluer basin layd,
 Quite through transfixed with a deadly dart,
 And in her bloud yet steeming fresh embayd :
 And those two villeins, which her steps vpstayd,
 When her weake feete could scarcely her sustaine,
 And fading vitall powers gan to fade,
 Her forward still with torture did constraine,
 And euermore encreased her consuming paine.

Next after her the winged God himselve
 Came riding on a Lion rauenous,
 Taught to obay the menage of that Elfe,
 That man and beast with powre imperious
 Subdeweth to his kingdome tyrannous :
 His blindfold eyes he bad a while vnbind,
 That his proud spoyle of that same dolorous
 Faire Dame he might behold in perfect kind ;
 Which scene, he much reioycd in his cruell mind.

Of which full proud, himselfe vp rearing hye,
 He looked round about with sterne disdaine;
 And did suruay his goodly company:
 And marshalling the euill ordered traine,
 With that the darts which his right hand did straine,
 Full dreadfully he shooke that all did quake,
 And clapt on hie his coulourd winges twaine,
 That all his many it affraide did make:
 Tho blinding him againe, his way he forth did take.

Behinde him was Reproch, Repentance, Shame;
Reproch the first, Shame next, Repent behind:
Repentance feeble, sorrowfull, and lame:
Reproch despightfull, carelesse, and vnkind;
Shame most ill fauourd, bestiall, and blind:
Shame lowrd, Repentance sigh'd, Reproch did scould;
Reproch sharpe stings, Repentance whips entwind,
Shame burning brond-yrons in her hand did hold:
 All three to each vnlike, yet all made in one mould.

 Of persons flockt, whose names is hard to read:
 Emongst them was sterne Strife, and Anger stout,
 Vnquiet Care, and fond Vnthriftihead,
 Lewd Losse of Time, and Sorrow seeming dead,
 Inconstant Chaunge, and false Disloyaltie, Consuming Riotise, and guilty Dread
 Of heauenly vengeance, faint Infirmite,
 Vile Pouertie, and lastly Death with infamie.

There were full many moe like maladies,
 Whose names and natures I note readen well;
 So many moe, as there be phantasies
 In wauering wemens wit, that none can tell,
 Or paines in loue, or punishments in hell;
 All which disguised marcht in masking wise,
 About the chamber with that Damozell,
 And then returned, hauing marched thrise,
 Into the inner roome, from whence they first did rise.

So soone as they were in, the dore streight way
 Fast locked, driuen with that stormy blast,
 Which first it opened; and bore all away.
 Then the braue Maid, which all this while was plast
 In secret shade, and saw both first and last,
 Issewed forth, and went vnto the dore,
 To enter in, but found it locked fast:
 It vaine she thought with rigorous vpror
 For to efforce, when charmes had closed it afore.

xxvii

Where force might not auaille, there sleights and art
 She cast to vse, both fit for hard emprize;
 For thy from that same roome not to depart
 Till morrow next, she did her selfe auize,
 When that same Maske againe should forth arize.
 The morrow next appeard with ioyous cheare,
 Calling men to their daily exercize,
 Then she, as morrow fresh, her selfe did reare
 Out of her secret stand, that day for to out weare.

xxviii

All that day she outwore in wandering,
 And gazing on that Chambers ornament,
 Till that againe the second euening
 Her couered with her sable vestiment,
 Wherewith the worlds faire beautie she hath blent:
 Then when the second watch was almost past,
 That brasen dore flew open, and in went Bold Briomart, as she had late forecast,
 Neither of idle shewes, nor of false charmes aghast.

xxix

So soone as she was entred, round about
 She cast her eies, to see what was become
 Of all those persons, which she saw without:
 But lo, they streight were vanisht all and some,
 Ne liuing wight she saw in all that roome,
 Saue that same woefull Ladie, both whose hands
 Were bounden fast, that did her ill become,
 And her small wast girt round with yron bands,
 Vnto a brasen pillour, by the which she stands.

 Figuring straunge characters of his art,
 With liuing bloud he those characters wrate,
 Dreadfully dropping from her dying hart,
 Seeming transfixed with a cruell dart,
 And all perforce to make her him to loue.
 Ah who can loue the worker of her smart?
 A thousand charmes he formerly did proue;
 Yet thousand charmes could not her stedfast heart remoue.

Soone as that virgin knight he saw in place,
 His wicked bookes in hast he ouerthrew,
 Not caring his long labours to deface,
 And fiercely ronning to that Lady trew,
 A murtherous knife out of his pocket drew,
 The which he thought, for villeinous despight,
 In her tormented bodie to embrew:
 But the stout Damzell to him leaping light,
 His cursed hand withheld, and maistered his might.

From her, to whom his fury first he ment,
 The wicked weapon rashly he did wrest,
 And turning to her selfe his fell intent,

 Exceeding wroth therewith the virgin grew,
 Albe the wound were nothing deepe imprest,
 And fiercely forth her mortall blade she drew,
 To giue him the reward for such vile outrage dew.

So mightily she smote him, that to ground
 He fell halfe dead; next stroke him should haue slaine,

 Dernely vnto her called to abstaine,
 From doing him to dy. For else her paine
 Should be remedillesse, sith none but hee,
 Which wrought it, could th : same recure againe.
 Therewith she stayd her hand, loth stayd to bee;
 For liife she him enuyde, and long'd reuenge to see.

FACSIMILE II

And to him said, Thou wicked man, whose meed
 For so huge mischiefe, and vile villany
 Is death, or if that ought do death exceed,
 Be sure, that nought may saue thee from to dy,
 But if that thou this Dame doe presently
 Restore vnto her health, and former state;
 This doe and liue, else die vndoubtedly.
 He glad of life, that lookt for death but late,
 Did yield himselfe right willing to prolong his date.

And rising vp, gan streight to ouerlooke
 Those cursed leaues, his charmes backe to reuerse;
 Full dreadfull things out of that balefull booke
 He red, and measur'd many a sad verse,
 That horror gan the virgins hart to perse,
 And her faire locks vp stared stiffe on end,
 Hearing him those same bloudy lines reherse;
 And all the while he red, she did extend
 Her sword high ouer him, if ought he did offend.

Anon she gan perceiue the house to quake,
 And all the dores to rattle round about;
 Yet all that did not her dismaied make,
 Nor slacke her threatfull hand for daungers dout,
 But still with stedfast eye and courage stout
 Abode, to weet what end would come of all.
 At last that mightie chaine, which round about
 Her tender waste was wound, adowne gan fall,
 And that great brasen pillour broke in peeces small.

The cruell steele, which thrild her dying hart,
 Fell softly forth, as of his owne accord,
 And the wyde wound, which lately did dispart
 Her bleeding brest, and riuen bowels gor'd,
 Was closed vp, as it had not bene bor'd,
 And euery part to safety full sound,
 As she were neuer hurt, was soone restor'd:
 Tho when she felt her selfe to be vnbound,
 And perfect hole, prostrate she fell vnto the ground.

Before faire Britomart, she fell prostrate,
 Saying, Ah noble knight, what worthy meed
 Can wretched Lady, quit from wofull state,
 Yield you in lieu of this your gracious deed?
 Your vertue selfe her owne reward shall breed,
 Euen immortall praise, and glory wyde,
 Which I your vassall, by your prowesse freed,
 Shall through the world make to be notifyde,
 And goodly well aduance, that goodly well was tryde.

xxxvi

But Britomart vprearing her from ground,
 Said, Gentle Dame, reward enough I weene
 For many labours more, then I haue found,
 This, that in safety now I haue you seene,
 And meane of your deliuerance haue beene:
 Henceforth faire Lady comfort to you take,
 And put away remembrance of late teene;
 In stead thereof know, that your louing Make,
 Hath no lesse grieve endured for your gentle sake.

xxxvii

She much was cheard to heare him mentiond,
 Whom of all liuing wights she loued best.
 Then laid the noble Championesse strong hond
 Vpon th'enchauter, which had her distrest
 So sore, and with foule outrages opprest:
 With that great chaine, wherewith not long ygo
 He bound that pitteous Lady prisoner, now relest, Himselfe she bound, more worthy to be so,
 And captiue with her led to wretchednesse and wo.

xxxviii

Returning backe, those goodly roomes, which erst
 She saw so rich and royally arayd,
 Now vanisht vtterly, and cleane subuerst
 She found, and all their glory quite decayd,
 That sight of such a chaunge her much dismayd.
 Thence forth descending to that perlous Porch,
 Those dreadfull flames she also found delayd,
 And quenched quite, like a consumed torch,
 That erst all entrers wont so cruelly to scorch.

More easie issew now, then entrance late
She found: for now that fained dreadfull flame,
Which chokt the porch of that enchaunted gate,
And passage bard to all, that thither came,
Was vanisht quite, as it were not the same,
And gaue her leaue at pleasure forth to passe.
Th'Enchaunter selfe, which all that fraud did frame,
To haue efforst the loue of that faire lasse,
Seeing his worke now wasted deepe engriued was.

But when the victoresse arriued there,
Where late she left the pensife Scudamore,
With her owne trusty Squire, both full of feare,
Neither of them she found where she them lore:
Thereat her noble hart was stonisht sore;
But most faire Amoret, whose gentle spright
Now gan to feede on hope, which she before Conceiued had, to see her owne deare knight,
Being thereof beguyld was fild with new affright.

But he sad man, when he had long in drede
Awayted there for Britomarts returne,
Yet saw her not nor signe of her good speed,
His expectation to despaire did turne,
Misdeeming sure that her those flames did burne;
And therefore gan aduize with her old Squire,
Who her deare nourslings losse no lesse did mourne,
Thence to depart for further aide t'enquire:
Where let them wend at will, whilest here I doe respire.

Stanzas xliii-xlv were first inserted in the 1596 quarto, displacing the following stanzas which concluded Book III in the first edition.

At last she came vnto the place, where late
 She left Sir Scudamour in great distresse, Twixt dolour and despight halfe desperate,
 Of his loues succour, of his owne redresse,
 And of the hardie Britomarts successe:
 There on the cold earth him now thrown she found,
 In wilfull anguish, and dead heauinesse,
 And to him cald; whose voices knowen sound
 Soone as he heard, himself he reared light from ground.

There did he see, that most on earth him ioyd,
 His dearest loue, the comfort of his dayes,
 Whose too long absence him had sore annoyd,
 And wearied his life with dull delayes:
 Straight he vpstart from the loathed layes,
 And to her ran with hasty egernesse,
 Like as a Deare, that greedily embayes
 In the coole soile, after long thirstinesse,
 Which he in chace endured hath, now nigh breathlesse.

Lightly he clipt her twixt his armes twaine,
 And streightly did embrace her body bright,
 Her body, late the prison of sad paine,
 Now the sweet lodge of loue and deare delight:
 But she faire Lady ouercommen quight
 Of huge affection, did in pleasure melt,
 And in sweete rauishment poured out her spright:
 No word they spake, nor earthly thing they felt,
 But like two senceles stocks in long embracement dwelt.

Had ye them seene, ye would haue surely thought,
 That they had beene that faire Hermaphrodite,
 Which that rich Romane of white marble wrought,
 And in his costly Bath causd to bee site:
 So seemd those two, as growne together quite,
 That Britomart halfe enuying their blesse,
 Was much empassiond in her gentle sprite,
 And to her selfe oft wisht like happinesse,
 In vaine she wisht, that fate n'ould let her yet possesse.

Thus doe those louers with sweet counteruayle,
Each other of loues bitter fruit despoile.
But now my teme begins to faint and fayle,
All woxen weary of their iournall toyle:
Therefore I will their sweatie yokes assoyle
At this same furrowes end, till a new day:
And ye faire Swayns, after your long turmoyle,
Now cease your worke, and at your pleasure play;
Now cease your worke; to morrow is an holy day.
